Angry Khrushchev Hints U.N. Pullout By Reds

FLOWERS ARE A LIZARD'S BEST FRIENDS

This South American Iguana, a type of lizard, makes himself right at home in a tropical setting of leaves and flowers at Burns Florist in San Rafael, where he posed temporarily on leave from his home at the Junior Museum of Marin in Albert Park. He's about three years old, and is 32 inches long. He's quiet, eats flowers and changes colors, from emerald green to brown, as his mood suits him. He and two other Iguanas are on display at the museum. (Independent-Journal photo)

Session Set On Neutral Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan are expected to discuss at a White House strategy huddle tomorrow how to respond to a strong neutralist drive in the United Nations to force a meeting between the President and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Also present for the session will be secretary of State Christian A. Herter, Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, and Australian Ambassador Howard Beale.

The president must weigh domestic political consequences as well as international repercussions in deciding how he should meet the United Nations pressure for a face-to-face talk with the Russian.

The pressure erupted in the U.N. yesterday when five top neutralists asked the General Assembly to approve a resolution calling upon the Soviet and American leaders to "renew their contacts."

The president and Macmillan also are expected to assess the increasing Communist squeeze on Allied West Berlin and the touch-and-go situation in the Congo.

Some American officials believed there might be a way out in the wording of the resolution, which does not specifically call for a face-to-face meeting, although that appears to be its intent.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower returned to Washington today from Denver where they attended the funeral of the first lady's mother, Mrs. Elivera Doud.

HOSPITALITY PIE SETS OFF BOMB SCARE IN N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — The heavy package clearly was labeled pie.

And that is exactly what was in it—an apple pie from Mrs. Virginia McCleary of Luling, Tex., a woman who conducts her own letter-writing campaign to world statesmen, to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

But a locket that Mrs. McCleary had enclosed as a present to Mrs. Khrushchev touched off suspicion there was electrical wiring in the package. She said the pie was an example of American hospitality. The package was X-rayed, and sent by Armored bomb disposal truck for examination by the Army.

But prior to that, all traffic around the Soviet legation had been halted, a train was alerted for a possible stop, and detectives and security officers swarmed all over the place.

In Texas, Mrs. McCleary said the only explosive in the package was a challenge to debate Khrushchev.

Blast May Peril Meet With Ike

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, in an arm-waving outburst of name-calling, today raised the threat that Communist countries might quit the United Nations if Red China is not seated.

Western diplomats said Khrushchev's red-faced tirade against the United States and some of its allies appeared to rule out any chance for a meeting between him and president Eisenhower which was demanded by the neutralist powers.

Khrushchev's outburst, which caused Assembly President Frederick H. Boland to bring him to order and direct part of his remarks stricken from the record—an action never before taken here against a head of government—was delivered during a debate on a U.N. seat for Communist China.

The assembly adjourned until Monday, without reaching a vote on the China issue, which the United States demanded be shelved without action, as it has been for the past 10 years.

Khrushchev read a carefully prepared text on the Chinese issue for some 20 minutes and then went on without notes. His temper increased visibly until, referring to Spain as a great friend of the United States, he called Premier Francisco Franco "the hangman of the Spanish people." At that point, Boland gaveled the Russian to order.

500 In Marin 'Die' In Fallout Exercise

A simulated nuclear blast high over San Francisco last night "killed 500 and injured 5,000" in Southern Marin and left the area in "panic," Marin Civil Defense Director Donald A. Jensen reported this morning.

The bomb over San Francisco came at 6:06 last night, following two blasts over Travis and Vandenberg Air Force Bases at noon yesterday.

Fallout began seeping into Marin at 6:30, and an hour later, the entire county east of Woodacre was "dangerous." By 10 o'clock this morning, the fallout had dissipated to the point where residents could leave their homes for three hours at a time without endangering their lives.

Jensen reported that all of Marin's 33 monitoring stations equipped with Geiger counters "did a fine job" of reporting fallout and damage conditions.

First alert of an imminent enemy attack came at 9:27 a.m. yesterday. About 15,000 cars began evacuating north and west. Welfare and medical facilities were established at Marion School in Novato. About 15,000 evacuees were billeted in Novato, 2,000 in Terra Linda and Marinwood, and 3,000 in Lagunitas and Inverness.

The "take cover" alert came at 11:30 a.m.

But the San Francisco drop last night hit Sausalito, Belvedere, and Tiburon with big casualties and damage.

A brush fire raged out of control in Tiburon, and Sausalito suffered structural fires. Slides on Waldo Grade left only two lanes open.

This was part of a comprehensive test of radiological and defense staff and equipment over 25 counties in northern California.

S. AMES PENCE

Two Hospital Aides Quit Marin General

Marin General Hospital is losing both its administrator and his assistant.

Administrator S. Ames Pence yesterday submitted his resignation, disclosing he has accepted a higher paying job in scientific research outside the hospital field.

It was disclosed that W. Austin Turner, assistant administrator, also has resigned, to become assistant administrator at UCLA Medical Center, Los Angeles, a teaching hospital of 316 beds.

Pence, who has spent eight and one-half years at Marin General Hospital, said he was not at liberty as yet to disclose his new employer. He said, however, that it is in scientific research.

Pence gave 60 days' notice in submitting his resignation to Dr. Wilson P. Goddard, president of the hospital board, "to spend some time with my replacement and to complete certain planning projects for the new wing."

Turner will leave Oct. 30 for his new job in Los Angeles.

Pence expressed regret at "ending the many pleasant and satisfying associations I have had here in the last eight and a half years," and thanked Dr. Goddard, "the members of the medical staff and all our personnel who have been so extremely helpful in carrying out my duties here."

Pence assisted in opening Marin General Hospital in 1952, then became administrative assistant at University of California Hospital, returning to Marin General as assistant administrator in December, 1954. He became administrator in 1956, following the resignation of William S. Weeks.

Turner joined the staff of Marin General in May, 1958, as assistant administrator.

Both have been active in community affairs during their residence in Marin County.

Dr. Goddard said the hospital board will proceed at once to find a new administrator and assistant. He said a three-man screening committee will be set up to interview applicants. Alfred Maffley of Berkeley, administrator of Herrick Memorial Hospital, will be one member of the committee, he said. The others will be a Marin County leader interested in the health of the community and a "top man" in the field of hospital administration, yet to be named.

Group Urges Health Course Stay In Schools

Health and safety instruction should remain a basic part of the required curriculum in elementary schools, high schools and colleges, the Northern California Public Health Assn. declared yesterday in San Rafael.

Members expressed concern about a proposed revision of the state education code, made by the citizens advisory commission on the public school system, which would omit health instruction as a mandatory requirement in the elementary schools.

A resolution supporting the maintenance of this requirement in all schools was unanimously adopted.

Mrs. Dalrie Lichtenstiger of Corte Madera, executive director of the California Tuberculosis and Health Assn., presided at the organization's quarterly meeting at the Bermuda Palms.

The Marin County Health Department was co-sponsor and host for the meeting. Some 184 persons attended the luncheon and more than 250 were present for afternoon sessions.

'Radio-Aided' Sick Sailor Arrives In Port

A somewhat sick sailor stepped off the Navy transport Sultan in San Francisco this morning while the Hamilton Air Force Base doctor who "treated" him by teletype was attempting to arrange transportation to San Diego to meet him.

Dr. Jack W. Stage, who had radioed advice to a doctorless Navy radar picket ship when Arthur Hamrick, a ship's laundryman third class, was stricken with severe abdominal pains Tuesday night, had planned to meet the ship and see his "patient."

He called the Navy's ship information center in San Francisco and was informed that the Sultan would dock in San Diego.

The Sultan had taken Hamrick from the Finch to return him to the U.S. for treatment. When the Sultan docked at Fort Mason this morning, Dr. Stage, an Air Force Captain, was making his rounds in the base hospital while Air Force authorities were trying to arrange transportation to San Diego for him.

Hamrick, limping slightly, walked off the transport in a group of dungaree-clad sailors and climbed into a Navy ambulance bound for Oak Knoll Naval Hospital.

Nixon Blasts Kennedy Criticism Of President

EN ROUTE WITH NIXON, (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon lashed out at Sen. John F. Kennedy today for criticizing President Eisenhower and said he "thanks God" the president is not emulating Khrushchev and Castro.

Nixon told an enthusiastic Republican audience at Akron University that Soviet Premier Khrushchev has offered the United Nations a "phoney disarmament plan" while Eisenhower has offered an "honest one."

Nixon said Kennedy is "doubly wrong" — as he said Adlai E. Stevenson in 1956 was "wrong" — in contending American prestige is "Down."

Nixon rapped Kennedy for saying this week that he was "tired of reading in the paper what Khrushchev and Castro are doing. I want to read what President Eisenhower is doing."

In Chicago Kennedy proposed a broad new approach toward the Soviet satellite countries of Eastern Europe today to replace what he called "empty" Republican promises

EXPELLED ON SPY CHARGE

Embassy Secretary Has 'Hopes' For Cuba

By DOROTHY SIMPERS

"I have high hopes, compassion and love for Cuba."

The poised, pretty blonde speaking these words was 26-year-old Marjorie Lennox, the embassy secretary expelled from Cuba Sept. 16 on spy charges.

In the quiet, pleasant surroundings of her sister's home in Lucas Valley, far from the "extremely filthy" political prison where she was held by Cuban secret police, Mrs. Lennox relaxed yesterday and looked forward to four months in the Bay Area. She arrived here last Sunday.

She has been "detached" to the San Francisco office of the State Department until November. Then she will go on leave until January when she leaves for a new post in the consulate-general in Frankfurt, Germany.

She and her 3-year-old son "Danny" will sail Jan. 19 on the S. S. America for Bremerhaven.

For the next month and a half, however, they will live with Mrs. Lennox' sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Roach of 613 Idylberry Road. Then they will stay with her parents in San Francisco.

Of her detention and then expulsion from Cuba, Mrs. Lennox would just as soon it be forgotten. "A lot more serious things have happened in Cuba since I left," she says.

She is deeply sad over the way her tour of duty ended. "It was no way to leave a place," she says, shaking her head.

Mrs. Lennox still does not

Two Marin Writers Publish In Catholic Periodical

Rev. Mark J. Hurley, principal of Marin Catholic High School and Novato resident Paul Brindel have both published articles in the September issue of the national Catholic publication, Way of St. Francis.

Father Hurley's article, "For Export to the U.S.A.," asserts that Protestants—as has been "alleged"—are not persecuted in Latin America by Catholics and that "the picture . . . drawn of a Soviet-type repression of religious freedom by the Catholic Church with Protestants in chains suffering intense persecution, and all in terms unqualified, unlimited . . . is a diversionary tactic."

FACTS SLOW TO COME

Father Hurley's article states that this picture of the Catholic Church in Latin America comes from "far away places where facts are slow in reaching the home front." There are those who believe that when Catholics come to power in the United States, religious freedom will die and with it the First Amendment in the Bill of Rights, he writes. They divert discussion to "the Church in Spain," or "Catholic dictators" rather than the Catholic Church in the United States, writes the principal.

Father Hurley illustrates his point of non-persecution with examples of Catholic and Protestant cooperation he observed on a tour he made in Latin America.

He writes that in a hotel in Cali, Columbia was a sign in the lobby announcing: "The Churches of Cali Welcome You." Listed were four Catholic churches, two Baptist, a Lutheran, Episcopalian and Presbyterian church and a Hebrew synagogue.

DEALS WITH MORALS

Brindel's article in the Way deals with Catholic limitation of offspring by "rhythm" rather than by contraceptives. Brindel, a retired newspaperman and Catholic layman entitled his article, "What Do You Really Know About Morals?"

Father Hurley, who has been principal of Marin Catholic for more than a year, also writes a weekly column for the Catholic newspaper, Monitor.

Grace Lutheran Church To Hold Fete Tomorrow

The Grace Lutheran Church of Novato tomorrow will hold its tenth anniversary worship service at 11 a.m.

Guest speaker for the celebration will be Rev. G. E. Kirchner, pastor emeritus of St. Paulus Lutheran Church in San Francisco. Rev. Kirchner will also speak at the church's Sunday school worship service at 9:45 a.m.

The now 400-member congregation began in the Novato Community House with 20 persons at its first service. In 1955 construction of a sanctuary began and was completed a year later at 1787 Grant Avenue.

"Success in our work has not eluded us. For God's gracious blessing we wish to celebrate our anniversary with praise and thanksgiving," said Rev. Arthur Koehler, the church's pastor for the past six years.

New Priest Takes Two Churches

A priest from Seaside, Monterey County has become Vicar of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness and St. Aidea's Church in Bolinas.

Rev. Francis W. Read has been pastor for the past two years at St. Mathias' Church in Seaside. Previously he had been rector for twelve years at St. Stephen's Church in San Luis Obispo.

Father Read succeeds Rev. John D. Spear, who has become vicar at St. Patrick's Episcopal Church in El Cerrito.

Rev. Read will hold a Communion service at 7:30 a.m. on Sundays with a general worship service at 11 a.m. at Inverness. At the Bolinas parish worship services will be held at 9:15 a.m.

Church Announces Additions To Staff

Dr. John Milton Kelly, educator and authority on church music was among three additions to the staff of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael this week, announced pastor Wesley C. Baker.

Dr. Kelly, Professor of Sacred Music at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, has accepted the position of Minister of Music to the church.

Mrs. Leslie Grant has become church secretary and Glen Dale Hofstetter, an associate in pastoral counseling.

Dr. Kelly has served on the staffs of churches in San Francisco, Berkeley and Sacramento. Beginning in 1944 he served for five years as chief consultant in sacred music to the Presbyterian Church, nationally.

Seminary Curriculum Reformed And Applied

By PAUL MILLER

During the past week students at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo got their first real taste of the institution's "new curriculum."

The reformed system of study, initiated this fall, requires less courses than were formerly needed for a Bachelor of Divinity degree. This has been done to intensify study in fewer courses rather than have superficial study in many courses.

All study now falls into four areas: the Holy Scriptures; the Church Through the Centuries; the Church and the World; and the Ministry of the Church. The highest number of courses is required from the area of the Holy Scriptures.

The former curriculum actually had less areas, but required more courses. For example, for a Bachelor of Divinity degree under the old system, 143 units were required while only 136½ are now necessary.

Last year an entering junior (freshman) would have been required to take individual courses in the life of Christ, Old Testament history, Greek, Christian Doctrine, Preaching, and Christian Education Methods during his first quarter.

This Fall the junior students' curriculum has been cut down to a course called Redemptive History, a pastoral psychology course, a course in Systematic Theology, Greek, and a "field education" course. The education course will not credit the student with units, but is to be taken one hour a week.

The new system will not lessen study, but as Associate Professor Benjamin Reist put it: "It is an attempt to sink the well pipe of learning deeper rather than forcing students in three short years to draw a little knowledge from a large number of pools."

Why should scholarship go deeper at the seminary?

"A curriculum is a living thing that must reflect the changing needs of the Church's ministry while remaining faithful to the unchanging Gospel around which every particular curriculum revolves," said Associate Professor Neill Q. Hamilton.

The reflection of such a change felt needed is exemplified in the area of study, "the Church and the World." It has gathered into a single area and changed certain courses previously offered independently. Their purpose is "to help the student 'listen to the world,' so that the church will be more vitally aware of the real world to which it is called to be a minister," said Dr. Hamilton.

What do the students—to whom it really applies—think about it?

Commented Jack Atkin, senior and a graduate of UCLA, "It reflects the concern of a maturing American Church for the relevancy of the Gospel to this age—in short, I wish I were starting school this fall."

Two Marin Writers Publish In Catholic Periodical

Rev. Mark J. Hurley, principal of Marin Catholic High School and Novato resident Paul Brindel have both published articles in the September issue of the national Catholic publication, Way of St. Francis.

Father Hurley's article, "For Export to the U.S.A.," asserts that Protestants—as has been "alleged"—are not persecuted in Latin America by Catholics and that "the picture . . . drawn of a Soviet-type repression of religious freedom by the Catholic Church with Protestants in chains suffering intense persecution, and all in terms unqualified, unlimited . . . is a diversionary tactic."

FACTS SLOW TO COME

Father Hurley's article states that this picture of the Catholic Church in Latin America comes from "far away places where facts are slow in reaching the home front." There are those who believe that when Catholics come to power in the United States, religious freedom will die and with it the First Amendment in the Bill of Rights, he writes. They divert discussion to "the Church in Spain," or "Catholic dictators" rather than the Catholic Church in the United States, writes the principal.

Father Hurley illustrates his point of non-persecution with examples of Catholic and Protestant cooperation he observed on a tour he made in Latin America.

He writes that in a hotel in Cali, Columbia was a sign in the lobby announcing: "The Churches of Cali Welcome You." Listed were four Catholic churches, two Baptist, a Lutheran, Episcopalian and Presbyterian church and a Hebrew synagogue.

DEALS WITH MORALS

Brindel's article in the Way deals with Catholic limitation of offspring by "rhythm" rather than by contraceptives. Brindel, a retired newspaperman and Catholic layman entitled his article, "What Do You Really Know About Morals?"

Father Hurley, who has been principal of Marin Catholic for more than a year, also writes a weekly column for the Catholic newspaper, Monitor.

Grace Lutheran Church To Hold Fete Tomorrow

The Grace Lutheran Church of Novato tomorrow will hold its tenth anniversary worship service at 11 a.m.

Guest speaker for the celebration will be Rev. G. E. Kirchner, pastor emeritus of St. Paulus Lutheran Church in San Francisco. Rev. Kirchner will also speak at the church's Sunday school worship service at 9:45 a.m.

The now 400-member congregation began in the Novato Community House with 20 persons at its first service. In 1955 construction of a sanctuary began and was completed a year later at 1787 Grant Avenue.

"Success in our work has not eluded us. For God's gracious blessing we wish to celebrate our anniversary with praise and thanksgiving," said Rev. Arthur Koehler, the church's pastor for the past six years.

New Priest Takes Two Churches

A priest from Seaside, Monterey County has become Vicar of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness and St. Aidea's Church in Bolinas.

Rev. Francis W. Read has been pastor for the past two years at St. Mathias' Church in Seaside. Previously he had been rector for twelve years at St. Stephen's Church in San Luis Obispo.

Father Read succeeds Rev. John D. Spear, who has become vicar at St. Patrick's Episcopal Church in El Cerrito.

Rev. Read will hold a Communion service at 7:30 a.m. on Sundays with a general worship service at 11 a.m. at Inverness. At the Bolinas parish worship services will be held at 9:15 a.m.

Church Announces Additions To Staff

Dr. John Milton Kelly, educator and authority on church music was among three additions to the staff of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael this week, announced pastor Wesley C. Baker.

Dr. Kelly, Professor of Sacred Music at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, has accepted the position of Minister of Music to the church.

Mrs. Leslie Grant has become church secretary and Glen Dale Hofstetter, an associate in pastoral counseling.

Dr. Kelly has served on the staffs of churches in San Francisco, Berkeley and Sacramento. Beginning in 1944 he served for five years as chief consultant in sacred music to the Presbyterian Church, nationally.

Seminary Curriculum Reformed And Applied

By PAUL MILLER

During the past week students at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo got their first real taste of the institution's "new curriculum."

The reformed system of study, initiated this fall, requires less courses than were formerly needed for a Bachelor of Divinity degree. This has been done to intensify study in fewer courses rather than have superficial study in many courses.

All study now falls into four areas: the Holy Scriptures; the Church Through the Centuries; the Church and the World; and the Ministry of the Church. The highest number of courses is required from the area of the Holy Scriptures.

The former curriculum actually had less areas, but required more courses. For example, for a Bachelor of Divinity degree under the old system, 143 units were required while only 136½ are now necessary.

Last year an entering junior (freshman) would have been required to take individual courses in the life of Christ, Old Testament history, Greek, Christian Doctrine, Preaching, and Christian Education Methods during his first quarter.

This Fall the junior students' curriculum has been cut down to a course called Redemptive History, a pastoral psychology course, a course in Systematic Theology, Greek, and a "field education" course. The education course will not credit the student with units, but is to be taken one hour a week.

The new system will not lessen study, but as Associate Professor Benjamin Reist put it: "It is an attempt to sink the well pipe of learning deeper rather than forcing students in three short years to draw a little knowledge from a large number of pools."

Why should scholarship go deeper at the seminary?

"A curriculum is a living thing that must reflect the changing needs of the Church's ministry while remaining faithful to the unchanging Gospel around which every particular curriculum revolves," said Associate Professor Neill Q. Hamilton.

The reflection of such a change felt needed is exemplified in the area of study, "the Church and the World." It has gathered into a single area and changed certain courses previously offered independently. Their purpose is "to help the student 'listen to the world,' so that the church will be more vitally aware of the real world to which it is called to be a minister," said Dr. Hamilton.

What do the students—to whom it really applies—think about it?

Commented Jack Atkin, senior and a graduate of UCLA, "It reflects the concern of a maturing American Church for the relevancy of the Gospel to this age—in short, I wish I were starting school this fall."

Pulpit Filled By Former Missionary

A new pastor has been selected by the Assembly of God (church) of San Rafael.

Rev. Harold E. Rhodes, pastor of the Community Church in Standard, Tuolumne County for six years, will take over duties next week from present pastor Louis Weston.

Rev. and Mrs. Rhodes were with the Foreign Mission Department of the Assemblies of God from 1945 to 1954. The couple served also as missionaries in Sierra Leone, West Africa.

Young Churchmen To Be Installed

Newly elected officers of the Episcopal Young Churchmen of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael will be instituted during the 11 a.m. worship service tomorrow.

Rev. John D. Riley will install Miss Maureen Callon as president; Jay McInnis (son of San Rafael Mayor John McInnis) as vice president; Miss Carol Fullerton as secretary and Miss Kris Hatch as treasurer. All the officers are residents of San Rafael.

Following the vesper worship service at 7 o'clock tomorrow the young churchmen will hold a barbecue in the parish hall.

Bishop To Speak In Mill Valley

Bishop Donald H. Tippett will speak at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the consecreation ceremonies of the year-old Mill Valley Methodist Church at Camino Alto and Sycamore Street.

Elected a Bishop of the Methodist Church in 1948, Bishop Tippett is in charge of the California-Nevada Conference and resides in Berkeley.

Rancher Takes Fairfax Pulpit

A former insurance man and Paso Robles rancher has become vicar of the Episcopal Church of St. Augustine in Fairfax.

Rev. Richard Beaumont has replaced Rev. Charles Carroll as pastor of St. Augustine. Rev. Carroll had both the Fairfax parish and the Downtown Episcopal Chapel in San Francisco. Rev. Carroll will remain as pastor of the Downtown Chapel and remain a resident of Fairfax.

Rev. Beaumont became a deacon at St. James Parish in Paso Robles where he served for about 10 years. He recently gave up his business and cattle ranch there to become a minister in the Episcopal Church. He will study theology at the Church Divinity School of the Pacific while fulfilling his duties at the Fairfax parish.

Christian Science

That true power belongs to God, not to matter, is the central theme from the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Unreality" which will be read at Christian Science worship services in Marin tomorrow.

Youth Officers

The Christian Adventure Group of the San Rafael Methodist Church have elected Genetha Day, president; Larry Ott, vice president, and Doreen Phelps, secretary-treasurer, announced Bernie Heare, sponsor.

FOUR OTHERS DIE

Plane Crash Kills 2 Army Generals

OAKLAND (AP) — Two Army generals and four other persons died yesterday in the flaming crash of a small Army transport plane in a foggy residential area near here.

The high ranking officers were:

Maj. Gen. Carl F. Fritzsche, 57, of Bedford, Ohio, commanding general of the huge Army training center at Fort Ord, and Brig. Gen. Thomas H. Hayes, 49, of Macon, Ga., Fritzsche's deputy commander.

The single-engine Otter hit the side of a hill just 200 yards from a house in the suburb of Orinda, 20 miles east of here.

Mrs. John Barron and her two children were in the home.

"I was feeding the children when I heard a roar. It sounded directly over the house," she said.

"Then I heard a choke-like an engine dying. Then came the sound of a crash. I looked out but couldn't see anything at first because of the fog. Then I began to see blue-orange flames."

Smashing against the hill at an altitude of 1,300 feet, the plane hit an East Bay municipal utilities district water tank and broke into pieces.

Most of the plane rolled 75 yards up the hill, burst into flames and touched off a brush fire which soon circled the aircraft.

It took firemen a half hour to put out the three-acre blaze and reach the victims.

Others killed were:

Lt. Robert L. Fisher, 27, Savannah, Ga., aide to Hayes.

Chief Warrant Officer Richard K. Brown, 38, Seattle, Wash.

Specialist /5c Donald E. Peterman, 25, North Hollywood, Calif.

Brown and Kiester were listed as copilots. The Army said it didn't know which one was at the controls.

The craft, flying from Fort Ord to Crissy Field at San Francisco's Presidio, was carrying Fritzsche to 6th Army headquarters for a briefing ceremony today with Courtney Johnson, assistant secretary of the Army.

Hayes was to escort a group of prominent civilians to an orientation conference at Fort Benning, Ga.

New Tax Toll Delivered: $18,455,000

Marin's new tax roll for 1960-61, with a record bill for $18,455,565, was turned over to County Tax Collector M. F. Donohue yesterday by the auditor.

The total bill, including utilities, is more than two million dollars over last year's total collection of $16,104,863.

Donohue announced that some 60,000 bills would be mailed out to taxpayers by Nov. 1. First installment payment deadline is Dec. 10, after which penalties will be imposed.

The public utilities will get the biggest single tax bills. Pacific Telephone and Telegraph must pay $888,066, and Pacific Gas and Electric Co. is close behind with $814,212. Northwestern Pacific must pay $110,458; Radio Corporation of America, $70,051; and Western California Telephone Co., $63,758.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Suspect Still At Large

More than 300 men combed the vast yard yesterday.

But they couldn't find Stanley Sly, 32, a former civilian guard at the base who is wanted in connection with the fatal shooting of Ruth A. Henderson, 33.

Laos Aid Suspended

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — American military aid to Laos has been suspended because of the "confused situation" in the Buddhist kingdom, U.S. Gen. Williston B. Palmer said today.

Palmer, who is director of the U.S. military assistance program in the region, said the action was taken because "we have not been sure who is responsible for anything."

Solicitor Fined

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A young man who said he was soliciting for cancer funds knocked on one door too many.

Theresa Faulkner telephoned police when the man asked for a contribution. She was a block captain for the Cancer Society and knew the annual drive is held in April.

In court yesterday, Albert Dotterer, 21, of Washington, was fined $50 each on four charges of illegal solicitation.

Game Refuge Offer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Wealthy Northern California cattleman has offered the state $351,500 for a former game refuge which adjoins his 70,000-acre ranch in Lassen and Modoc counties.

John P. Collins was the only bidder yesterday for the 5,214-acre reserve 40 miles north of Susanville.

Lack of use by hunters and changing habits of migratory birds prompted the State Fish and Game Department to give up the reserve.

Plane Victim Found

MONTEREY (UPI) — Bodies of a man and a woman were found yesterday in the wreckage of a plane believed piloted by Sacramento real estate developer John Jacobson.

The wreckage was found on a mountain near Carmel Highlands about five miles from Monterey.

Jacobson was believed to be carrying Mrs. Loyeda Dunn, 27, of Sacramento as a passenger.

Defense Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has marked an extra $169 million for defense spending. Much of it will go toward speeding up development of the Polaris submarine missile.

A Defense Department spokesman said that after Friday's allotments, a $274.7 million of the extra defense money appropriated by Congress still is not ear-marked. He said the subject is under review by top officials.

Something Missing

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — Three hundred friends and fellow workers gathered on Thursday at a surprise luncheon for Arthur Bjornstedt, who recently retired as a highway surveyor to open a business in nearby Ojai.

It was a great party, but something seemed to be lacking. As the time for speech-making drew near, they discovered what it was.

Nobody had remembered to invite Bjornstedt.

Miami Bus Strike

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Drivers on Miami and Miami Beach bus lines went on strike early today, paralyzing the two systems and leaving 150,000 passengers without transportation.

William D. Pawley, president of the Miami Transit Co., and Miami Beach Railway Co., made a last-minute offer of 4-cents-an-hour wage boost but drivers voted 433-15 to reject it.

Last buses came into the barns at 6 a.m. and none went out after the strike vote was completed about two hours earlier.

Plane Crash Kills 1

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — An airliner and a small plane sideswiped in flight over Orlando today. The Eastern Air Lines plane carrying 14 passengers landed safely but the pilot of the light craft was killed in the crash.

The sheriff's office identified the dead pilot as Pete Ayres, 25, who was flying a single engine craft.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Brown flies east for four days next week to lend a hand in Sen. John F. Kennedy's presidential campaign.

Hotel Strike Off

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A threatened strike of 2,000 employes against 13 Philadelphia hotels has been postponed temporarily pending a negotiating session Monday.

The strike had been set for midnight last night when the three-year contract of Local 568, Hotel, Motel and Club Employes Union, expired.

A union spokesman said the recess in 11th hour negotiations was called in deference to members of the Jewish faith serving on the negotiating committees who are observing Yom Kippur.

Independence Celebrated By Nigeria

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Nigeria, the most populous country in Africa, boisterously celebrated its independence today.

Cheering throngs took over this capital, once the hangout of slave traders, as Britain's Union Jack was lowered and the new green and white flag of Nigeria was raised over the nation of 36 million people precisely at midnight.

SYMBOLIC ACT

The symbolic act heralding independence was performed before 40,000 sweating Nigerians at Lagos race track 99 years after Britian annexed Lagos and two years after London told the Nigerian Parliament the country could have its freedom by asking for it.

Watching the throng in its rainbow of flowing robes and headdresses were Princess Alexandra, Queen Elizabeth's representative, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who represented President Eisenhower, and the diplomats of 57 other nations.

Rockefeller, in a statement, said the United States does not expect Nigeria, or other newly independent nations of Africa, to be a "committed ally."

NOT 'OUR INTEREST'

The United States, he said, wants Nigeria to serve its own interests, not "our interest or positions."

Nigeria has an educational system that has produced thousands of college graduates.

It has 600 physicians and 544 lawyers. More than 37,000 of the government staff of over 39,000 are Nigerians.

Applications Due Oct. 20 For Academies

Rep. Clement W. Miller of Corte Madera announced Oct. 20 as the deadline for the submitting of applications for entrance to one of the four U.S. service academies next July.

Candidates must be between the ages of 17 and 22, single, in good physical condition and have better than average high school grades, Miller said.

Miller may nominate 11 men to compete for his one Air Force Academy appointment from the First Congressional District; eight to compete for the two West Point appointments; 12 men for the two Naval Academy appointments; and 10 to try for an undetermined appointments to the Merchant Marine Academy.

Application forms may be obtained from Norman D. Williamson, 159 Carolyn Street, Ukiah. Williamson is chairman of the First District Service Academies Board. Marin County Municipal judge Richard M. Sims of 1 Rolling Hills Road, Tiburon, is a member of the academies board.

Honored At Assembly

Linda Seligman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Seligman, 114 Van Tassel Court, San Anselmo, recently was honored in an awards assembly at Mills College, Oakland, by receiving the Phi Beta Kappa Achievement award given to the returning sophomore with the highest grade point average. She was a 1959 graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School.

Little Burner Company To Stay In Business

H. C. Little Burner Co., has no plan to close its San Rafael operation or cut its payroll, although its property is on the market, R. H. Ginther, vice president and general manager, declared today.

The company announced this week, through the Marin Industrial Development Foundation, that its five-acre site and 65,000-square-foot building at Du Bois Street and Woodland Avenue is up for sale.

The announcement mentioned that Bastian-Morley Co., parent firm of H. C. Little, is cutting back its operations because of losing a contract for supplying warm air heaters for Crane Co., one of its major accounts.

However, Ginther said today the Little company intends, if possible, to lease back the plant from whoever purchases it.

"We have no intention of going out of business in San Rafael, nor of cutting our work force, which now numbers about 100," he declared.

Ginther said the sale and lease-back arrangement was being sought to raise capital because of "tightening national economy."

Although Bastian-Morley lost its contract with Crane Co., Ginther said, H. C. Little Co. and its affiliates, Temperature Appliance Manufacturing Co., still manufactures warm air heaters that are sold through the Crane organization.

3 Youths Held For Slaying

LOVELOCK, Nev. (AP)—Three California youths were booked here on an open charge of murder last night after an Idaho truck driver was shot fatally in his truck as it rolled northeastward on U.S. 40 between Lovelock and Winnemucca.

Sheriff A. E. Rose said the Sacramento youths admitted firing a .30-.30 rifle from their car from time to time along the highway. He booked Gary C. Henrichs, 19; William Hendricks, 17, and Gary Traversi, 18.

Killed was Orville Haylett, 31, of Payette, Ida. He was resting in the sleeper cab of the big truck, talking to the relief driver. The bullet hit Haylett's right arm and pierced his body just below the rib cage.

Door-To-Door Seller Draws Fine Of $50

An Oakland salesman with a record of petty theft and burglary was fined $50 in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for entering Marin homes to sell encyclopedias without a permit.

Dist Atty. Roger P. Garety declared he would rigidly prosecute solicitors who operate without a permit.

The salesman fined yesterday was Clifford Charles Thompson, 31. Deputy Sheriff Art V. Wiggins, who tracked him down Thursday night in the California Park area south of San Rafael, said the salesman entered homes on the pretense he was making a television survey Wiggins checked fingerprints and found Thompson had a record for petty theft and burglary in Alturas and Ukiah.

The officer warned that other solicitors using the television survey approach have been operating from Novato southward about two weeks. "Any citizen can demand that a salesman show a permit," said Wiggins. "If he doesn't have one, we want to know about it right away."

Thompson's boss, John Fox of Oakland, made an unsuccessful plea to Judge Leonard A. Thomas, alleging that the county's law requiring a permit is unconstitutional.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Charles L. Convis, prosecutor, argued that this was a legal ordinance whose purpose is for the county to retain some control over house - to - house solicitors. "What I don't like is a person getting into homes on a ruse, especially a man with a record," said Convis.

Thompson was working for Educational Enterprises of 428 13th Street, Oakland. His boss paid the fine.

Door-To-Door Seller Draws Fine Of $50

An Oakland salesman with a record of petty theft and burglary was fined $50 in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for entering Marin homes to sell encyclopedias without a permit.

Dist. Atty. Roger P. Garety declared he would rigidly prosecute solicitors who operate without a permit.

The salesman fined yesterday was Clifford Charles Thompson, 31. Deputy Sheriff Art V. Wiggins, who tracked him down Thursday night in the California Park area south of San Rafael, said the salesman entered homes on the pretense he was making a television survey Wiggins checked fingerprints and found Thompson had a record for petty theft and burglary in Alturas and Ukiah.

The officer warned that other solicitors using the television survey approach have been operating from Novato southward about two weeks. "Any citizen can demand that a salesman show a permit," said Wiggins. "If he doesn't have one, we want to know about it right away."

Thompson's boss, John Fox of Oakland, made an unsuccessful plea to Judge Leonard A. Thomas, alleging that the county's law requiring a permit is unconstitutional.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Charles L. Convis, prosecutor, argued that this was a legal ordinance whose purpose is for the county to retain some control over house - to - house solicitors. "What I don't like is a person getting into homes on a ruse, especially a man with a record," said Convis.

Thompson was working for Educational Enterprises of 428 13th Street, Oakland. His boss paid the fine.

Hotel Strike Off

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A threatened strike of 2,000 employes against 13 Philadelphia hotels has been postponed temporarily pending a negotiating session Monday.

The strike had been set for midnight last night when the three-year contract of Local 568, Hotel, Motel and Club Employes Union, expired.

A union spokesman said the recess in 11th hour negotiations was called in deference to members of the Jewish faith serving on the negotiating committees who are observing Yom Kippur.

Independence Celebrated By Nigeria

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Nigeria, the most populous country in Africa, boisterously celebrated its independence today.

Cheering throngs took over this capital, once the hangout of slave traders, as Britain's Union Jack was lowered and the new green and white flag of Nigeria was raised over the nation of 36 million people precisely at midnight.

SYMBOLIC ACT

The symbolic act heralding independence was performed before 40,000 sweating Nigerians at Lagos race track 99 years after Britian annexed Lagos and two years after London told the Nigerian Parliament the country could have its freedom by asking for it.

Watching the throng in its rainbow of flowing robes and headdresses were Princess Alexandra, Queen Elizabeth's representative, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who represented President Eisenhower, and the diplomats of 57 other nations.

Rockefeller, in a statement, said the United States does not expect Nigeria, or other newly independent nations of Africa, to be a "committed ally."

NOT 'OUR INTEREST'

The United States, he said, wants Nigeria to serve its own interests, not "our interest or positions."

Nigeria has an educational system that has produced thousands of college graduates.

It has 600 physicians and 544 lawyers. More than 37,000 of the government staff of over 39,000 are Nigerians.

Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, 48, who will head a delegation to New York when Nigeria, as expected, becomes the 99th member of the United Nations, is a quiet leader.

Application forms may be obtained from Norman D. Williamson, 159 Carolyn Street, Ukiah. Williamson is chairman of the First District Service Academies Board. Marin County Municipal judge Richard M. Sims of 1 Rolling Hills Road, Tiburon, is a member of the academies board.

Linda Seligman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Seligman, 114 Van Tassel Court, San Anselmo, recently was honored in an awards assembly at Mills College, Oakland, by receiving the Phi Beta Kappa Achievement award given to the returning sophomore with the highest grade point average. California Masons Install New Officials

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Alfred F. Breslauer, a San Francisco attorney, was installed yesterday as grand master of Masons in California.

Breslauer and Elmer W. Heald, a superior court judge from Imperial County who was named junior grand warden, were installed with other new officers at the 111th annual meeting of the California Masonic Grand Lodge in the Memorial Temple here.

Other new elective officers are Guy B. Mize of Pasadena, deputy grand master; Ira W. Coburn, San Francisco, senior grand warden; Arthur M. Warren, San Francisco, grand treasurer; Edward J. Siems, Berkeley, grand secretary; and Donald G. Campbell, San Marino, Grand Lecturer.

Little Burner Company To Stay In Business

H. C. Little Burner Co., has no plan to close its San Rafael operation or cut its payroll, although its property is on the market, R. H. Ginther, vice president and general manager, declared today.

The company announced this week, through the Marin Industrial Development Foundation, that its five-acre site and 65,000-square-foot building at DuBois Street and Woodland Avenue is up for sale.

The announcement mentioned that Bastian-Morley Co., parent firm of H. C. Little, is cutting back its operations because of losing a contract for supplying warm air heaters for Crane Co., one of its major accounts.

However, Ginther said today the Little company intends, if possible, to lease back the plant from whoever purchases it.

"We have no intention of going out of business in San Rafael, nor of cutting our work force, which now numbers about 100," he declared.

Ginther said the sale and lease-back arrangement was being sought to raise capital because of "tightening national economy."

Although Bastian-Morley lost its contract with Crane Co., Ginther said, H. C. Little Co. and its affiliates, Temperature Appliance Manufacturing Co., still manufactures warm air heaters that are sold through the Crane organization.

3 Youths Held For Slaying

LOVELOCK, Nev. (AP)—Three California youths were booked here on an open charge of murder last night after an Idaho truck driver was shot fatally in his truck as it rolled northeastward on U.S. 40 between Lovelock and Winnemucca.

Sheriff A. E. Rose said the Sacramento youths admitted firing a .30-.30 rifle from their car from time to time along the highway. He booked Gary C. Henrichs, 19; William Hendricks, 17, and Gary Traversi, 18.

Killed was Orville Haylett, 31, of Payette, Ida. He was resting in the sleeper cab of the big truck, talking to the relief driver. The bullet hit Haylett's right arm and pierced his body just below the rib cage.

NOT STACKED DECK

Felons' Fate May Be In The Cards

By JERRY HARRELL

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California convicts may someday win or lose parole on a shuffle of the cards.

It won't be a deck of playing cards, but a stack of punchcards scanned by an electronic brain for things in a man's record which indicate his chances for success on the outside.

The State Corrections Department reported today tests showed the electronic calculator can predict the potential parolee's chances of making good.

"The present system is crude but it works," the department said. It plans more study and revision.

The indicators were selected by extensive study of the files of 875 paroled four years ago.

Hundreds of items were picked and discarded in the search for keys to success or failure.

Finally the chosen indicators were put on punchcards and a million tabulations made in a half-hour run of the electronic brain.

The result was 12 indicators — items in a man's record which indicate his chance for successful parole—each with a relative point value ranging from four to 12. The top possible score was 76.

Indicators included: Did he have a prior record? Had he used an alias? Was his first offense car theft?

A "no" answer on the first question gave him 12 points; on the second 5 points; on the third 4 points.

The scientists call it "base expectancy," and liken it to an insurance company's tables for predicting life expectancy.

In the words of the department:

"The fact that a man used an alias doesn't mean directly that he will fail on parole, but it does usually indicate he's had an extensive criminal career and been arrested a number of times. What the researchers wanted were indicators that could be found in the files."

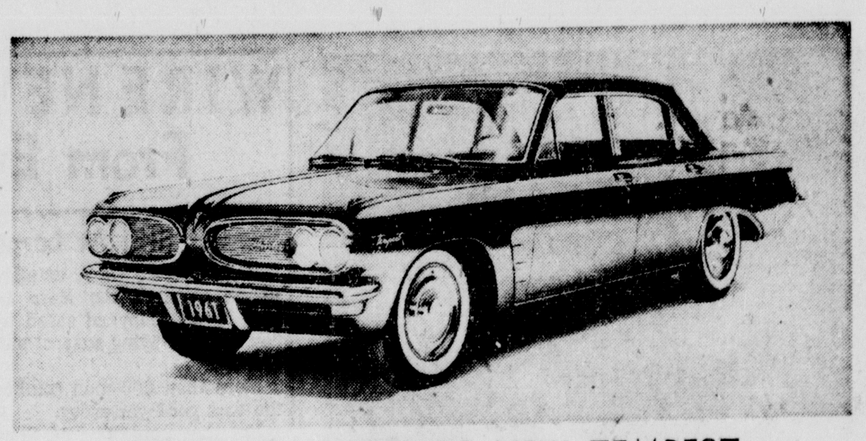

The record of a different group of 937 men paroled in 1956 were scored.

The researchers already know which parolees had succeeded and which had failed, since four years had passed.

The tabulations showed all those who scored 71 to 76 points succeeded.

Most of those who scored 44 or better succeeded. Most below that level failed.

All of those who scored below 22 points failed, and were back in prison.

Many Persons Suffered Permanent Eye Damage Watching Sun Eclipse

SAN JOSE (AP)—Many persons suffered permanent eye damage by staring at the sun's partial eclipse Sept. 20, a survey by ophthalmologists has disclosed.

A physician eye specialist said perhaps more than 200 persons in the San Francisco Bay Area were victims of eclipse burn.

He said probably 80 per cent of the victims were children because they were more curious than the adults and did not realize the danger of looking directly into the sun.

"A heat wave focused on the macula, a particularly sensitive part of the retina, burns a small hole in the retina," one physician explained. "This thermal burn is a permanent injury. There is no remedy."

He said the action of the eye lens in magnifying the sun's rays on the rear portion of the eye was much like that of a burning glass used to ignite wood or paper.

"And the damage is as severe," he commented. "Loss of all central vision from eclipse burn is rare, but a 30 to 40 per cent decrease is common. A person could still read, but with difficulty.

"The really tragic part of this is that the injury is preventable. Two photo negatives should provide enough protection to watch an eclipse."

Another physician said many children's eye burns will remain unknown until the vision defects are discovered in regular school eye examination.

California Medical Eye Council spokesman said the council confirmed the accuracy of the ophthalmologists' survey.

Newspaper and news service stories warned readers before the eclipse not to watch the sun without protective filters.

Tax Appraiser Job Lucrative? Not In Marin

The job of inheritance tax appraiser in Marin County is less lucrative than in the average California county, according to a report yesterday by State Controller Alan Cranston.

Cranston reported in Sacramento that California's 134 inheritance tax appraisers averaged $6,352 each in net earnings from state appraisal activity during the fiscal year ended June 30.

In Marin, appraiser Lee Holman earned $3,012, according to Cranston's report. The county's second inheritance tax appraiser, Mrs. Elaine B. Guthrie, was not appointed until near the end of the year.

Cranston called the average earnings "a far cry from reported earnings of up to $40,000 in earlier years." Actually no reporting of appraisal income was required until Cranston took office and set up the proceedure.

District Court Backlog Of Cases Trimmed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A slight net reduction was made in the backlog of civil cases in U.S. district courts in California in the 12 months ended June 30.

The annual report of Warren Olney III, director of the administrative office of the United States Courts, showed a net reduction of 49 cases.

CASES PENDING

The Northern district entered the year with 1,736 cases pending, and another 1,278 were filed during the year. The court disposed of 1,356 cases for a reduction in backlog of 78.

But the Southern district fell 29 cases further behind. With 1,266 cases pending and 1,687 filed during the year, the court disposed of 1,658 cases.

The median time interval between filing and disposition of civil cases in which a trial was held was 19.4 months in the Northern district and 13.7 months in the Southern district. For all 86 districts in the United States the median time interval was 17.8 months.

JUDGE CASE LOAD

The caseload per judge in the California courts was below the national average of 221 civil cases and 107 criminal proceedings. In the seven-judge Northern California district civil cases begun and terminated averaged 183 per judge and criminal proceedings average 105. In the 11-judge Southern district it was 153 civil cases and 122 criminal cases per judge.

The backlog of criminal cases increased from 236 to 248 in the Northern district and from 345 to 492 in the Southern district. In the Northern district 851 criminal proceedings were begun and 839 terminated during the year. In the Southern district, 1,955 proceedings were started and 1,808 completed.

Juanita Due Hearing Again On License

Juanita's Galley in Sausalito, which lost its on-sale beer license on Sept. 8, still has a chance to have the permit restored.

The State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control has granted Juanita Musson's request for a reconsideration of the case, her attorney Richard Gladstein of San Rafael disclosed yesterday.

After a hearing in San Rafael, the liquor officials revoked Juanita's beer license on grounds that she was not fit to have the permit. Miss Musson had been involved in several disturbances including drunkenness.

Attorney Gladstein won the right for a review of the case on grounds that Miss Musson was not represented by a lawyer at the first hearing and therefore did not receive a full and fair hearing.

Miss Musson's "character and reputation are such as to refute any charge or conclusion that it would be of benefit to the public welfare and morals to deprive her of the license," Gladstein argued.

Parking Meters Yield $7,110

The City of San Rafael received $7,110 from its 1,263 parking meters this month, City Treasurer Angelina J. Soldavini announced today.

Last month the city collected $6,876.05 and in Sept., 1959, $6,160.

The 942 meters in the parking meter district, which includes the four city-owned parking lots, produced $5,925. The remaining 321 street meters outside the district brought in $1,185.

PEN READY? NEXT WEEK IS FOR LETTER WRITERS

Next week is the time to write that letter you've been putting off so long, according to San Rafael Postmaster Warren H. Williams.

The reason: it's National Letter Writing Week, being promoted by the Post Office Department with the slogan, "Letters are links to friendship."

It seems the post office people, although they groan sometimes at the volume of second, third and fourth class mail, regard letters as a desirable source of revenue.

And, according to Williams, it's not true that "nobody writes letters any more."

There has been a revival of personal letter writing the past few years, he said.

Lowrie Yacht Harbor Asks Right To Dredge Harbor

The Lowrie Yacht Harbor at the foot of Third Street in San Rafael wants to dredge its harbor to a minimum depth of six feet and lay a submerged pipeline across the San Rafael Canal to funnel the silt to the south bank.

The application is being considered by the Army Corps of Engineers in San Francisco.

Although the minimum depth of the center of the harbor is 12 feet at lowest tide, there are shallows around the edges that drop to three feet of water. The plan would dump 10,000 cubic yards of mud and silt on the south bank tidelands.

B. R. (Bud) Lowrie of 238 Merrydale Road, San Rafael, the applicant, asked permission to lay an eight-inch pipeline from the yacht harbor to the south bank tidelands across from the intersection of Canal and Rafael Streets. There would be six feet of water above the pipe at lowest tide.

"It's strictly a maintenance job," Lowrie said. "It will help boats get in and out of the harbor." He said it would take about three weeks to do the job.

The Army engineers will determine whether the pipeline would hamper navigation in the canal. Objections to the proposal may be sent in triplicate to the corps office at 180 New Montgomery Street, San Francisco, before Oct. 28.

Conference Starts Monday On Aged

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Approximately 3,000 persons are expected here Monday to attend Gov. Edmund G. Brown's two-day conference on aging.

Participants will divide into 50 discussion groups and present their recommendations on such topics as economics and employment, health care and rehabilitation, and housing to a general session Tuesday. These will be part of California's presentation at the White House conference on aging next January.

Brown, who will address the opening session, said, that he had called the conference to put "our best brains to work intensively for new solutions."

Mosquitoes Due Another Big Spraying

Here's bad news for Marin County mosquitoes.

Another jeep sprayer will join the fleet of six jeeps maintained by the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

Manager G. Paul Jones announced today that the district directors bought a new cab-over-motor jeep for $2,434 from G. K. Hardt of Santa Rosa this week. Delivery is expected next week. A mist blower will be mounted on the jeep to be used in spraying of swamps and mosquito-infested areas.

Hardt was low bidder among six companies, the highest being $2,636. Normal cost of the jeep without discount is about $2,900, Jones said.

"A heat wave focused on the macula, a particularly sensitive part of the retina, burns a small hole in the retina," one physician explained. "This thermal burn is a permanent injury. There is no remedy."

He said the action of the eye lens in magnifying the sun's rays on the rear portion of the eye was much like that of a burning glass used to ignite wood or paper.

"And the damage is as severe," he commented. "Loss of all central vision from eclipse burn is rare, but a 30 to 40 per cent decrease is common. A person could still read, but with difficulty.

"The really tragic part of this is that the injury is preventable. Two photo negatives should provide enough protection to watch an eclipse."

Another physician said many children's eye burns will remain unknown until the vision defects are discovered in regular school eye examination.

California Medical Eye Council spokesman said the council confirmed the accuracy of the ophthalmologists' survey.

Newspaper and news service stories warned readers before the eclipse not to watch the sun without protective filters.

Tax Appraiser Job Lucrative? Not In Marin

The job of inheritance tax appraiser in Marin County is less lucrative than in the average California county, according to a report yesterday by State Controller Alan Cranston.

Cranston reported in Sacramento that California's 134 inheritance tax appraisers averaged $6,352 each in net earnings from state appraisal activity during the fiscal year ended June 30.

In Marin, appraiser Lee Holman earned $3,012, according to Cranston's report. The county's second inheritance tax appraiser, Mrs. Elaine B. Guthrie, was not appointed until near the end of the year.

Cranston called the average earnings "a far cry from reported earnings of up to $40,000 in earlier years." Actually no reporting of appraisal income was required until Cranston took office and set up the proceedure.

District Court Backlog Of Cases Trimmed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A slight net reduction was made in the backlog of civil cases in U.S. district courts in California in the 12 months ended June 30.

The annual report of Warren Olney III, director of the administrative office of the United States Courts, showed a net reduction of 49 cases.

CASES PENDING

The Northern district entered the year with 1,736 cases pending, and another 1,278 were filed during the year. The court disposed of 1,356 cases for a reduction in backlog of 78.

But the Southern district fell 29 cases further behind. With 1,266 cases pending and 1,687 filed during the year, the court disposed of 1,658 cases.

The median time interval between filing and disposition of civil cases in which a trial was held was 19.4 months in the Northern district and 13.7 months in the Southern district. For all 86 districts in the United States the median time interval was 17.8 months.

JUDGE CASE LOAD

The caseload per judge in the California courts was below the national average of 221 civil cases and 107 criminal proceedings. In the seven-judge Northern California district civil cases begun and terminated averaged 183 per judge and criminal proceedings average 105. In the 11-judge Southern district it was 153 civil cases and 122 criminal cases per judge.

The backlog of criminal cases increased from 236 to 248 in the Northern district and from 345 to 492 in the Southern district. In the Northern district 851 criminal proceedings were begun and 839 terminated during the year. In the Southern district, 1,955 proceedings were started and 1,808 completed.

Juanita Due Hearing Again On License

Juanita's Galley in Sausalito, which lost its on-sale beer license on Sept. 8, still has a chance to have the permit restored.

The State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control has granted Juanita Musson's request for a reconsideration of the case, her attorney Richard Gladstein of San Rafael disclosed yesterday.

After a hearing in San Rafael, the liquor officials revoked Juanita's beer license on grounds that she was not fit to have the permit. Miss Musson had been involved in several disturbances including drunkenness.

Attorney Gladstein won the right for a review of the case on grounds that Miss Musson was not represented by a lawyer at the first hearing and therefore did not receive a full and fair hearing.

Miss Musson's "character and reputation are such as to refute any charge or conclusion that it would be of benefit to the public welfare and morals to deprive her of the license," Gladstein argued.

Parking Meters Yield $7,110

The City of San Rafael received $7,110 from its 1,263 parking meters this month, City Treasurer Angelina J. Soldavini announced today.

Last month the city collected $6,876.05 and in Sept., 1959, $6,160.

The 942 meters in the parking meter district, which includes the four city-owned parking lots, produced $5,925. The remaining 321 street meters outside the district brought in $1,185.

Two San Rafael students are among the 445 freshmen men at University of Oregon, Eugene, pledged to 21 campus fraternities during the fall rush period. Richard Ried pledged Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and James Battaglia, Phi Kappa Psi.

PEN READY? NEXT WEEK IS FOR LETTER WRITERS

Next week is the time to write that letter you've been putting off so long, according to San Rafael Postmaster Warren H. Williams.

The reason: it's National Letter Writing Week, being promoted by the Post Office Department with the slogan, "Letters are links to friendship."

It seems the post office people, although they groan sometimes at the volume of second, third and fourth class mail, regard letters as a desirable source of revenue.

And, according to Williams, it's not true that "nobody writes letters any more."

There has been a revival of personal letter writing the past few years, he said.

Lowrie Yacht Harbor Asks Right To Dredge Harbor

The Lowrie Yacht Harbor at the foot of Third Street in San Rafael wants to dredge its harbor to a minimum depth of six feet and lay a submerged pipeline across the San Rafael Canal to funnel the silt to the south bank.

The application is being considered by the Army Corps of Engineers in San Francisco.

Although the minimum depth of the center of the harbor is 12 feet at lowest tide, there are shallows around the edges that drop to three feet of water. The plan would dump 10,000 cubic yards of mud and silt on the south bank tidelands.

B. R. (Bud) Lowrie of 238 Merrydale Road, San Rafael, the applicant, asked permission to lay an eight-inch pipeline from the yacht harbor to the south bank tidelands across from the intersection of Canal and Rafael Streets. There would be six feet of water above the pipe at lowest tide.

"It's strictly a maintenance job," Lowrie said. "It will help boats get in and out of the harbor." He said it would take about three weeks to do the job.

The Army engineers will determine whether the pipeline would hamper navigation in the canal. Objections to the proposal may be sent in triplicate to the corps office at 180 New Montgomery Street, San Francisco, before Oct. 28.

Conference Starts Monday On Aged

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Approximately 3,000 persons are expected here Monday to attend Gov. Edmund G. Brown's two-day conference on aging.

Participants will divide into 50 discussion groups and present their recommendations on such topics as economics and employment, health care and rehabilitation, and housing to a general session Tuesday. These will be part of California's presentation at the White House conference on aging next January.

Brown, who will address the opening session, said, that he had called the conference to put "our best brains to work intensively for new solutions."

Mosquitoes Due Another Big Spraying

Here's bad news for Marin County mosquitoes.

Another jeep sprayer will join the fleet of six jeeps maintained by the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District.

Manager G. Paul Jones announced today that the district directors bought a new cab-over-motor jeep for $2,434 from G. K. Hardt of Santa Rosa this week. Delivery is expected next week. A mist blower will be mounted on the jeep to be used in spraying of swamps and mosquito-infested areas.

Hardt was low bidder among six companies, the highest being $2,636. Normal cost of the jeep without discount is about $2,900, Jones said.

Stay Away From Cuba, State Department Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans should stay away from Cuba unless they have compelling reasons to go there, advises the State Department.

The statement yesterday came on the heels of another State Department suggestion that wives and children of American residents in Cuba—other than those stationed at the Guantanamo Bay Navy Base—should be sent back to this country.

The department said American tourists had asked whether they should travel to Cuba now, in view of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's anti-American campaign and the advice the department had given on American dependents.

The department said, "It is believed prudent to advise U.S. citizens to refrain from travel to and within Cuba unless less there are compelling reasons for such travel." It said some businessmen might have compelling reasons.

The American Embassy at Havana said 57 Americans have been detained by Cuban authorities since Jan. 1, either on no charges or on charges filed long after their arrest.

know why the Cubans chose her as the target for their spy charges. Three or four of the embassy employees lived in the same apartment building where the secret police allegedly caught a spy ring. They claimed they found her apartment key in the ring, but "of course I knew nothing about it."

She was "very, very frightened for a long period of time" when the police seized her. "The worst thing was not knowing why I was held and I didn't know how far they would go."

She gasped at yesterday's news that Fidel Castro has threatened to execute "American spies and saboteurs" caught in Cuba. "There but for the grace of God . . . ". She wondered about the fate of the people who had been jailed with her.

"I'm just not the spy type," she smiled. "All my Cuban friends must be laughing up their sleeves." She left many "dear friends" behind. She got to know Cubans well in every walk of life, and liked them very much. They are "wonderful people," she says.

Mrs. Lennox arrived in Cuba before the revolution. A few months later it erupted, and "I really felt I watched history happen." The embassy employees were all for Castro then, though she did think he was a little "dramatic."

Now, she feels, he is trying to export his revolution to other Latin American countries. "All the countries are going to have a problem with this man."

Everybody knows there is opposition to him, she says. It is strong in the upper classes and making headway in the other classes, she adds.

"His ideals were wonderful . . . but everybody is realizing day by day that he is not carrying them out. He is a traitor to his own revolution," she says.

to free them from Communist rule.

"Our task is to pursue a policy of patiently encouraging freedom and carefully pressuring tyranny," Kennedy said, "a policy that looks toward evolution, not revolution — a policy that depends on peace, not war."

Housewife Hurt As Auto Rolls

A 29-year-old Novato housewife was reported in fair condition at the Hamilton Air Force Base hospital where she was taken early this morning after her car rolled over on Highway 101 just north of the base north gate.

Mrs. Sarah F. Stamps of 1032 Third Street was being X-rayed. Her injuries have not yet been determined.

Mrs. Stamps told the California Highway Patrol she swerved to miss a car that pulled in front of her from the right, lost control and her car overturned. The patrol said her car traveled 51 feet further on its top after it rolled over, and came to rest on the highway facing southwest.

Nixon Representative To Speak Tomorrow

A spokesman for Richard M. Nixon will be featured on "Let's Face Facts," the KTIM broadcast to be presented tomorrow at 12:15 p.m., by the Marin County Republican Central Committee.

Miss Henriette Steinegger, a San Francisco attorney, will be questioned by Mrs. Barbara Stidham of San Rafael, Mrs. Frances Pershing of Mill Valley, and Mrs. J. Lee Chaille of San Anselmo, the regular moderator of the series.

Cuba Holds First Execution In Months

HAVANA (UPI) — A Cuban "counter-revolutionary" was executed by a firing squad this morning at La Cabana fortress. It was the first execution here in several months and came on the heels of premier Fidel Castro's announcement that any "American spies" found on Cuban soil would be shot.

The victim was Roberto Cruz Alfonso who allegedly was the gunman in the attempted assassination of anti-American radio commentator Jose Pardo Llada last July.

Prospect Dim For Averting G.E. Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prospects of averting a nationwide strike in General Electric plants at midnight tonight dimmed today despite last-minute efforts by federal mediators. After a morning meeting of mediators and representatives of the company and the International Union of Electrical Workers, James B. Carey, IUE president, said there had been "nothing productive."

A company spokesman was equally pessimistic about the chances of heading off a strike that would affect 70,000 union members in about 50 plants across the nation.

Carey said the absence of "responsible officers" of G.E. at the meeting was blocking a possible settlement. He said Philip D. Moore, head of the G.E. negotiating committee, was "torpedoing" the talks.

Asked about dissension in the union over the strike action, Carey said the action taken by the union Sept. 30 in calling a strike for midnight tonight is binding on all units and members.

He admitted it might take one day to shut down some plants but said that could be done tomorrow.

Autos Collide On Gate Span

A San Francisco man was arrested on a drunk driving charge last night after his car collided on the Golden Gate Bridge with another auto driven by a San Rafael man, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The San Rafael resident, Jeffrey J. Tyroler, 20, of 36 Golden Hind Boulevard, was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises and abrasions of the left shoulder, then released.

Booked on drunken driving and drunk charges was Donald T. Nelson, 28.

The highway patrol said that judging from the severe damage to the cars, Nelson was driving an estimated 60-65 miles in a 45-mile zone.

Tyroler told the patrol the other car was going at high speed, cut in from the fast lane to pass a slower vehicle, but didn't pull back to the fast lane and struck him. Nelson said he didn't know how the accident happened.

made his main points when he:

1. Said disarmament is impossible unless Communist China is brought into the United Nations.

2. Warned the United States that "sooner or later, it will have to learn that a democratic system is possible only under communism."

3. Attacked Spanish Premier Francisco Franco as "the hangman of the Spanish people."

4. Denounced the United States for racial discrimination.

5. Said the United States was responsible for violence in South Korea and South Viet Nam.

6. Accused the United Nations of having a "double standard" for Western and Communist speakers and issued a veiled threat that Russia and its satellites might pull out and form their own world organization.

His tirade brought Spanish Ambassador Jose Felix de Lequierica to his feet shouting, and led U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth to take the rostrum for the second time during the session to answer Khrushchev's "distorted image of the United States."

WADSWORTH DEFENSE

"There is more freedom, there is more opportunity, there is more well-being for every American—I say every American, regardless of race, color or creed—in the United States than there is in any Communist country," Wadsworth said. "Anybody who knows America knows this to be true."

Wadsworth dampened the already slight prospects for a Khrushchev-Eisenhower meeting now when he said:

"I can only hope that the intemperate outbursts which we heard this morning will not be repeated and that the oft-reiterated position of the United States that we are ready to negotiate whenever there is sincerity in negotiation and a possibility of success will again prevail."

Other non-Communist delegates found Khrushchev's performance "worrisome" and "just propaganda."

Never has the assembly witnessed a scene such as the head of a government ignoring the chair and shouting while the gavel rapped repeatedly.

'FRANCO SYSTEM'

Working up to a red-faced tantrum, Khrushchev referred to U.S. friendship with Spain, "where now exists the Franco system."

"Who is Franco?" he said. "He is the hangman of the Spanish people who cast down their government and its legitimately elected parliament . . ."

Boland banged the gavel but the Russian, wildly waving his arms above his head, went right on shouting.

Khrushchev turned his anger from Franco to Boland when he was given the floor to continue.

He accused the United Nations of maintaining a "double standard" for communist and western speakers and said:

"What would happen to the United Nations if you do not admit China and if we were to go away from the United Nations—we, the socialist countries—and if we were to organize our own United Nations and admit those countries who wish to join our United Nations?

"This is what would be the burying ground of the United Nations — its tomb. There would be no more United Nations but only blocs of states that are at war with each other. We do not wish that."

Priest Appointed To State Board

A priest who formally supervised the Catholic Social Services office in San Rafael has been appointed to the state board of social work examiners by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Rev. Walter H. Doyle, 43, director of Social Service in Stockton since 1953, was named to fill out the term of the late Edward J. Wren of San Francisco, which expires Jan. 15.

Father Doyle was assigned to the San Rafael social service office in 1948. He is a past member of the governor's committee on children and youth, member of the National Assn. of Social Workers and chairman of the San Joaquin County Housing Authority.

The board of social work examiners issues credentials to public and private social workers in the state.

U.N. Ghana Troops Bow, Leave Congo Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—United Nations forces from Ghana were moving out of Camp Leopold II today at the request of Congo strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu.

The Ghana forces were being shifted to a new encampment just outside Leopoldville.

Mobutu said he needed room in the camp for more of his own Congolese troops, but there appeared to be another reason for the removal of the Ghana soldiers.

Mobutu has bitterly complained in the last few days that they have been favoring ousted Premier Patrice Lumumba and have refused to give protection to Mobutu's group of college graduate technicians who are trying to run the country.

Ghana forces will continue to patrol Lepoldville but they are scheduled to be relieved soon by Tunisians.

Mobutu said that on Sept. 12 Red China refused Lumumba's request of Sept. 8 for "peoples volunteers" but offered a million pounds ($2.8 million) aid.

Mobutu said Chinese Premier Chou En-lai replied on Sept. 12 that the dispatch of volunteers to the Congo was out of the question "in view of the vast distance which separates China from the Congo and of the present confused situation in the Congo."

The Chinese reply was found among Lumumba's papers during his brief arrest about two weeks ago, Mobutu said.

S.F. Forger Faces Marin Charges

San Rafael police took Robert A. Ellingham, 21, from San Francisco City Prison to the Marin County Jail Thursday to face a forgery charge.

Ellingham, of San Francisco, is accused of taking a gasoline credit card from another San Franciscan, Adolph Gasser, last January and using it to buy gasoline all the way to Indiana. Police charge him with forging Gasser's name to purchases at the Gas-O-Teria station at Second Street and Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael on Jan. 2 and 3.

He was apprehended by San Francisco police in February on forgery charges and released yesterday after a six-month term in city prison.

Lucille Forde Mass Planned

A requiem mass will be sung for Lucille E. Forde, 66, of San Anselmo, Monday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo.

Mrs. Forde, widow of Edward A. Forde, founder of the E. A. Forde Co. road paving company of Corte Madera, died at her home at 117 Morningside Drive, Thursday after a long illness.

She was a native of Michigan and resident of California for 50 years. She moved to the Hub City in 1920.

During World War I Mrs. Forde served as a yeoman in the U.S. Navy.

Survivors include three sons, Edward A. Forde of Hawaii, William R. Forde of San Rafael, John E. Forde of Greenbrae; one sister, Mrs. Maude Edlefsen, and one brother Theodore Whelan, both of Portland, Ore., and 12 grandchildren.

The funeral cortege will leave the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo at 9 a.m. Monday and proceed to St. Anselm's Church where the requiem mass will be sung. The rosary will be recited at the funeral home 8 p.m. Sunday. Interment will be at the Golden Gate National Cemetery.

Rings Worth $240 Stolen

Two gold rings worth $240 left the Swiss Watchmaker shop in the Corte Madera Shopping center yesterday afternoon without bothering to pause at the cash register on the way out.

According to Eric Mathais, proprietor of the store, the rings disappeared sometime between 2 and 5:15 p.m. The only unusual incident that marred his afternoon, he said, was a visit by a group of three girls and an older woman who were in the store about an hour before closing time. He observed the woman near the window display from which the rings are now missing.

One of the rings was a $180 man's white gold ring with a solitaire diamond. The other, he said, was a lady's ring with two rubies and an emerald, valued at $60.

Stay Away From Cuba, State Department Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans should stay away from Cuba unless they have compelling reasons to go there, advises the State Department.

She was "very, very frightened for a long period of time" when the police seized her. "The worst thing was not knowing why I was held and I didn't know how far they would go."

She gasped at yesterday's news that Fidel Castro has threatened to execute "American spies and saboteurs" caught in Cuba. "There but for the grace of God . . . ". She wondered about the fate of the people who had been jailed with her.

"I'm just not the spy type," she smiled. "All my Cuban friends must be laughing up their sleeves." She left many "dear friends" behind. She got to know Cubans well in every walk of life, and liked them very much. They are "wonderful people," she says.

Mrs. Lennox arrived in Cuba before the revolution. A few months later it erupted, and "I really felt I watched history happen." The embassy employees were all for Castro then, though she did think he was a little "dramatic."

Now, she feels, he is trying to export his revolution to other Latin American countries. "All the countries are going to have a problem with this man."

Everybody knows there is opposition to him, she says. It is strong in the upper classes and making headway in the other classes, she adds.

to free them from Communist rule.

"Our task is to pursue a policy of patiently encouraging freedom and carefully pressuring tyranny," Kennedy said, "a policy that looks toward evolution, not revolution — a policy that depends on peace, not war."

Housewife Hurt As Auto Rolls

A 29-year-old Novato housewife was reported in fair condition at the Hamilton Air Force Base hospital where she was taken early this morning after her car rolled over on Highway 101 just north of the base north gate.

Mrs. Sarah F. Stamps of 1032 Third Street was being X-rayed. Her injuries have not yet been determined.

Mrs. Stamps told the California Highway Patrol she swerved to miss a car that pulled in front of her from the right, lost control and her car overturned. The patrol said her car traveled 51 feet further on its top after it rolled over, and came to rest on the highway facing southwest.

Cuba Holds First Execution In Months

HAVANA (UPI) — A Cuban "counter-revolutionary" was executed by a firing squad this morning at La Cabana fortress. It was the first execution here in several months and came on the heels of premier Fidel Castro's announcement that any "American spies" found on Cuban soil would be shot.

The victim was Roberto Cruz Alfonso who allegedly was the gunman in the attempted assassination of anti-American radio commentator Jose Pardo Llada last July.

Prospect Dim For Averting G.E. Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prospects of averting a nationwide strike in General Electric plants at midnight tonight dimmed today despite last-minute efforts by federal mediators. After a morning meeting of mediators and representatives of the company and the International Union of Electrical Workers, James B. Carey, IUE president, said there had been "nothing productive."

A company spokesman was equally pessimistic about the chances of heading off a strike that would affect 70,000 union members in about 50 plants across the nation.

Carey said the absence of "responsible officers" of G.E. at the meeting was blocking a possible settlement. He said Philip D. Moore, head of the G.E. negotiating committee, was "torpedoing" the talks.

Asked about dissension in the union over the strike action, Carey said the action taken by the union Sept. 30 in calling a strike for midnight tonight is binding on all units and members.

He admitted it might take one day to shut down some plants but said that could be done tomorrow.

Autos Collide On Gate Span

A San Francisco man was arrested on a drunk driving charge last night after his car collided on the Golden Gate Bridge with another auto driven by a San Rafael man, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The San Rafael resident, Jeffrey J. Tyroler, 20, of 36 Golden Hind Boulevard, was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises and abrasions of the left shoulder, then released.

The highway patrol said that judging from the severe damage to the cars, Nelson was driving an estimated 60-65 miles in a 45-mile zone.

Tyroler told the patrol the other car was going at high speed, cut in from the fast lane to pass a slower vehicle, but didn't pull back to the fast lane and struck him. Nelson said he didn't know how the accident happened.

NIKITA

made his main points when he:

1. Said disarmament is impossible unless Communist China is brought into the United Nations.

2. Warned the United States that "sooner or later, it will have to learn that a democratic system is possible only under communism."

3. Attacked Spanish Premier Francisco Franco as "the hangman of the Spanish people."

4. Denounced the United States for racial discrimination.

5. Said the United States was responsible for violence in South Korea and South Viet Nam.

6. Accused the United Nations of having a "double standard" for Western and Communist speakers and issued a veiled threat that Russia and its satellites might pull out and form their own world organization.

His tirade brought Spanish Ambassador Jose Felix de Lequierica to his feet shouting, and led U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth to take the rostrum for the second time during the session to answer Khrushchev's "distorted image of the United States."

WADSWORTH DEFENSE

"There is more freedom, there is more opportunity, there is more well-being for every American—I say every American, regardless of race, color or creed—in the United States than there is in any Communist country," Wadsworth said. "Anybody who knows America knows this to be true."

Wadsworth dampened the already slight prospects for a Khrushchev-Eisenhower meeting now when he said:

"I can only hope that the intemperate outbursts which we heard this morning will not be repeated and that the oft-reiterated position of the United States that we are ready to negotiate whenever there is sincerity in negotiation and a possibility of success will again prevail."

Other non-Communist delegates found Khrushchev's performance "worrisome" and "just propaganda."

Never has the assembly witnessed a scene such as the head of a government ignoring the chair and shouting while the gavel rapped repeatedly.

'FRANCO SYSTEM'

Working up to a red-faced tantrum, Khrushchev referred to U.S. friendship with Spain, "where now exists the Franco system."

"Who is Franco?" he said. "He is the hangman of the Spanish people who cast down their government and its legitimately elected parliament . . ."

Boland banged the gavel but the Russian, wildly waving his arms above his head, went right on shouting.

Khrushchev turned his anger from Franco to Boland when he was given the floor to continue.

He accused the United Nations of maintaining a "double standard" for communist and western speakers and said:

"What would happen to the United Nations if you do not admit China and if we were to go away from the United Nations—we, the socialist countries—and if we were to organize our own United Nations and admit those countries who wish to join our United Nations?

"This is what would be the burying ground of the United Nations — its tomb. There would be no more United Nations but only blocs of states that are at war with each other. We do not wish that."

Priest Appointed To State Board

A priest who formally supervised the Catholic Social Services office in San Rafael has been appointed to the state board of social work examiners by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Rev. Walter H. Doyle, 43, director of Social Service in Stockton since 1953, was named to fill out the term of the late Edward J. Wren of San Francisco, which expires Jan. 15.

Father Doyle was assigned to the San Rafael social service office in 1948. He is a past member of the governor's committee on children and youth, member of the National Assn. of Social Workers and chairman of the San Joaquin County Housing Authority.

The board of social work examiners issues credentials to public and private social workers in the state.

U.N. Ghana Troops Bow, Leave Congo Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—United Nations forces from Ghana were moving out of Camp Leopold II today at the request of Congo strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu.

Mobutu said he needed room in the camp for more of his own Congolese troops, but there appeared to be another reason for the removal of the Ghana soldiers.

Mobutu has bitterly complained in the last few days that they have been favoring ousted Premier Patrice Lumumba and have refused to give protection to Mobutu's group of college graduate technicians who are trying to run the country.

Ghana forces will continue to patrol Lepoldville but they are scheduled to be relieved soon by Tunisians.

Mobutu said that on Sept. 12 Red China refused Lumumba's request of Sept. 8 for "peoples volunteers" but offered a million pounds ($2.8 million) aid.

Mobutu said Chinese Premier Chou En-lai replied on Sept. 12 that the dispatch of volunteers to the Congo was out of the question "in view of the vast distance which separates China from the Congo and of the present confused situation in the Congo."

The Chinese reply was found among Lumumba's papers during his brief arrest about two weeks ago, Mobutu said.

S.F. Forger Faces Marin Charges

San Rafael police took Robert A. Ellingham, 21, from San Francisco City Prison to the Marin County Jail Thursday to face a forgery charge.

Ellingham, of San Francisco, is accused of taking a gasoline credit card from another San Franciscan, Adolph Gasser, last January and using it to buy gasoline all the way to Indiana. Police charge him with forging Gasser's name to purchases at the Gas-O-Teria station at Second Street and Lincoln Avenue in San Rafael on Jan. 2 and 3.

He was apprehended by San Francisco police in February on forgery charges and released yesterday after a six-month term in city prison.

Lucille Forde Mass Planned

A requiem mass will be sung for Lucille E. Forde, 66, of San Anselmo, Monday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo.

Mrs. Forde, widow of Edward A. Forde, founder of the E. A. Forde Co. road paving company of Corte Madera, died at her home at 117 Morningside Drive, Thursday after a long illness.

She was a native of Michigan and resident of California for 50 years. She moved to the Hub City in 1920.

During World War I Mrs. Forde served as a yeoman in the U.S. Navy.

Survivors include three sons, Edward A. Forde of Hawaii, William R. Forde of San Rafael, John E. Forde of Greenbrae; one sister, Mrs. Maude Edlefsen, and one brother Theodore Whelan, both of Portland, Ore., and 12 grandchildren.

The funeral cortege will leave the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo at 9 a.m. Monday and proceed to St. Anselm's Church where the requiem mass will be sung. The rosary will be recited at the funeral home 8 p.m. Sunday. Interment will be at the Golden Gate National Cemetery.

Rings Worth $240 Stolen

Two gold rings worth $240 left the Swiss Watchmaker shop in the Corte Madera Shopping center yesterday afternoon without bothering to pause at the cash register on the way out.

According to Eric Mathais, proprietor of the store, the rings disappeared sometime between 2 and 5:15 p.m. The only unusual incident that marred his afternoon, he said, was a visit by a group of three girls and an older woman who were in the store about an hour before closing time. He observed the woman near the window display from which the rings are now missing.

One of the rings was a $180 man's white gold ring with a solitaire diamond. The other, he said, was a lady's ring with two rubies and an emerald, valued at $60.

National Syndicate Sought In Grid Fix

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Police today probed the possibility a nationwide betting syndicate was involved in the attempted bribe of an Oregon football player. It was the second attempt to fix a major college game this season, and police said the two cases may be connected.

Michigan State Police Lt. Carl Robinson disclosed the attempt to influence the result of last Saturday's Oregon-Michigan game. Robinson said Webfoot halfback Mickey Bruce nipped the plan by telling his athletic director and coach about a bribery offer.

Robinson, chief of the state police rackets squad, said Bruce was offered $5,000 to "let a pass receiver behind him" and induce quarterback Dave Grosz "to call the wrong plays."

The lieutenant said A. David Budin, 27, a Brooklyn, N.Y., schoolteacher, and former college athlete, was arrested, but could be charged only with registering at a hotel under a false name. Robinson said two gamblers apparently were tipped off and fled before police were able to raid the nearby Dearborn Inn, where the men and the Oregon team were registered Sept. 23, the day before the game.

Budin pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge against him and was fined $110. He was captain of the Brooklyn College basketball team two years ago.

He apparently was a go-between for the gamblers, Robinson said. The officer said Budin told him he didn't know the gamblers by name, but thought they were from Miami.

This was the second abortive bribery attempt in the college campaign that is just three weeks old today.

An attempt to fix the Florida State-Florida game last Saturday at Gainesville, Fla., also was forestalled. In that one, Florida fullback Jon MacBeth was offered $1,500, but tipped off police. A gambler and a student were arrested.

Robinson said police were investigating the chance of a link between the two fix offers. University of Michigan officials said they are convinced the two cases are linked. Florida reports also dealt with the possibility of a connection between the two incidents.

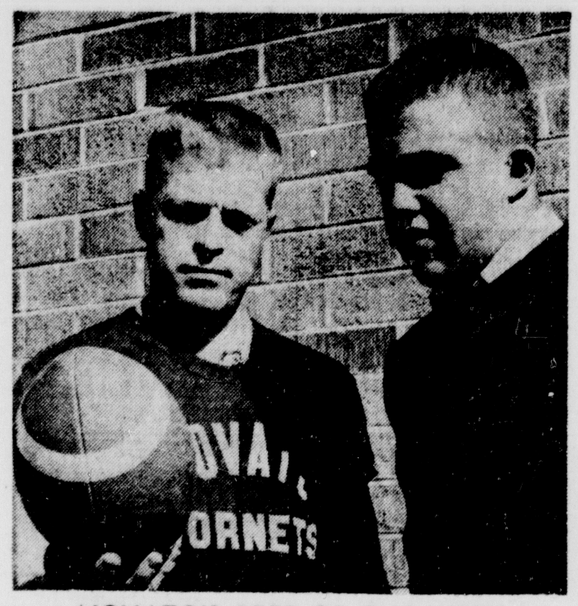

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn., college athletics' ruling body, will be called into the investigation, said Leo Harris, Oregon athletic director.

In Tallahassee, Fla., Leonard R. Mellon, head of the anti-rackets section of the Florida attorney general's office called on the NCAA to take immediate action to deal with bribe attempts.

Robinson quoted Bruce, 19, a junior from San Diego, Calif., as saying he first was contacted by Budin when the Oregon team arrived at Willow Run Airport Sept. 23. Robinson said Bruce again was approached that day at the Dearborn Inn by Budin and the two men.

Bruce was offered $5,000 and turned it down. He relayed the offer to Coach Len Casanova, who told Harris. Harris notified the FBI, and state police were called in.

Detectives rushed to the Dearborn Inn, where they were informed the gamblers had checked out. Budin appeared at the room next morning—the day of the game—and was arrested. He was carrying $1,100.

Yanks Shatter Major League Homer Record

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Yankees, marking the 33rd anniversary of Babe Ruth's 60th home run by cracking their American League homer mark, now have a 13-game winning streak as they barrel along toward next week's World Series.

But they still haven't received a convincing pitching performance from one of Manager Casey Stengel's nominees for the starting assignment at Pittsburgh next Wednesday against the National League champion Pirates.

Home runs by Tony Kubek and pinch-hitter Jess Gonder gave the Yankees a season total of 192, bettering the A.L. record they set with 190 in 1956, as they beat Boston 6-5 with three runs in the ninth inning last night.

It was exactly 33 years ago that Ruth hit his record 60th —off Washington's Tom Zachary at Yankee Stadium on Sept. 30, 1927.

It was in 1927, too, that the Yankees swept four straight from Pittsburgh in the World Series with the help of relief pitcher Willey Moore, who saved the first game and then pitched a complete game in the finale.

At the moment, it looks like the big job again will fall to Yankee relievers as New York once more faces the Pirates.

Of the three likely starters considered by Stengel — Whitey Ford, Art Ditmar and Bob Turley—neither Ford nor Ditmar has been impressive in tune-ups. Ditmar, the Yanks' top winner with 15, was tagged for five hits and one run in four frames last night.

While the Yankees rolled up the majors' longest streak since they won 13 in 1954, the Chicago White Sox tied idle Baltimore for second place by beating Cleveland 5-4 in 13 innings on Joe Ginsberg's single.

Detroit beat Kansas City 5-3 with four unearned runs in the only other game scheduled in the A.L.

In the National League, Milwaukee walloped the Pirates and 20-game winner Vern Law 13-2. That assured the Braves of no worse than a tie with St. Louis for second-place money after the Cards lost 2-1 at San Francisco. Los Angeles beat Chicago's Cubs 7-5, and Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 7-6 in 14 innings.

Four singles and a mental lapse by rookie second baseman Marion Coughtry of the Red Sox gave the Yankees their runs as they came from behind in the ninth. After singles by Bobby Richardson, pinch-hitter Gil McDougald, Hector Lopez and Roger Maris tied it 5-5 with one out, Lopez trotted in with the winning run as Coughtry passed up a throw to home on Bob Cerv's ground ball and attempted to run down Maris.

Duke Maas (4-1) was the winner as the last of five Yank pitchers. Tom Brewer (10-15) was the loser in relief.

Sausalito Yachtsman Buys Famed 83-Footer Pursuit

By ALFRED MATSON

One of the last of the big 83-foot M Class sloops built in the lush 20s and still active in racing will soon furnish added lustre to the already star-studded fleet of ocean thoroughbreds on San Francisco Bay.

The Pursuit has been purchased by Ronald Mac Annan, Sausalito yachtsman, from actor Burt Lancaster and Ben Hecht of Hollywood and manned by a local crew including John Rumsey of Belvedere.

The Pursuit is a sister ship of the Windward which was an active participant on the bay for several years and finally came to an untimely end on the coast of Baja California.

In those days, as it somewhat dwarfed the competition, it was dubbed "The Monster." But while today's newcomer will still outsize its rivals, the contrast will be far less noticeable.

She is expected to reach her new home port of Sausalito early tomorrow afternoon.

The event will tie in nicely with the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce's Regatta Day today. The program is headed by the annual Sausalito Chamber of Commerce perpetual trophy race for the cruiser contingent.

Sanctioned by the NCPCA and sponsored by the Sausalito Cruising Club, the race has attracted over 50 entrants.

Another feature this weekend is the Small Yacht Racing Assn. regatta off the St. Francis Y.C. tomorrow. Of interest to many Marin small boat sailors, the start will be at noon and the courses will be of the short channel variety.

This is the semi windup of the SYRA's program for 1960 and, with the champion's crown still in doubt in several of the participating classes, a heavy entry list is expected.

San Diegan Leads In Hesperia Tournament

HESPERIA (AP)—San Diego's Bill Blanton was showing the way with a 66 today as play began in the second round of the Hesperia Open Golf Tournament.

Blanton scorched the Hesperia Country Club course yesterday with 33-33—66, six under par. He holed an 8-iron shot for an eagle 2 on the 430-yard 10th hole, a par four.

There was a four-way tie for second place among Joe Kirkwood Jr., John McMullin, Bill Johnston and Jim McPhate.

Hickey Shakes Up 49ers For Ram Tilt

Coach Red Hickey of the San Francisco 49ers shook up his defensive line today and announced that Leo Nomellini and Monte Clark would be on the bench for the start of the Los Angeles Rams game tomorrow at Kezar Stadium.

If Nomellini fails to start, it will mean that his string of being in the lineup at the opening whistle in 122 consecutive games will be broken. However, he probably will see action later in the battle.

In place of Clark and Nomellini will be Henry Schmidt and Dan Colchico. Another change will find Jim Ridlon as a defensive back in place of the injured Dave Baker.

But the 49er offensive backfield will be the same as usual: Y. A. Tittle at quarter; Hugh McElhenny and R. C. Owens at halves and J. D. Smith at fullback.

The Los Angeles offensive backfield will start with Bill Wade at quarter, Jon Arnett and Clendon Thomas at halves and Ollie Matson at full. Rookie Dick Bass of College of Pacific, used sparingly so far this year, is expected to see more action than he has in any single game.

With Del Shofner still hampered by injuries, the Rams plan to start rookie Carroll Dale from Virginia Polytechnic Institute at offensive left end. Including a one-handed touchdown pass grab, the rookie gained 106 yards on five catches against the Cardinals.

Quarterback Wade completed 15 of 24 passes against the Cards but had three intercepted.

For the 49ers, the outstanding rookie in last week's opener was Monty Stickles, the No. 1 draft choice from Notre Dame. The 232-pound offensive end caught eight passes for 123 yards.

Kentfield Youth Wins Rifle Award

The Expert Rifleman Medal, second highest award in American junior shooting, has been won by Charles Bromedge Cauldwell of 210 Kent Avenue, Kentfield, the National Rifle Assn. announced today.

Shooting several hundred targets in the last few months the new expert marksman fired his way through 13 lower NRA qualifications to achieve his new high rating. With one more set of targets to fire the new expert will up his rating to Distinguished Rifleman, the select top rating for the junior shooters of the nation.

In the Hawaiian League Ed Brice had a 614 series that included a 235 solo.

The Mixed Doubles League got a fine 629 performance from Mac McFarland. His games were 206, 180 and 243.

Bill Wagner of the Novato Merchants League had a 563 total.

In the Nave Glamor Gals League Lory Amaral shot a 526 series and Mardy Lax had a 207 line.

Tam Defeated By Riordan High, 14 To 6

By MIKE ZIFCAK

Tamalpais Indians were defeated by a solid and well-drilled Riordan High School club, 14-6, last night at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium.

Plagued by such injuries as Norm Krueter, Sammy Helms and Ron Foster, the Indians in their first three games have yet to assemble a well knit offensive unit.

During the first half Riordan displayed a powerful offense, while Tam showed a porous defense. Riordan was in complete control of the action in the first quarter as the Indians were able to execute only four plays during the entire period.

Immediately after the opening kickoff the Crusaders marched from their own 37-yard stripe to the Tam 13. With their backs to their goal line the Indians managed to halt the Riordan offensive attack, taking the ball over on downs. Unable to penetrate the sound Riordan defense, Tam was forced to punt. Bob Melbern's punt landed on the Riordan 43, where the Crusaders began their second offensive drive of the quarter. Although the Crusaders marched to Tam's 28, they weren't able to score before the first period ended.

COSTLY FUMBLE

The second quarter was relatively equal, until two minutes of playing time were left. Deep in Tamalpais territory, the Indians fumbled four yards behind the line of scrimmage and Riordan recovered only 21 yards from pay dirt. The Crusaders needed just one play, a 21-yard run over tackle by John Currie, to score the first touchdown of the game. Joe Soebeck converted, making the score 7-0, at half. The story of the entire first half could be told in first downs: Riordan had 8 and Tamalpais 1.

Although the Indians controlled play in the third quarter, they failed to make a touchdown.

With eight minutes left in the game the Tam offensive line, anchored by center Pete Hindley, spearheaded a drive from Riordan's 35-yard line to the 8, where halfback Pat Morgan, who has scored all but one of Tam's touchdowns, rambled over tackle scoring the Indian's single touchdown to cut Riordan's lead to 7-6.

The Crusaders conducted 10 plays during the fourth period, but that was all they needed to score their second touchdown, a 30-yard run over the left side. The Indians' last drive was thwarted by an intercepted pass in the Riordan end zone.

Outstanding for Tam were the fine offensive play of halfbacks Morgan and Warren Domino, who together gained 182 yards. Also sophomore Rich Hamilton, playing his first varsity constest, should be cited for his outstanding defensive effort.

Marin Catholic Battles To Tie With S.R. In A Thriller

Jerry Crow of Marin Catholic High and Billy Roberts of the San Rafael Bulldogs led their respective teams in a 12-12 deadlock before about 3,000 electrified fans at San Rafael field last night.

The tension on the field and in the stands mounted to its peak in the last minute and a half of the final period when Marin Catholic had passed and scrapped its way down to the Bulldog 15, only to have a pass near the end zone intercepted by the Bulldogs, who returned the ball to midfield.

The fighting Bulldogs were held by Marin Catholic's defenses, led by Crowe, to four downs during which Bulldog pass attempts failed. San Rafael was forced to punt and Marin Catholic took over on the 30. The Cats immediately passed and the ball was intercepted by the Bulldogs who were stopped by the final gun.

CROWE SCORES

The first touchdown made in the game that looked like a basketball affair in the final period was made by Crowe when he caught a pass in the right flank from quarterback Mike Quinn and dodged his way for 28 yards to the point zone.

The Bulldogs made the 6-6 tie of the first half in the second quarter on a two-yard plunge over right guard slot by Alan Finley after quarterback Jack Sovereign rambled 18 yards.

Just before the half time gun sounded to allow a frenzied crowd a chance to sit down for a rest, Marin Catholic had been on the Bulldogs' 10-yard line for four downs.

"They played well and with spirit, but did not have the experience to put that ball over," said Marin Catholic Head Coach Harry Moore.

In the third period San Rafael's Billy Roberts made that team's last score in a 10-yard power play through a right tackle hole in the Marin Catholic line.

The Cats' last points were made by left half George Nunes when he shot 18 yards on an off tackle play to climax an 80-yard drive.

Coach Moore did not have enough good things to say for Crowe.

"If Jerry Crowe doesn't make player of the week, something's wrong somewhere. He played the best ball game I've ever seen one player play," said Moore.

Last night Crowe, caught passes all over the place and, according to Marin Catholic statistics, ran and received the ball for about a total of 175 yards, "or more."

San Rafael Coach Dick Read was almost as proud of his halfback Roberts whom he lauded for his running attacks. Among others pointed by Read was San Rafael senior Dave Blabon who played in his first game of organized football in last night's thriller. Blabon was cited for his rushing and tackling ability as defensive guard.

"It was a real good football game, and Marin Catholic has a fine fighting team," said Coach Read.

Chico State Blasts Marin Tars, 30 To 0

Last night the College of Marin Tars at Kentfield lost 30-0 to Chico State's junior varsity in a football game that "ought to go into Ripley's records," according to Marin Coach Harry Pieper.

Statistics kept by the Marin club showed that the Tars gained about twice as many yards as Chico (172-94), and made twice as many first downs (15-7), but the scoreboard was not impressed.

Marin played well—but in the middle of the field.

"I'm pleased, regardless of the darn-fool score," said Pieper. "The offensive unit moved well and the defensive team just gave in at the wrong moments."

Marin dominated both the first and third periods. They were scored on in the second quarter by Chico's back Ron Livermore who went over on a three-yard plunge. Chico made two points after the touchdown on a running play.

The clubs went to the locker room at halftime with the score 8-0. Marin held it that way until the last few minutes of the third period when Chico scored 8 more points on a 37-yard run by Don Dwight and a PAT pass play. In the final quarter Chico made the score 22-0 when they ran five yards into Marin's tender end zone and passed for the PAT. In the last minute of the game Chico did it again on a five-yard plunge for the final tally.

Marin blew its easy chance to keep the game from being a shutout when they failed to score on eight—eight mind you — downs within Chico's five-yard line. Four of those downs were on the one-yard line.

Pieper commended, and gave much of the credit for Marin's "winning statistics" to quarterback Ron Blum and to Martin McKay," who played 60 minutes of ball and looked good."

The Tars play the Cal Aggies next week. Coach Pieper said he hopes the statistics-score ration will be turned around for that tilt.

Jones Scores 18th Victory

Sam Jones, undecided as to whether or not he will make the trip to Japan this month with the San Francisco Giants, headed for his West Virginia hills today with his 18th victory locked up in his trunk.

"I'm packin' up my car and clearing out of here as soon as possible," said Jones, who registered a three-hitter last night while pitching the Giants to a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. "I don't know if I'll be going to Japan."

While Sam was heading east, the Giants were solidly entrenched in fifth place after going south in the National League standings.

Ernie Broglio (21-8) was scheduled to start today for the Cards against Juan Marichal (5-2).

Jim Davenport cracked a tie in the fourth inning with a double down the right field line which brought in Orlando Cepeda who had tripled.

St. Louis scored in the first frame when Don Landrum led off with a walk, reached third on a steal and an infield out and then tallied on a wild pitch. Jones attoned for this by hitting a sacrifice fly in the second to score Willie Kirkland with the bases full.

Jones closed his campaign with an 18-14 mark while Sadecki now is 9-9.

Willie Mays failed to get a hit in three trips in his struggle to overtake Dick Groat and Norm Larker in the league's batting derby.

It was a tough loss for the Cards, who now only have a mathematical chance of gaining a tie with Milwaukee for second place in the final standings.

National Syndicate Sought In Grid Fix

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Police today probed the possibility a nationwide betting syndicate was involved in the attempted bribe of an Oregon football player. It was the second attempt to fix a major college game this season, and police said the two cases may be connected.

Michigan State Police Lt. Carl Robinson disclosed the attempt to influence the result of last Saturday's Oregon-Michigan game. Robinson said Webfoot halfback Mickey Bruce nipped the plan by telling his athletic director and coach about a bribery offer.

Robinson, chief of the state police rackets squad, said Bruce was offered $5,000 to "let a pass receiver behind him" and induce quarterback Dave Grosz "to call the wrong plays."

The lieutenant said A. David Budin, 27, a Brooklyn, N.Y., schoolteacher, and former college athlete, was arrested, but could be charged only with registering at a hotel under a false name. Robinson said two gamblers apparently were tipped off and fled before police were able to raid the nearby Dearborn Inn, where the men and the Oregon team were registered Sept. 23, the day before the game.

Budin pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge against him and was fined $110. He was captain of the Brooklyn College basketball team two years ago.

He apparently was a go-between for the gamblers, Robinson said. The officer said Budin told him he didn't know the gamblers by name, but thought they were from Miami.

This was the second abortive bribery attempt in the college campaign that is just three weeks old today.

An attempt to fix the Florida State-Florida game last Saturday at Gainesville, Fla., also was forestalled. In that one, Florida fullback Jon MacBeth was offered $1,500, but tipped off police. A gambler and a student were arrested.

Robinson said police were investigating the chance of a link between the two fix offers. University of Michigan officials said they are convinced the two cases are linked. Florida reports also dealt with the possibility of a connection between the two incidents.

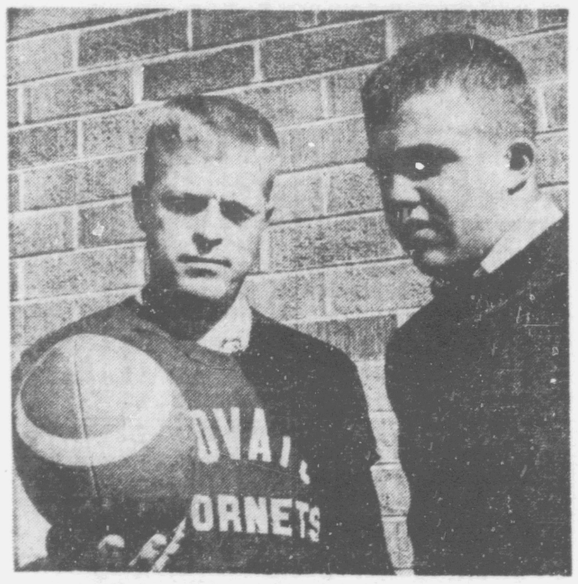

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn., college athletics' ruling body, will be called into the investigation, said Leo Harris, Oregon athletic director.

In Tallahassee, Fla., Leonard R. Mellon, head of the anti-rackets section of the Florida attorney general's office called on the NCAA to take immediate action to deal with bribe attempts.

Robinson quoted Bruce, 19, a junior from San Diego, Calif., as saying he first was contacted by Budin when the Oregon team arrived at Willow Run Airport Sept. 23. Robinson said Bruce again was approached that day at the Dearborn Inn by Budin and the two men.

Bruce was offered $5,000 and turned it down. He relayed the offer to Coach Len Casanova, who told Harris. Harris notified the FBI, and state police were called in.

Detectives rushed to the Dearborn Inn, where they were informed the gamblers had checked out. Budin appeared at the room next morning—the day of the game—and was arrested. He was carrying $1,100.

Yanks Shatter Major League Homer Record

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Yankees, marking the 33rd anniversary of Babe Ruth's 60th home run by cracking their American League homer mark, now have a 13-game winning streak as they barrel along toward next week's World Series.

But they still haven't received a convincing pitching performance from one of Manager Casey Stengel's nominees for the starting assignment at Pittsburgh next Wednesday against the National League champion Pirates.

Home runs by Tony Kubek and pinch-hitter Jess Gonder gave the Yankees a season total of 192, bettering the A.L. record they set with 190 in 1956, as they beat Boston 6-5 with three runs in the ninth inning last night.

It was exactly 33 years ago that Ruth hit his record 60th —off Washington's Tom Zachary at Yankee Stadium on Sept. 30, 1927.

It was in 1927, too, that the Yankees swept four straight from Pittsburgh in the World Series with the help of relief pitcher Willey Moore, who saved the first game and then pitched a complete game in the finale.

At the moment, it looks like the big job again will fall to Yankee relievers as New York once more faces the Pirates.

Of the three likely starters considered by Stengel — Whitey Ford, Art Ditmar and Bob Turley—neither Ford nor Ditmar has been impressive in tune-ups. Ditmar, the Yanks' top winner with 15, was tagged for five hits and one run in four frames last night.

While the Yankees rolled up the majors' longest streak since they won 13 in 1954, the Chicago White Sox tied idle Baltimore for second place by beating Cleveland 5-4 in 13 innings on Joe Ginsberg's single.

Detroit beat Kansas City 5-3 with four unearned runs in the only other game scheduled in the A.L.

In the National League, Milwaukee walloped the Pirates and 20-game winner Vern Law 13-2. That assured the Braves of no worse than a tie with St. Louis for second-place money after the Cards lost 2-1 at San Francisco. Los Angeles beat Chicago's Cubs 7-5, and Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 7-6 in 14 innings.

Four singles and a mental lapse by rookie second baseman Marion Coughtry of the Red Sox gave the Yankees their runs as they came from behind in the ninth. After singles by Bobby Richardson, pinch-hitter Gil McDougald, Hector Lopez and Roger Maris tied it 5-5 with one out, Lopez trotted in with the winning run as Coughtry passed up a throw to home on Bob Cerv's ground ball and attempted to run down Maris.

Duke Maas (4-1) was the winner as the last of five Yank pitchers. Tom Brewer (10-15) was the loser in relief.

Sausalito Yachtsman Buys Famed 83-Footer Pursuit

By ALFRED MATSON

One of the last of the big 83-foot M Class sloops built in the lush 20s and still active in racing will soon furnish added lustre to the already star-studded fleet of ocean thoroughbreds on San Francisco Bay.

The Pursuit has been purchased by Ronald Mac Annan, Sausalito yachtsman, from actor Burt Lancaster and Ben Hecht of Hollywood and manned by a local crew including John Rumsey of Belvedere.

The Pursuit is a sister ship of the Windward which was an active participant on the bay for several years and finally came to an untimely end on the coast of Baja California.

In those days, as it somewhat dwarfed the competition, it was dubbed "The Monster." But while today's newcomer will still outsize its rivals, the contrast will be far less noticeable.

She is expected to reach her new home port of Sausalito early tomorrow afternoon.

The event will tie in nicely with the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce's Regatta Day today. The program is headed by the annual Sausalito Chamber of Commerce perpetual trophy race for the cruiser contingent.

Sanctioned by the NCPCA and sponsored by the Sausalito Cruising Club, the race has attracted over 50 entrants.

Another feature this weekend is the Small Yacht Racing Assn. regatta off the St. Francis Y.C. tomorrow. Of interest to many Marin small boat sailors, the start will be at noon and the courses will be of the short channel variety.

This is the semi windup of the SYRA's program for 1960 and, with the champion's crown still in doubt in several of the participating classes, a heavy entry list is expected.

San Diegan Leads In Hesperia Tournament

HESPERIA (AP)—San Diego's Bill Blanton was showing the way with a 66 today as play began in the second round of the Hesperia Open Golf Tournament.

Blanton scorched the Hesperia Country Club course yesterday with 33-33—66, six under par. He holed an 8-iron shot for an eagle 2 on the 430-yard 10th hole, a par four.

There was a four-way tie for second place among Joe Kirkwood Jr., John McMullin, Bill Johnston and Jim McPhate.

Hickey Shakes Up 49ers For Ram Tilt

Coach Red Hickey of the San Francisco 49ers shook up his defensive line today and announced that Leo Nomellini and Monte Clark would be on the bench for the start of the Los Angeles Rams game tomorrow at Kezar Stadium.

If Nomellini fails to start, it will mean that his string of being in the lineup at the opening whistle in 122 consecutive games will be broken. However, he probably will see action later in the battle.

In place of Clark and Nomellini will be Henry Schmidt and Dan Colchico. Another change will find Jim Ridlon as a defensive back in place of the injured Dave Baker.

But the 49er offensive backfield will be the same as usual: Y. A. Tittle at quarter; Hugh McElhenny and R. C. Owens at halves and J. D. Smith at fullback.

The Los Angeles offensive backfield will start with Bill Wade at quarter, Jon Arnett and Clendon Thomas at halves and Ollie Matson at full. Rookie Dick Bass of College of Pacific, used sparingly so far this year, is expected to see more action than he has in any single game.

With Del Shofner still hampered by injuries, the Rams plan to start rookie Carroll Dale from Virginia Polytechnic Institute at offensive left end. Including a one-handed touchdown pass grab, the rookie gained 106 yards on five catches against the Cardinals.

Quarterback Wade completed 15 of 24 passes against the Cards but had three intercepted.

Kentfield Youth Wins Rifle Award

The Expert Rifleman Medal, second highest award in American junior shooting, has been won by Charles Bromedge Cauldwell of 210 Kent Avenue, Kentfield, the National Rifle Assn. announced today.

Shooting several hundred targets in the last few months the new expert marksman fired his way through 13 lower NRA qualifications to achieve his new high rating. With one more set of targets to fire the new expert will up his rating to Distinguished Rifleman, the select top rating for the junior shooters of the nation.

BOWLING

In the Hawaiian League Ed Brice had a 614 series that included a 235 solo.

The Mixed Doubles League got a fine 629 performance from Mac McFarland. His games were 206, 180 and 243.

Bill Wagner of the Novato Merchants League had a 563 total.

In the Nave Glamor Gals League Lory Amaral shot a 526 series and Mardy Lax had a 207 line.

At Greenbrae Lanes Barbara Molseed shot a 466 series in the Ladies Handicap League. Her high game was 175.

The fighting Bulldogs were held by Marin Catholic's defenses, led by Crowe, to four downs during which Bulldog pass attempts failed. San Rafael was forced to punt and Marin Catholic took over on the 30. The Cats immediately passed and the ball was intercepted by the Bulldogs who were stopped by the final gun.

CROWE SCORES

The first touchdown made in the game that looked like a basketball affair in the final period was made by Crowe when he caught a pass in the right flank from quarterback Mike Quinn and dodged his way for 28 yards to the point zone.

The Bulldogs made the 6-6 tie of the first half in the second quarter on a two-yard plunge over right guard slot by Alan Finley after quarterback Jack Sovereign rambled 18 yards.

Just before the half time gun sounded to allow a frenzied crowd a chance to sit down for a rest, Marin Catholic had been on the Bulldogs' 10-yard line for four downs.

"They played well and with spirit, but did not have the experience to put that ball over," said Marin Catholic Head Coach Harry Moore.

In the third period San Rafael's Billy Roberts made that team's last score in a 10-yard power play through a right tackle hole in the Marin Catholic line.

The Cats' last points were made by left half George Nunes when he shot 18 yards on an off tackle play to climax an 80-yard drive.

Coach Moore did not have enough good things to say for Crowe.

"If Jerry Crowe doesn't make player of the week, something's wrong somewhere. He played the best ball game I've ever seen one player play," said Moore.

Last night Crowe, caught passes all over the place and, according to Marin Catholic statistics, ran and received the ball for about a total of 175 yards, "or more."

San Rafael Coach Dick Read was almost as proud of his halfback Roberts whom he lauded for his running attacks. Among others pointed by Read was San Rafael senior Dave Blabon who played in his first game of organized football in last night's thriller. Blabon was cited for his rushing and tackling ability as defensive guard.

"It was a real good football game, and Marin Catholic has a fine fighting team," said Coach Read.

Chico State Blasts Marin Tars, 30 To 0

Last night the College of Marin Tars at Kentfield lost 30-0 to Chico State's junior varsity in a football game that "ought to go into Ripley's records," according to Marin Coach Harry Pieper.

Statistics kept by the Marin club showed that the Tars gained about twice as many yards as Chico (172-94), and made twice as many first downs (15-7), but the scoreboard was not impressed.

Marin played well—but in the middle of the field.

"I'm pleased, regardless of the darn-fool score," said Pieper. "The offensive unit moved well and the defensive team just gave in at the wrong moments."

Marin dominated both the first and third periods. They were scored on in the second quarter by Chico's back Ron Livermore who went over on a three-yard plunge. Chico made two points after the touchdown on a running play.

The clubs went to the locker room at halftime with the score 8-0. Marin held it that way until the last few minutes of the third period when Chico scored 8 more points on a 37-yard run by Don Dwight and a PAT pass play. In the final quarter Chico made the score 22-0 when they ran five yards into Marin's tender end zone and passed for the PAT. In the last minute of the game Chico did it again on a five-yard plunge for the final tally.

Marin blew its easy chance to keep the game from being a shutout when they failed to score on eight—eight mind you — downs within Chico's five-yard line. Four of those downs were on the one-yard line.

Pieper commended, and gave much of the credit for Marin's "winning statistics" to quarterback Ron Blum and to Martin McKay," who played 60 minutes of ball and looked good."

The Tars play the Cal Aggies next week. Coach Pieper said he hopes the statistics-score ration will be turned around for that tilt.

Jones Scores 18th Victory

Sam Jones, undecided as to whether or not he will make the trip to Japan this month with the San Francisco Giants, headed for his West Virginia hills today with his 18th victory locked up in his trunk.

"I'm packin' up my car and clearing out of here as soon as possible," said Jones, who registered a three-hitter last night while pitching the Giants to a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. "I don't know if I'll be going to Japan."

While Sam was heading east, the Giants were solidly entrenched in fifth place after going south in the National League standings.

Ernie Broglio (21-8) was scheduled to start today for the Cards against Juan Marichal (5-2).

Jim Davenport cracked a tie in the fourth inning with a double down the right field line which brought in Orlando Cepeda who had tripled.

St. Louis scored in the first frame when Don Landrum led off with a walk, reached third on a steal and an infield out and then tallied on a wild pitch. Jones attoned for this by hitting a sacrifice fly in the second to score Willie Kirkland with the bases full.

Jones closed his campaign with an 18-14 mark while Sadecki now is 9-9.

Willie Mays failed to get a hit in three trips in his struggle to overtake Dick Groat and Norm Larker in the league's batting derby.

It was a tough loss for the Cards, who now only have a mathematical chance of gaining a tie with Milwaukee for second place in the final standings.

Foreign Students Tell College Aims

By CARLETON WILLIAMS

A small edition of the United Nations appeared on the College of Marin Campus last week when five foreign students enrolled to begin their studies in the United States.

The countries of their origin —Macao, Japan, the Azores and the Fiji Islands—are every bit as colorful as their names, two of which were necessarily shortened, in the best American tradition, to simple nicknames.

From Tokyo, is Motoko Matsuyama, the only one of the five who is married and who, blushingly, refused to divulge her age. From Macao are Saturnino Sergio Lobato De Faria, 18, who was immediately re-christened "Nino," and his sister, Patricia Maria Do Carmo, Frerrie Corte-Real, 20, now known around the campus as just plain "Pat."

From the Azores of Portugal is Maria Louise Rombiero, 19, a native of Hong Kong and a Novato resident for the past two years. From the Fiji Islands is Kanti Lal Morarji, 21, who came to California by way of the Hawaiian Islands.

San Motoko, who now lives with her husband of two months in San Francisco, has spent the last two years at Sacramento Junior College and is studying business administration. She plans to remain in this country at least two years, the time it will take her husband to complete his graduate work at the University of California.

Both plan to return to their homeland and become certified public accountants.

Nino, a sports enthusiast, left his native Macao eight years ago and has lived in Hong Kong since. There he gained the equivalent of a high school education and plans to go into architecture.

His father, mother, two brothers and three sisters all live in Tamalpais Valley.

Pat, one of his sisters ("She's really my half-sister") was born in Shanghai. She is studying nursing at College of Marin and plans to stay in the United States after her graduation.

A photographic enthusiast who has no darkroom of her own, and admits she sends her films out "to the drug store for processing," Pat said she had read a great deal about nursing before deciding to take it up.

"I believe it is a wonderful profession," she said.

Kanti, 21, was born in the Fiji Islands but has attended English-speaking schools since he was 6. A proficient linguist, he speaks, English, Hindustani, Gujrati (the language of northern India) and Fijian.

"I want to go back to my country and practice medicine," he said seriously, adding that doctors are badly needed in the Fiji Islands.

He said he is prepared for the long grind ahead — four years of college, three years of pre-medical studies and at least one year of internship. A sports fan who feels no sport will ever take the place of soccer ("It's the main game in Fiji") Kanti also enjoys art and jewelry-making. He had the equivalent of one year of college in the Hawaiian Islands.

Maria, 19, a home economics major, is the only one of the five who is an exchange student, the other four holding immigrant status. This means she will have to return to her homeland when she has finished her schooling.

The subject giving her the most trouble is English. She never spoke it until two years ago when she came to Novato where she lives with her rancher cousin, German Maderios.

"English is awful," she shuddered.

All of the newcomers have joined College International Relations Club.

From all appearances, the five should do their part in carrying on the purpose of the club—to work toward a first-hand understanding of peoples on the other side of the globe.

Boat Accidents Taking 10 Lives A Month In State

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Division of Small Craft Harbors has announced that California boat accidents were taking lives at a rate better than 10 per month.

Division chief Lachlan M. Richards said that during the first five months in which the division processed boat accident reports 290 accidents killed 55 persons.

There were 444 vessels involved from April through August and personal injuries totaled 127, he said.

The majority of accidents, 142, took place in tidal waters. There were 52 in the Pacific Ocean, and 96 on inland streams and lakes.

Lachlan's figures showed that experienced operators were involved in more reported accidents than the less experienced.

A FOOT IN THE WEST

Communist China Fetes Its 11th Anniversary Today

TOKYO (UPI) — The Communist Chinese regime today celebrates its 11th anniversary during a year of impressive diplomatic achievements and some minor setbacks.

Despite a border dispute wtih India and the quarrel with Indonesia over treatment of overseas Chinese there, the Red Chinese government can point to these significant accomplishments:

One of the most recent and important was Cuba's recognition of the Red Chinese government. This diplomatic coup clearly was a setback for the United States.

Not only did the Communist Chinese succeed in planting a diplomatic foot in the western hemisphere, but they also did it at the embarrassing expense of the Nationalist Chinese, who were booted out of Cuba by Fidel Castro.

The signing in September of a treaty of friendship, a trade and payments agreement and an economic and technical cooperation agreement with the republic of Guinea.

Peiping hailed the signing of these agreements as an historic development which opened "a new page in the history of relations between China and African countries."

The treaty, the first China ever signed with an African country, was called a "milestone" by the Peiping people's daily, which also said it was "only the first step" of an expected Red Chinese diplomatic march into Africa.

Red Chinese premier Chou En-lai and Burmese Premier U Nu were slated to sign a boundary treaty setting a lengthy border dispute between the tyo nations. Earlier this year the two nations signed a treaty of friendship.

A treaty of friendship and an economic assistance agreement with Nepal also has been signed as well as beginning negotiations for settling border questions with that nation, including the question of who owns Mt. Everest.

McCarthy To Speak

State Sen. John F. McCarthy will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at a meeting of the Mill Valley Lions Club at the Municipal Golf Clubhouse. The public is invited, Mack Staley said, but dinner reservations must be made in advance with either Staley or club president Fred Bitgood.

Some Fairfax Subdividing Held Illegal

Too many Fairfax residents are subdividing their lots illegally, the Fairfax Planning Commission was told Thursday.

City Clerk Alice Leonesio read a letter asking all title companies in Marin County to compare maps when they are working on a land parcel, to help stop illegal subdivisions.

Planning commission approval for subdividing a lot has been required since July 9, 1956. But many residents, since then, have divided their lots without getting commission approval, the letter declared.

The commissioners agreed that the practice must be stopped. Two subdivisions were approved Thursday night. They were the dividing of a lot at 281 Bolinas Road owned by Mrs. Hermine T. Ham and the subdivision of a lot at 187 Bothin Road owned by Raymond Beierle.

Commissioners also approved the realignment of property lines on two parcels on Frustuck Avenue owned by Robert H. Busse and Manuel Kalman, and the realignment of six lots owned by Raymond Beierle on the De Herrera Rancho.

Col. Thew J. Ice Jr., commander of the Western Airways and Air Communications Service Region at Hamilton Air Force Base, will speak on "The Airways and Air Communication Service" at the noon luncheon meeting Tuesday of the Mill Valley Rotary Club at the Municipal Golf Clubhouse.

Golden Gate Bridge Profit: $2.5 Million For One Year

Golden Gate Bridge produced a net profit last fiscal year of nearly two and one-half million dollars, the bridge district's board of directors was told yesterday.

The record operating revenue of $4,773.624 produced a net income of $2,489,441 for the fiscal year ending last June 30, a report from the district's auditors showed.

The total profit is $1,133,000 more than the bridge's finance committee had been told on Wednesday. That amount had been shown in a reserve fund for depreciation and repairs, but it had not been spent.

The 1959-60 total profit is slightly over half a million dollars more than the previous year.

The directors approved the report of auditors Arthur Young and Co. which also showed nearly $19,000,000 retained in various bridge reserve funds.

Finance chairman William D. Hadeler requested that, in view of a large reserve total, the district again consider the advisability of hiring an investment counselor. The matter was referred to his committee for consideration.

Span Director Wins Plaudits

Reappointment of Sonoma Director Charles Reinking and commendation of both his services and those of the full board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District was classed yesterday as "the type of propaganda we need to get before the people."

Marin Director Leland Murphy of Inverness declared the "public thinks we are a bunch of bureaucrats coming down here just to get our $25 a meeting." He said the public should learn more of the "high type of people we have on this board" and their dedication to the district.

Director George Anderson of Mendocino County read the resolution reappointing Reinking and an editorial which appeared in the Santa Rosa Press-Democrat highly praising the director and the bridge board.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Parties To Honor Betrothed, Visitors

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Parties honoring Carolyn Hoefer and John Ring Pelkan, who are to be married on Oct. 8, and affairs feting visitors are filling the social calendar. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gros are entertaining at a large cocktail party at their Belvedere home for Carol and John. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lawenda, who live on the Belvedere Lagoon, are giving a supper party on Friday night before the wedding rehearsal for the bridal couple, their families and attendants. A co-hostess will be the Lawendas' daughter, Ann Kneedler, who is flying from New York, where she is studying at Parsons School of Design, to be a bridesmaid at the wedding.

Tomorrow night, Carolyn's Delta Gamma sorority sister at U.C. Ann Gerdes of Piedmont is giving a kitchen shower for the bride-elect. For her also, was the dinner Mrs. Byron Nishkian gave last night in San Francisco.

Mrs. Robert Bagnall and Carolyn's aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Newbrand were co-hostesses at a large party a week ago today at the Bagnall home in Belvedere, attended by friends from all parts of the Bay Area.

Among those present from Belvedere were Carolyn's mother, Mrs. John H. Hoefer and sister, Susan, a sophomore at Cal, who will be maid of honor at her sister's wedding and Mesdames Russell Rice, Cooke Donovan, Robert Watkins, John Delmar, Frank King and William Ferguson. From Fairfax came Mrs. Inga Cohalen, who was Carolyn's music teacher.

The wedding will take place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon. In addition to Ann Kneedler, bridesmaids will be Phyllis O'Connell, Katie Solari and Wendy Graupner, all sorority sisters of Carolyn, and Mrs. Charles Upton of Mill Valley.

The wedding will be followed by a reception at the Hoefers' Belvedere home. John, who relinquishes membership in The Bachelors with his marriage, and his bride, after a honeymoon in Carmel will reside in Santa Clara while he completes his studies for a master's degree at the University of Santa Clara. Carolyn will transfer from Cal to San Jose State College.

Constantly growing is the list of parties for Mrs. Gerard Bourgoing of Montreal, Canada, who is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Lesoine of Del Mesa. On Thursday Mrs. Lesoine will honor her sister at the Lakeside Club in San Francisco. She gave a similar affair for her Wednesday at the Meadow Club. The two sisters have been attending the San Francisco opera regularly and on Friday night they will be guests of Mrs. George Goheen with other friends at a dinner party in San Francisco before the performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana." The following day Mrs. Lesoine and her sister will leave for a visit in Southern California. They will return in time for the luncheon Mrs. Ernest Kirschner and Mrs. John Wolfe are giving at the Kirschners' home in Kent Woodlands on Oct. 12 for the visitor from Montreal. The William Dawsons will entertain at a dinner for Mrs. Bourgoing on Oct. 19 and Mr. and Mrs. George Schirmer will be hosts at a similar affair on Oct. 22.

For Mrs. Lesoine's luncheon on Wednesday, Mrs. Ralph Scovel came from Sacramento, Mrs. Easton Kent drove over from San Francisco and Florence Lesoine's sister-in-law, Mrs. Maurice Marks, arrived from the East Bay.

AFTER CHESTER BOWLES, Connecticut congressman and his wife arrive from the East this weekend, there will be little time to entertain him socially as his interest is entirely political. However, Mrs. Bowles will have an opportunity for a real visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bowles of Belvedere.

The congressman and his wife, whose home is in Essex, Conn., are flying from Washington, D.C. He is here on behalf of the candidacy of John F. Kennedy for president. The congressman, who was chairman of the platform committee at the Democratic national convention, is foreign policy advisor to Kennedy. He is now a member of the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee. While he and his wife are here next week he has many speaking engagements, among these will be a luncheon at Bob's of Marin on Tuesday.

FROM ENGLAND Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert A. Innes arrived on Thursday for a six months visit with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Innes of San Rafael. The junior Mr. and Mrs. Innes came from England three years ago. They lived in Houston, Tex. for a short while before coming to Marin. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Innes, whose home is in Bromley, Kent, sailed from England on the "Queen Mary" and flew from New York. Several trips are being planned for the visitors. The first will be a vacation in Northern California.

BEAUTIFUL flower arrangements were conversation pieces when Judge and Mrs. Jordan L. Martinelli entertained recently at a dinner at their San Rafael home. The decor was the result of the artistry of Mrs. Martinelli's sister, Mrs. Albert Kelly. Guests were Brig. Gen and Mrs. Newston Longfellow, Messrs. and Mesdames Horace Seamens, George Schirmer, Harrison Leppo, Frank Baumgarten, Ralph Noah, Frank DeBenedetti, John Lesoine, Oliver Olson, I.W. Borda and Kelly. This is one of a series of dinners the Martinellis are hosting.

A GROUP of golfers who will play in the tournament of the San Francisco Rotary Club at Pebble Beach, Oct. 6, 7, 8 and 9, will be accompanied to the Monterey Peninsula by their wives. In the Marin contingent will be Mrssrs. and Mesdames H. Bruce Bernhard, Charles Cain, Frank Barsocchini, Floyd Gilman, Ronald Imhaus and Robert Lee.

By the way, Mr. and Mrs. Barsocchini are completing arrangements for the baptism of their baby daughter Lisa Marie at St. John's Church in Ross. The baby was born on Aug.30 at Marin General Hospital. She has a sister, Lori, 10, and two brothers, Frank, 8, and Albert, 5. She is the grandaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Albert de Ferrari of Greenbrae and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barsocchini of Burlingame and great grandaughter of Mrs. Peter Jorgenson of Kentfield and Mrs. Julie Scatena of San Francisco.

AN EXPERIMENT in International Living was enjoyed by Mrs. William Byron Wallace and her 12-year-old son, Bill, who attends Adaline E. Kent School.

They flew to Mexico City and went by chartered bus to Guanajuato to attend the annual EIL meeting. During their three weeks stay South of the Border they lived with Mexican families in Pueblo and Mexico City and talked Spanish with them.

BY REMOTE CONTROL Mrs. Russell Smith completed arrangements for the luncheon she gave yesterday at her Ross home. She and her husband flew in the night before from the East. Luncheon plans were speeded, as one of the guests of honor, Mrs. Sydney Higgins, leaves on Monday for Europe where she will travel for six months. The other guest of honor, Mrs. Albert Seimer, with her husband just returned from a prolonged trip around the world. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were in the East for 12 days and in New York saw some of the street demonstrations during the visits of Mr. K and Cuba's Castro. The Smiths went on to Atlanta, Ga. to visit their son, Douglas Smith, his wife and their three children. The visits are generally made semi-annually.

ON SUNDAY the Carl Riznik's of Ross left by jet for a two weeks' vacation in Hawaii. They will stay at Reef Towers on Waikai and go to Kauai for a few days, staying at Coco Palms Hotel there.

FUN PACKED was the last weekend for Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Donaghue of San Anselmo who made the trip to Las Vegas and back by air. They stayed at the Stardust and had a glorious time.

A WELCOME Bay Area visitor is Mrs. Emerson Royal Meyer of Oak Park, Ill. Although retired from the concert stage, Marion Meyer (as she is known professionally) has been delighting her cousin-hostess, Pat Penhallow, with frequent piano numbers, filling the Sleep Hollow house with Chopin, Beethoven and Bach.

Pat and daughter, Rosemarie, returned recently from a reunion with friends and family in the Chicago area, accompanied by Mrs. Meyer. The cousins timed their arrival in San Francisco for the Tosca Opening and pre-opera supper sponsored by the San Francisco Museum of Art.

The highlight of the Penhallows' visit to Illinois was the wedding of Alice Mary Sullivan (Pat's niece) to Ivan McKinney. They were houseguests of the bride's parents, the Robert Dennis Sullivans of Mundelein.

The second Opera Preview sponsored by the Junior League of San Francisco, Inc. will be a discussion of Berg's "Wozzeck" by Dr. Walter Ducloux, on Monday, Oct. 3, at 11 a.m., at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

The name of Dr. Walter Ducloux is most familiar in relation to the Metropolitan Opera Quiz on the Air. He is one of the panelists who, each Saturday during the Metropolitan's broadcast intermission quiz, has the answers to the many questions on operas, composers and performers. When he is not answering questions for the Met, he is conductor and opera director of the School of Music at the University of Southern California.

The opera preview is open to the public and will be held at the main hall of the Museum. The last preview will be held on the following day, Oct. 10 at 11 a.m. at the Museum when Miss Marta Morgan, music critic of the San Jose Mercury News, will speak on La Sonnambula.

The two sisters have been attending the San Francisco opera regularly and on Friday night they will be guests of Mrs. George Goheen with other friends at a dinner party in San Francisco before the performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana." The following day Mrs. Lesoine and her sister will leave for a visit in Southern California. They will return in time for the luncheon Mrs. Ernest Kirschner and Mrs. John Wolfe are giving at the Kirschners' home in Kent Woodlands on Oct. 12 for the visitor from Montreal. The William Dawsons will entertain at a dinner for Mrs. Bourgoing on Oct. 19 and Mr. and Mrs. George Schirmer will be hosts at a similar affair on Oct. 22.

For Mrs. Lesoine's luncheon on Wednesday, Mrs. Ralph Scovel came from Sacramento, Mrs. Easton Kent drove over from San Francisco and Florence Lesoine's sister-in-law, Mrs. Maurice Marks, arrived from the East Bay.

AFTER CHESTER BOWLES, Connecticut congressman and his wife arrive from the East this weekend, there will be little time to entertain him socially as his interest is entirely political. However, Mrs. Bowles will have an opportunity for a real visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bowles of Belvedere.

The congressman and his wife, whose home is in Essex, Conn., are flying from Washington, D.C. He is here on behalf of the candidacy of John F. Kennedy for president. The congressman, who was chairman of the platform committee at the Democratic national convention, is foreign policy advisor to Kennedy. He is now a member of the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee. While he and his wife are here next week he has many speaking engagements, among these will be a luncheon at Bob's of Marin on Tuesday.

FROM ENGLAND Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert A. Innes arrived on Thursday for a six months visit with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Innes of San Rafael. The junior Mr. and Mrs. Innes came from England three years ago. They lived in Houston, Tex. for a short while before coming to Marin. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Innes, whose home is in Bromley, Kent, sailed from England on the "Queen Mary" and flew from New York. Several trips are being planned for the visitors. The first will be a vacation in Northern California.

BEAUTIFUL flower arrangements were conversation pieces when Judge and Mrs. Jordan L. Martinelli entertained recently at a dinner at their San Rafael home. The decor was the result of the artistry of Mrs. Martinelli's sister, Mrs. Albert Kelly. Guests were Brig. Gen and Mrs. Newston Longfellow, Messrs. and Mesdames Horace Seamens, George Schirmer, Harrison Leppo, Frank Baumgarten, Ralph Noah, Frank DeBenedetti, John Lesoine, Oliver Olson, I.W. Borda and Kelly. This is one of a series of dinners the Martinellis are hosting.

A GROUP of golfers who will play in the tournament of the San Francisco Rotary Club at Pebble Beach, Oct. 6, 7, 8 and 9, will be accompanied to the Monterey Peninsula by their wives. In the Marin contingent will be Mrssrs. and Mesdames H. Bruce Bernhard, Charles Cain, Frank Barsocchini, Floyd Gilman, Ronald Imhaus and Robert Lee.

By the way, Mr. and Mrs. Barsocchini are completing arrangements for the baptism of their baby daughter Lisa Marie at St. John's Church in Ross. The baby was born on Aug.30 at Marin General Hospital. She has a sister, Lori, 10, and two brothers, Frank, 8, and Albert, 5. She is the grandaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Albert de Ferrari of Greenbrae and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barsocchini of Burlingame and great grandaughter of Mrs. Peter Jorgenson of Kentfield and Mrs. Julie Scatena of San Francisco.

AN EXPERIMENT in International Living was enjoyed by Mrs. William Byron Wallace and her 12-year-old son, Bill, who attends Adaline E. Kent School.

They flew to Mexico City and went by chartered bus to Guanajuato to attend the annual EIL meeting. During their three weeks stay South of the Border they lived with Mexican families in Pueblo and Mexico City and talked Spanish with them.

BY REMOTE CONTROL Mrs. Russell Smith completed arrangements for the luncheon she gave yesterday at her Ross home. She and her husband flew in the night before from the East. Luncheon plans were speeded, as one of the guests of honor, Mrs. Sydney Higgins, leaves on Monday for Europe where she will travel for six months. The other guest of honor, Mrs. Albert Seimer, with her husband just returned from a prolonged trip around the world. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were in the East for 12 days and in New York saw some of the street demonstrations during the visits of Mr. K and Cuba's Castro. The Smiths went on to Atlanta, Ga. to visit their son, Douglas Smith, his wife and their three children. The visits are generally made semi-annually.

ON SUNDAY the Carl Riznik's of Ross left by jet for a two weeks' vacation in Hawaii. They will stay at Reef Towers on Waikai and go to Kauai for a few days, staying at Coco Palms Hotel there.

FUN PACKED was the last weekend for Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Donaghue of San Anselmo who made the trip to Las Vegas and back by air. They stayed at the Stardust and had a glorious time.

A WELCOME Bay Area visitor is Mrs. Emerson Royal Meyer of Oak Park, Ill. Although retired from the concert stage, Marion Meyer (as she is known professionally) has been delighting her cousin-hostess, Pat Penhallow, with frequent piano numbers, filling the Sleep Hollow house with Chopin, Beethoven and Bach.

Pat and daughter, Rosemarie, returned recently from a reunion with friends and family in the Chicago area, accompanied by Mrs. Meyer. The cousins timed their arrival in San Francisco for the Tosca Opening and pre-opera supper sponsored by the San Francisco Museum of Art.

The highlight of the Penhallows' visit to Illinois was the wedding of Alice Mary Sullivan (Pat's niece) to Ivan McKinney. They were houseguests of the bride's parents, the Robert Dennis Sullivans of Mundelein.

Opera To Be Previewed On Monday

The second Opera Preview sponsored by the Junior League of San Francisco, Inc. will be a discussion of Berg's "Wozzeck" by Dr. Walter Ducloux, on Monday, Oct. 3, at 11 a.m., at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

The name of Dr. Walter Ducloux is most familiar in relation to the Metropolitan Opera Quiz on the Air. He is one of the panelists who, each Saturday during the Metropolitan's broadcast intermission quiz, has the answers to the many questions on operas, composers and performers. When he is not answering questions for the Met, he is conductor and opera director of the School of Music at the University of Southern California.

The opera preview is open to the public and will be held at the main hall of the Museum. The last preview will be held on the following day, Oct. 10 at 11 a.m. at the Museum when Miss Marta Morgan, music critic of the San Jose Mercury News, will speak on La Sonnambula.

Yule Decor Class Starts

Mrs. Aaron E. (Nellie) Rucker's Christmas decoration classes will open this year on Monday, Oct. 3. The classes are held from 1 to 3 p.m. in the recreation room of the First Methodist Church in San Rafael. Classes will be held each Monday for 10 weeks.

Mrs. Rucker is well qualified to teach this subject since she has taught it at the College of Marin, the San Rafael Recreation Center and privately for many years. She is on the executive planning committee for the Oakland holiday decorations program, sponsored by the Oakland Park Department. This show will open this year on November 7 and run for four days. It is open to the public without charge and is held in the Oakland Auditorium, 10th and Fallen Streets. Seventy-nine thousand people attended this show last year.

Mrs. Ducker's classes will have instructions in making many of the things shown in this show as well as individual instruction in decorating the home.

Smugglers Carry Out Lively Trade With Airplanes In South America

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The airplane is to international smugglers in South America what the fast yacht is to their brethren in the Mediterranean.

Hardly a week passes without news of mysterious aircraft and still more mysterious cargoes dropping from the skies into remote places. Some are captured but, unlike fishermen's tales, little is ever heard of those who got away.

These unknown daredevils skim the skies with loads of nylon clothing, Swiss watches, precision tools, typewriters, cameras, and other goods in great demand. They also go in for human contraband. Many an underground Communist agent or hunted political enemy is willing to pay the price to get in or get out of a country without passing frontier guards.

Now that the Argentine peso is a hard currency, and Brazil has a relatively soft currency, it is good business to fly out transistor pocket radios worth 2,400 cruzeiros in Brazil or 1,600 pesas Argentine currency, to Argentina where it can be sold for three times the price.

Argentine anti-smuggling forces are now keeping watch on airplane hangars and workshops, looking for suspiciously souped-up extra tank jobs. They also have appealed to farm laborers

Scientist Debunks Alcohol Beliefs

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—When Dr. A. H. Hobbs thinks of the human brain as a patch job with many parts he starts understanding why people are so confused by what alcohol does to them although they've been toying with it for many centuries.

This confusion is monumental. No scientist has to tell you that. Alcohol is a stimulant. But it is a depressant. It makes people gay. Yet it causes them to cry ino their beer. It does not add to their weight, but it does make them fat.

He had a sneer for the scientific contention that anyone with a blood alcohol level of 0.15 per cent is intoxicated.

The confusion starts making sense when you start thinking of the human brain as a product of evolution which started out with comparatively little, he said. It has parts—the part which controls seeing, the one which presides over hearing, and the "nose brain"—the rinencephalon.

There is the neopallium of the cerebral cortex which is the part evolution developed last. It is the social brain—it makes meaningful patterns of "moral codes and ethical principles." These it gets from the outside, of course. It's the most sensitive brain part to outside influences and they include alcohol.

But it receives emotional drives originating from the hypothalamus part of the brain which it has to co-ordinate with the outside influences. Alcohol is first a depressant because this co-ordinating neopallium is the most sensitive to it.

It is weakened and the result is that the emotional drives become relatively stronger, and then alcohol becomes a stimulant.

Parents Right In Objecting To Boy Who Belongs To Bad Gang

F.L. "Our girl is 14. Recently she started dating. We insisted on meeting her boy friend. After some arguments she brought him to the house. His hair is long and combed duck style. He wears denims and a black leather jacket. He belongs to a gang called the 'Dictators.' Several members of the gang have been arrested for stealing. We told our girl she couldn't see him again. Now she says she'll never bring a boy home again. Are we within our rights?"

Reply. Yes, you are. Most girls of 14 lack judgment. They need protection. If they date at all it should be only with boys their parents approve. Talk with her school counselor about ways of guiding your girl. Avoid open conflict whenever possible.

I.N "Is there any way to speed up a slow-moving boy? My son is like his father, always late. He won't even hurry to the table when he's hungry. The boy is 8. I'd give anything to make him change."

Reply. I'm sorry, but he may not change. The pace at which people move has been studied. Apparently it is inherited. Fast movers can be slowed by accident or illness. But slow movers usually can't be speeded up. Try not to nag or scold too much. Work out a daily schedule which will give him time to get things done at his slow pace. Reward him for promptness. Try to make it fun for him to be on time.

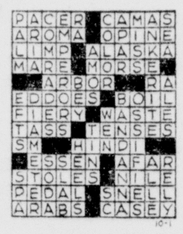

P.E. "Our girl is 3. After I spank her she spanks her dolls. She loves them, but punishes them cruelly. I've made her stop it. Am I doing the right thing?"

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

M A F D S U I A V S J V N C D N I

Smugglers Carry Out Lively Trade With Airplanes In South America

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The airplane is to international smugglers in South America what the fast yacht is to their brethren in the Mediterranean.

Hardly a week passes without news of mysterious aircraft and still more mysterious cargoes dropping from the skies into remote places. Some are captured but, unlike fishermen's tales, little is ever heard of those who got away.

These unknown daredevils skim the skies with loads of nylon clothing, Swiss watches, precision tools, typewriters, cameras, and other goods in great demand. They also go in for human contraband. Many an underground Communist agent or hunted political enemy is willing to pay the price to get in or get out of a country without passing frontier guards.

Now that the Argentine peso is a hard currency, and Brazil has a relatively soft currency, it is good business to fly out transistor pocket radios worth 2,400 cruzeiros in Brazil or 1,600 pesas Argentine currency, to Argentina where it can be sold for three times the price.

Argentine anti-smuggling forces are now keeping watch on airplane hangars and workshops, looking for suspiciously souped-up extra tank jobs. They also have appealed to farm laborers

Scientist Debunks Alcohol Beliefs

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI)—When Dr. A. H. Hobbs thinks of the human brain as a patch job with many parts he starts understanding why people are so confused by what alcohol does to them although they've been toying with it for many centuries.

This confusion is monumental. No scientist has to tell you that. Alcohol is a stimulant. But it is a depressant. It makes people gay. Yet it causes them to cry ino their beer. It does not add to their weight, but it does make them fat.

He had a sneer for the scientific contention that anyone with a blood alcohol level of 0.15 per cent is intoxicated.

The confusion starts making sense when you start thinking of the human brain as a product of evolution which started out with comparatively little, he said. It has parts—the part which controls seeing, the one which presides over hearing, and the "nose brain"—the rinencephalon.

There is the neopallium of the cerebral cortex which is the part evolution developed last. It is the social brain—it makes meaningful patterns of "moral codes and ethical principles." These it gets from the outside, of course. It's the most sensitive brain part to outside influences and they include alcohol.

But it receives emotional drives originating from the hypothalamus part of the brain which it has to co-ordinate with the outside influences. Alcohol is first a depressant because this co-ordinating neopallium is the most sensitive to it.

It is weakened and the result is that the emotional drives become relatively stronger, and then alcohol becomes a stimulant.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHMOND BARBOUR, Ph. D.
Guidance Counsellor

Parents Right In Objecting To Boy Who Belongs To Bad Gang

F.L. "Our girl is 14. Recently she started dating. We insisted on meeting her boy friend. After some arguments she brought him to the house. His hair is long and combed duck style. He wears denims and a black leather jacket. He belongs to a gang called the 'Dictators.' Several members of the gang have been arrested for stealing. We told our girl she couldn't see him again. Now she says she'll never bring a boy home again. Are we within our rights?"

Reply. Yes, you are. Most girls of 14 lack judgment. They need protection. If they date at all it should be only with boys their parents approve. Talk with her school counselor about ways of guiding your girl. Avoid open conflict whenever possible.

I.N "Is there any way to speed up a slow-moving boy? My son is like his father, always late. He won't even hurry to the table when he's hungry. The boy is 8. I'd give anything to make him change."

Reply. I'm sorry, but he may not change. The pace at which people move has been studied. Apparently it is inherited. Fast movers can be slowed by accident or illness. But slow movers usually can't be speeded up. Try not to nag or scold too much. Work out a daily schedule which will give him time to get things done at his slow pace. Reward him for promptness. Try to make it fun for him to be on time.

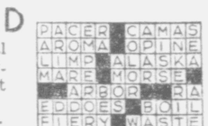

P.E. "Our girl is 3. After I spank her she spanks her dolls. She loves them, but punishes them cruelly. I've made her stop it. Am I doing the right thing?"

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

M A F D S U I A V S J V N C D N I

THINK
A Thought From EICHLER HOMES DURING "NATIONAL HOME WEEK"

Some day most California homes will probably look at least like EICHLER HOMES, and something else truly distinctive in its time, because of the eminent good sense it makes in its environment will be history, like the early Spanish haciendas and sturdy adobes, which were also so solidly sensible then.

So while there may be no patent on anything that is proven good sense, the Wonderful World of Eichler Homes" has been making California home history for sometime now, a tribute to the sound judgment of the owners and the hands-down champion to the award givers.

EICHLER HOMES BELONG in California; they are DISTINCTIVE of California, YOU will get the MOST enjoyment out of living in California in a truly original EICHLER HOME. You will find that your favorite furnishing style, whatever it may be, will look as if it were conceived especially for your choice of the many EICHLER plans.

In enchanting Terra Linda Valley, here in Marin County, we will be happy to show you how this is done in the 5 beautiful MODEL HOMES — OPEN EVERY DAY.

EICHLER HOMES DURING
"NATIONAL HOME WEEK"

Some day most California homes will probably look at least like EICHLER HOMES, and something else truly distinctive in its time, because of the eminent good sense it makes in its environment will be history, like the early Spanish haciendas and sturdy adobes, which were also so solidly sensible then.

So while there may be no patent on anything that is proven good sense, the Wonderful World of Eichler Homes" has been making California home history for sometime now, a tribute to the sound judgment of the owners and the hands-down champion to the award givers.

EICHLER HOMES BELONG in California; they are DISTINCTIVE of California. YOU will get the MOST enjoyment out of living in California in a truly original EICHLER HOME. You will find that your favorite furnishing style, whatever it may be, will look as if it were conceived especially for your choice of the many EICHLER plans.

In enchanting Terra Linda Valley, here in Marin County, we will be happy to show you how this is done in the 5 beautiful MODEL HOMES — OPEN EVERY DAY.

Now's Time To Think About Golden Gate Bridge's Future

Golden Gate Bridge is taking in more revenue now than it did 10 years ago with 50 cent tolls and high truck and commuter rates.

There are only 11 more annual payments until the bridge is clear of all bonded indebtedness.

Already in hand is enough to pay off the next five years of these bond payments. The money is securely tied up on a sinking fund which can be used for no other purpose.

There is an equal amount of money, about 7½ million dollars, in an insurance reserve fund. When the time comes, this too could be used to pay off the bonds.

In fact reserves set up in the bridge's financial portfolio total nearly 19 million dollars.

Outstanding are only slightly over 23 million dollars worth of bonds. That leaves only a gap of four million dollars between the cash on hand and the outstanding bonded debt.

But another 6¾ million will have to be paid out in interest during the next 11 years because the bonds are noncallable.

We point out all these facts at this time because we are rapidly approaching a point where a major question must be answered.

What will happen when the bridge has amassed enough money to pay off all of its bonds? Obviously that time will come long before the 1971 payoff date.

Will the bridge district continue to operate and mass millions of dollars a year? For what?

Will the bridge directors find ways of spending excess funds so we won't have surpluses?

Will the bridge be absorbed by some Golden Gate Authority or the state?

Will profits from the bridge be freed for use on the roadways of the counties of the district?

Will tolls be reduced to a merely nominal sum?

Serious thought must be given to these questions, not only by the bridge directors, but by other public officials and the taxpayers as well.

There is no doubt that something should be done soon to avert unbearable congestion on the span. But that shouldn't cost too many millions. Is it in the cards for the district to build a second bridge?

We're not trying to answer these questions for you. We hope merely that the people of Marin and the other five counties of the district, who have their homes up as collateral for the bridge bonds, realize that the time is approaching when serious decisions must be made.

We don't want these decisions made without the influence of the people who made the bridge possible.

PLAYERS MAKE THE TEAM

"Let men be good and the government cannot be bad. If government is ill, good men will cure it."

This wise advice, given by William Penn during the early stages of Pennsylvania's colonial government more than 250 years ago, has even greater force today.

Men have always been the deciding factor in any government. Those who expect first-class results cannot be excused if they allow the running of public affairs to fall into the hands of second-class people.

In government, as everywhere else, the players make the team. The best theories in the world have little effect if dedicated, competent persons cannot be found to execute them.

Every voter has the power to do something positive to make certain that good men staff every level of government—local, state and federal.

Protect your God-given freedom to vote for the candidate of your choice. But be sure to vote intelligently, conscientiously and patriotically.

"Behold, now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation!"

Enable me, O Lord, to serve You by choosing men who will work for the benefit of all.

IN 86TH CONGRESS

How Miller Voted On 12 Key Issues

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON (CQ)—Only through the roll-call vote is it possible to establish beyond question the public record of a member of Congress on the issues.

Out of 87 such votes cast in 1959 and 93 cast in 1960—the two years of the 86th Congress—Congressional Quarterly selected 12 Key Votes. Clement W. Miller of Corte Madera, running for reelection against Fred G. Dupuis of Tiburon, voted on them as follows:

1. On June 24, 1959, Southern Democrats and most Republicans combined forces to pass, 225-192, over Justice Department opposition, a far-reaching bill to nullify the doctrine of federal preemption in fields of concurrent federal-state jurisdiction. Miller voted No.

2. In many eyes, the single most important vote of the 1959 session came Aug. 13 when the House, given the choice of two labor reform measures, picked the tougher one by a close margin, 229-201. Miller voted No.

3. Having voted to substitute the stiff Landrum-Griffin bill for a weaker committee measure, the House proceeded the next day to pass Landrum-Griffin by a top-heavy majority, 303-125, despite the overwhelming opposition of organized labor. Miller voted No.

4. A partisan and heated dispute over interest rates was extended into 1960 when the House refused, 134-255, to give the President authority to lift the interest ceiling on long-term treasury bonds, something Eisenhower urgently sought. On the Sept. 4, 1959 vote, Miller voted No.

5. The effectiveness of President Eisenhower's veto power, despite the 2-to-1 Democratic majority in the 86th Congress, was demonstrated once again on Feb. 25 when the House, by a 249-157 vote, failed to override his veto of a water pollution bill. Miller voted to override the President's veto.

6. The voting rights provision of the Civil Rights Act of 1960 was shaped largely by the House when it voted 295-124 for an amendment, modeled on the Administration's plan, providing for appointment of referees to register voters where a "pattern or practice" of discrimination was found. On the March 23 vote, Miller voted Yes.

7. The House version of an aid-to-education bill, calling for $1.3 billion in federal grants to the states for school construction over a four-year period, skinned through by a vote of 206-189 on May 26, only to die in the Rules Committee. Miller did not vote but was paired in favor of the proposal.

8. In a rare display of independence on June 17, the House voted 212-173 to restore one-half of a $400 million cut ordered by its Appropriations Committee in the President's $2-billion request for military aid under the Mutual Security Program. Miller voted against restoring the cut.

9. Hopes for a workable wheat bill vanished when Eastern Democrats joined Republicans in opposing a measure offering price supports at 85 per cent of parity in return for a 25 per cent cut in acreage, which on June 23 was defeated 171-236. Miller voted No.

10. Barred under a closed rule from offering any amendments, the House agreed reluctantly, 223-174, on June 8 to pass a bill extending corporate income and excise tax rates for another year without change. Miller voted No.

11. Minimum wage legislation, destined to die before Congress adjourned, was first denatured by the House, when it voted 211-203 on June 30 to substitute a bill cutting the proposed minimum from $1.25 to $1.15 and new coverage from 3.5 million to 1.4 million workers. Miller voted against the cut.

12. For the first and last time, a majority of House Republicans deserted the President July 1 to help override his veto of an $800 million pay raise for postal and other federal workers, on a 345-69 vote, two-thirds needed to carry. Miller voted to override the President's veto.

Adlai Looked Tired But Full Of Jokes

By CHAPIN A. DAY

DAY

Adlai E. Stevenson looked tired and less enthusiastic about politics when he was in San Francisco this week. Compared to the way we recall seeing him in 1952 and riding with him on a bus trip in 1956, he seemed much less optimistic about everything.

He didn't look materially older, he was 60 in February, but he had slowed down.

We asked him what he thought of the Nixon-Kennedy debate. He said it "served a wholesome purpose" and that he felt it was "singularly free of debating showmanship techniques. It worked better than I thought it would. I feel it was very constructive."

We asked if he would have liked to participate in such a debate against President Eisenhower.

"I should have liked to have done that very much, but free television time was not available in those days."

Would he have won the election if such a debate had been held?

"I do not care to comment on that."

AT THE DINNER before his San Francisco rally, Stevenson was asked to speak. Senator Clair Engle had been introduced just before him by Roger Kent of Kent Woodlands. Kent had said that the first dam "built under President Kennedy's administration" should be named Engle Dam.

The senator said that if it was, everyone would probably call it Dam Engle.

When Stevenson took the podium he told Engle he shouldn't be conceited about having a dam named after him. "I've got children named for me all over the country. I remember one mother who held up a child named for me, it was a woebegone little thing, and the mother explained a problem. 'The trouble is,' she said 'that everyone thinks he is a girl'."

This reminded the former Illinois governor of Jack Benny's first visit to his house. Benny came up to the front door and rang the bell carrying a bouquet of flowers. When Stevenson came to the door Benny tucked the flowers behind his back and gasped, "My god, I thought Adlai was a woman."

ADLAI WAS IN a story-telling mood at the dinner. He told of when just after his inauguration as governor he was guest at a southern Illinois chamber of commerce dinner.

As the entertainment went on and on, the chairman leaned over and said to the governor, "Should we let them enjoy themselves a little longer or should I put you on?"

Perhaps with just a hint of bitterness he recalled being asked "how it felt to be campaigning for someone else? I told him I felt like I'd been doing that for the last eight years."

On hand at the dinner and rally was Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Kent Woodlands, state Democratic national committeewoman, in a striking red coat. She had been ill, we're told, and the doctor has instructed her to slow down, she's trying to do too much.

THE BATTLE FOR state senator from Marin County is beginning to hot up a bit. Democratic challenger Charles M. Geller has gone on the campaign trail full time now, giving up his electrical work to try to strike sparks with the voters.

Senator John F. McCarthy has his final drive under way too. Raymond Shone, San Rafael attorney, is again heading the drive for re-election, aided by Mrs. Robert D. Irwin, campaign director; Warren McGuire, Fairfax attorney, finance chairman; Manuel Brazil, Sausalito, and David Mariani, Novato, "Democrats For McCarthy" chairmen.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESSIONAL candidate Fred G. Dupuis wonders if he has national Democratic backing. He has been receiving mail from Democratic campaign headquarters in Washington, D.C., addressed to his home in Tiburon.

Only trouble is the mail is addressed to Hon. Harold T. Johnson, Democratic congressman from Roseville.

MARIN LABOR is going wholeheartedly out against Proposition 15, the proposal to redistrict the State Senate to give Southern California control. A labor committee against the reapportionment includes:

Anthony Silva and Frank Jamisen of the Teamsters, Norman B. Campbell of the Carpenters, Louis T. Young of the Retail Clerks, N. C. Green of the Plasterers and Cement Masons, George Goodfellow of Marin Labor Council, Pat Dailey and Elsie Jensen of the Bartenders, George Scott of the Building and Construction Trades Council, all of San Rafael, and James Smith of Fairfax, president of Marin County COPE.

THE DEMOCRATS are expecting a big turnout at noon Tuesday for Chester Bowles of Connecticut, who will be a luncheon guest at a Kennedy rally in the Edgewater Inn, Corte Madera. Bowles is a great favorite in some Marin Democratic circles.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Grand Jury Criticism Unfair

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Your editorial of Sept. 26, attacking the Grand Jury of Marin County, is as uninformed as it was well-intended, if not more so. In the first place, the school election to which you refer was for a tax rate increase, NOT a bond election as you have stated.

Secondly, the jury's findings and subsequent comment essentially pertained to ethical turpitude on the part of one or two trustees and a few administrators and teachers, NOT the entire board of trustees and school administration as you imply. The jury's criticism arose from use of school equipment for producing false and inflammatory propaganda, use of class-room time for coercing and agitating students and attempting to set them against their parents, NOT merely the "use of school mimeograph machines" to disseminate factual information, as you maintain.

Moreover, the jury at no time did anything to interfere with properly declared and published views of the trustees concerning the issue. They criticized only the actions of some individuals holding public offices or jobs, who actively associated themselves with, and employed schools to assist, an infamous group which published falsehoods and espoused the Communist-favored doctrine of "The end justifies the means" regardless of immoralities involved.

Your own editorial which followed those disclosures "deplored" such conduct and, while mitigating it on grounds of the object involved, "hoped it would not be repeated."

You imply that our trustees, collectively, are doing nothing, for want of sufficient intelligence and character to tell right from wrong, or determine the bounds of ethical persuasion. I think you are also wrong in that respect. They have published a very good brochure outlining the bonding needs of the school district. It is dignified, intelligent and informative.

They have demonstrated a preponderance of ethics and honesty within the board that has prevailed over the fanaticism of unscrupulous zealots whose conduct in the last tax elections resulted in the Grand Jury's well-justified criticism and which, as you have said before, is to be "deplored."

Traditionally, our Grand Juries constitute an American tradition, safeguarding and "watch-dogging" for us against misconduct of public servants, whether criminally actionable or not.

To so irresponsibly attack this vital institution is such a seditious and disloyal act that it is difficult to believe that the writer of the editorial actually spoke for the Independent-Journal in this instance.

Entrance to San Rafael May Soon Have Major New Look

Entrance to San Rafael should be getting a "new look" pretty soon. The big PG&E tanks and plant on Second Street are just about to be torn down to street level.

And the rumor is that new PG&E offices and perhaps a "major company" may be going in there soon, along with spacious parking.

EVER NOTICE how trim and neat the girls are at the municipal court clerk's office? It's not just by chance that they are all so immaculate. They've set up a set of dress rules that apply from head to heel, and everything in between.

If YOU GET official communications from county or city offices and find your name misspelled or address slightly wrong, don't feel too upset. It could be worse.

Take Mrs. Mildred Howie of corte Madera.

Seems she was summoned for jury duty some time back. It was addressed ' 'Miss Howie." She wrote back, asking for release from duty, explaining she was expecting any day now.

Back came the letter, saying "you are excused under the circumstances." It was addressed, "Miss Mildred Howie."

They're concerned only with getting jurors.

JUDGE CLARE D. HORNER of Richmond broke all records in Marin Municipal Court last week.

He zipped through 28 criminal cases in 28 minutes.

THE "BIG SWITCH" for former Dist. Atty. Bill Weissich is coming up next week.

After years of vigorously prosecuting suspected law violators, this time he's on the other end, fighting to keep a suspected kidnaper and a suspected child molestor out of jail.

Ought to be interesting cases to watch.

GLAD TO SEE Roy McLaren picked as Novato police chief, mostly because this column had him pegged as top runner several months ago.

While the crystal ball is hot, we'll pick Sid Weber as new lieutenant in the sheriff's office before the year is up.

BOTH PRESLEY and Fabian showed up in Marin court on the same afternoon last Monday for traffic violations.

But there were no autograph seekers.

Their first names were Don and Len.

DID YOU NOTICE the new hairdo Aurora Leveroni of city hall got a couple weeks ago?

She got a free singe when her stove backfired. Despite burned fingers, the plucky gal was back at work the next day, joking about it.

THE FORMER Ginger Vonderheide of the recorder's office, who recently was married to Paul Eliopoulos of the auditor's office, celebrated by making a "Big Four" while bowling for the courthouse team last week.

That's when two pins remain standing on both ends, and you knock 'em all down with the second ball, sending a pin from one side flying across the alley to pick off the pins on the other side.

Wonder if she's as adept with the rolling pin?

Vintage Automobiles On Display Stir Memories Of Yester-Years

And even those of us who know next to nothing about the mysteries of combustion and carburetors found the enthusiasm of the addicts of vintage and fine automobiles to be contagious.

Our own particular favorites: The antique and vintage cars.

The two things which seem to us to be most effective in bringing back recollections of the better aspects of decades past are old architecture and old automobiles.

And the antique, classic and vintage vehicles which competed in last weekend's big autofest must have brought back thousands of memories for those who strolled around and admired the venerable old cars.

The memories were those of an age when skilled craftsmen took a personal interest in their handiwork.

Which is not to say that we do not have fine work today from the makers of automobiles and other products. But that personal touch and contact between the maker and his product seem to be missing nowadays.

It was easy to believe that Henry Ford took a personal part in the manufacture of every early Model T. The name Ford was far more than a trade name. It was the personal endorsement of a master maker.

Today's Fords would run circles around Henry's early products. But automobile manufacturing today is a mammoth enterprise, far too large for the personal associations. The big men in the industry today are best known for their business acumen. You don't think of them as standing along the assembly lines personally supervising the putting together of their products.

Somehow, it was easy to think of Henry Ford and his colleagues as doing just that. And perhaps, upon spotting some minor flaw, grabbing a tool and personally taking the necessary corrective steps.

MRS EDNA NAHL of Corte Madera wonders why there is no radio broadcast of San Francisco Opera productions.

Once a regular member of the opera audience at the Opera House, she now finds herself unable to make the trip to San Francisco.

"And yet I have lost none of my love for opera, and would very much enjoy hearing the music over the radio," she says.

Mrs. Nahl adds that she is certain there are scores of other opera lovers in her predicament — once loyal supporters but now, through no fault of their own, unable to be personally present for the performances.

It would seem that Mrs. Nahl has a valid point. Radio broadcasts of Metropolitan Opera performances have marked some of that media's finest hours. There is no reason why broadcasts of San Francisco Opera productions, on at least a regional scale, would not be similarly successful.

S.F. Opera could take a step toward repaying those who loyally supported it for years but who are now unable to attend its performances by taking the initiative in arranging for the broadcast of at least a limited number of its productions.

Mrs. Nahl would not be the only Marinite who would enjoy listening.

And it is entirely possible that the programs might win for the opera supporters who are not now aware of the quality of the San Francisco season simply because they have never been exposed to it.

Vintage Automobiles On Display Stir Memories Of Yester-Years

And even those of us who know next to nothing about the mysteries of combustion and carburetors found the enthusiasm of the addicts of vintage and fine automobiles to be contagious.

Our own particular favorites: The antique and vintage cars.

The two things which seem to us to be most effective in bringing back recollections of the better aspects of decades past are old architecture and old automobiles.

And the antique, classic and vintage vehicles which competed in last weekend's big autofest must have brought back thousands of memories for those who strolled around and admired the venerable old cars.

The memories were those of an age when skilled craftsmen took a personal interest in their handiwork.

Which is not to say that we do not have fine work today from the makers of automobiles and other products. But that personal touch and contact between the maker and his product seem to be missing nowadays.

It was easy to believe that Henry Ford took a personal part in the manufacture of every early Model T. The name Ford was far more than a trade name. It was the personal endorsement of a master maker.

Today's Fords would run circles around Henry's early products. But automobile manufacturing today is a mammoth enterprise, far too large for the personal associations. The big men in the industry today are best known for their business acumen. You don't think of them as standing along the assembly lines personally supervising the putting together of their products.

Somehow, it was easy to think of Henry Ford and his colleagues as doing just that. And perhaps, upon spotting some minor flaw, grabbing a tool and personally taking the necessary corrective steps.

MRS EDNA NAHL of Corte Madera wonders why there is no radio broadcast of San Francisco Opera productions.

Once a regular member of the opera audience at the Opera House, she now finds herself unable to make the trip to San Francisco.

"And yet I have lost none of my love for opera, and would very much enjoy hearing the music over the radio," she says.

Mrs. Nahl adds that she is certain there are scores of other opera lovers in her predicament — once loyal supporters but now, through no fault of their own, unable to be personally present for the performances.

It would seem that Mrs. Nahl has a valid point. Radio broadcasts of Metropolitan Opera performances have marked some of that media's finest hours. There is no reason why broadcasts of San Francisco Opera productions, on at least a regional scale, would not be similarly successful.

S.F. Opera could take a step toward repaying those who loyally supported it for years but who are now unable to attend its performances by taking the initiative in arranging for the broadcast of at least a limited number of its productions.

Mrs. Nahl would not be the only Marinite who would enjoy listening.

And it is entirely possible that the programs might win for the opera supporters who are not now aware of the quality of the San Francisco season simply because they have never been exposed to it.

To County Farm Folks, The Superintendent's A Friend

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Making the rounds of the Marin County Hospital and Farm with Lloyd De La Montanya, superintendent, is a pleasant experience, surprising as that may sound.

It is "How are you, Joe?" and "Mrs. S—, had a nice letter from your daughter, I understand." He knows everyone by name and all about their lives and interests.

He pauses to chat with an old fisherman and tells him the salmon are running good up Bodega way. He inspects with great interest the handiwork of a landlocked sailor who whiles away the hours by making boats in bottles and wooden picture frames with nautical symbols.

After we left Lloyd told me about the sailor, who had some terrific experiences when he served in the German Navy during World War I, and is now an American citizen.

IN THE HOSPITAL section we visited with an old San Rafael resident. Lloyd joked with him, told him to get up and they'd go out deer hunting again. He was rewarded with a big grin.

An old lady, holding a small glass, came out of the dispensary. He introduced us. She explained she had some medicine for a sore on her mouth, and he kidded her saying the glass didn't look like it had medicine. All the old ladies seem to love Lloyd. Perhaps he reminds them of a son long gone, or a brother who once teased them.

The women stopped us as we walked down the corridors. All three ladies showed me the views from the windows — the hills, trees and shrubs. On their dressers are pictures of their loved ones. They told me about them as Lloyd listened. He never seemed hurried or impatient.

We saw the spotless dining room on the second floor for the ambulatory women patients. Food is sent up from the kitchen by dumb waiters.

Back in the hospital wing again, I saw Miss Elizabeth Mullen, supervising nurse, whom I had met at Ross General Hospital when she was on the staff there. She was very pleasant but busy and we had no chance to visit. Lloyd explained that the new setup at the institution is most satisfactory, with Dr. Rafael Dufficy, the county physician, in charge of the medical care of the residents, and Miss Mullen working under his direction.

"That's as it should be," the superintendent stated. "I'm not a doctor."

IT WAS NEAR the lunch hour and we went into the kitchen where the cooks were working over large kettles of food. Lloyd pointed to the week's menu posted on the wall. "Pretty good?" he asked and I agreed.

We talked about the help. Lloyd said the residents no longer do the cooking. The kitchen personnel is trained.

Every morning Lloyd brings a car of prisoners (trusties) from the Marin County Jail. They work in the laundry and on the grounds.

The farm is a farm in name only. There is no dairy there now. No feed is grown and the only bovine around the place is a Hereford calf Lloyd gave to one of the 4-H boys.

As we went back to Lloyd's office, in an old building formerly the home of the superintendent, he told me about the Herefords. Casually he said he had a few of the cattle. I asked, "How many?" "About a hundred," he answered.

Lloyd has lived in Woodacre for many years and he says cattle raising is something of a hobby with him. Gives him "something to do." He gets up at 5 a.m. to round up the cattle. He leases pasture land and it is always a struggle to even things up. He has to have enough Herefords to pay for the rent of the land. Too many Herefords and he takes over more land.

Lloyd has always been an outdoor man and when you see him wearing his large broad brimmed Stetson and astride a horse, he looks like he came off a movie set.

He has always loved the outdoors but he started on his career in an office.

Before I tell you about that I probably should give you a resume of family history and his early life.

THE FIRST De La Montanyas, the name then was spelled De La Montagaine, were French Huguenots, who fled from France to Spain during the persecutions. They later returned to France and soon after that came to America. They settled in and around what was to be New York. Lloyd's grandfather, Hudson De La Montanya was born there.

He came to San Francisco soon after the discovery of gold in California and with his brother, James De La Montanya, went into business in San Francisco. They had the first hardware store there. They soon became wealthy.

Hudson, whose great interest was thoroughbred horses, had a stable of 10 at his home on Mission Avenue, San Rafael, which is now owned by Robert H. Menzies. He built his racetrack where the H. Koch and Sons luggage plant is today at Corte Madera.

The Hudson De La Montanyas had two sons, Pierre and Herbert. The latter, Lloyd's father, was admitted to the practice of law, but he chose to became a newspaperman. He was Marin County correspondent for a San Francisco newspaper when Lloyd, the eldest of five sons, the others being, Dean, Herbert, Nick and Jim, was born on March 29, 1904. After years of reporting the news in Marin County, Herbert De La Montanya returned to the courtroom. But this time he was on the bench, not in front of it. He became justice of the peace for San Rafael Township in 1922 and served until his death in 1944.

THE FAMILY lived in a rustic cottage in San Rafael in a beautiful redwood grove. The boys loved to go hunting and fishing and Lloyd says, "I always liked to hunt with the older men." He would sit quietly for hours listening to his father and his pals talk of their hunting experiences. Lloyd attended Short School, the old Fourth Street Grammar School in San Rafael and Tamalpais High School.

A hunting accident cost Lloyd his right arm when he was very young. The limb had to be amputated so high up that he cannot have an artificial one. He has become so clever with his left arm that you do not realize he is handicapped. Certainly he doesn't feel he is.

Lloyd decided that he would become a lawyer. He attended law school at St. Ignatius College, now the University of San Francisco. He worked in the office of Elmer Robinson and Thomas Foley, attorneys. Robinson later became mayor of San Francisco and Foley a judge.

But an office was no place for Lloyd De La Montanya, he decided. So he took himself off to Nevada and got a job as superintendent on a ranch in Lovelock. It was a cattle, hay and grain ranch and Lloyd was in his element. But he could not forget Marin.

He came back to work in the old Pt. Reyes-Tamalpais Fire District. In 1941 he was appointed chief of the Marin County Fire Department. He and his wife, the former Relda Gardner, whom he had married in 1929, lived in Woodacre, where she was reared. They had two children, Carol and Roger. Carol, now Mrs. Lind, has a son, Mike and daughter, Candy. Roger and his wife have no children.

It was in March of 1951 that Lloyd became superintendent at the Marin County Hospital and Farm. Immediately he set about to improve conditions for the residents, studying each complaint, and taking action to make the people under his jurisdiction happier. That he has been successful is plain to be seen.

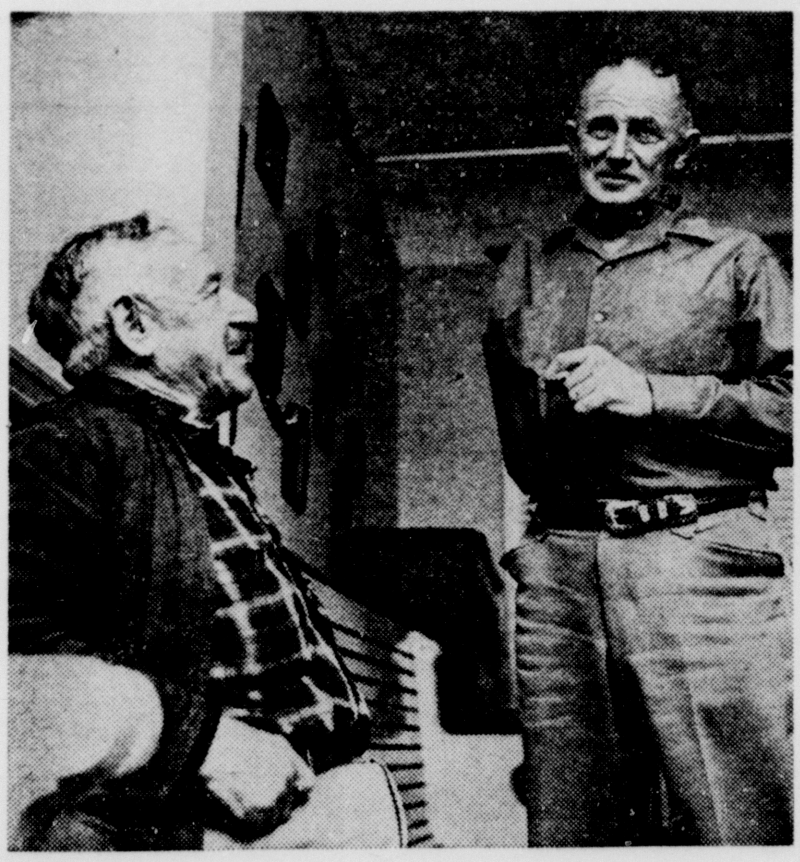

Mrs. De La Montanya's death came as a great blow to Lloyd.

His second wife, the former Ethel Laux, whom he married in 1958, had been a housekeeper at the county hospital. Therefore she is aware of the problems which the superintendent has to face. It is to his credit that he faces them as he has always looked at the world with a wide grin.

But there's a look in his eyes which warns, "Don't try fooling around, partner."

LLOYD DE LA MONTANYA looks like, and is, an outdoors man. He is also the efficient and sympathetic superintendent of the Marin County Hospital and Farm. And a member of a long-time prominent Marin family.
(Independent-Journal photo)

SUPERINTENDENT Lloyd De La Montanya always has time for a friendly chat with the residents of the Marin County Hospital and Farm. That is one reason he is so popular with them. Here he enjoys a talk with Walter Regoleti, a retired dairyman who now makes his home on the farm.

A Different Kind Of Country School

Serious Scholarship Is Integrated With The Arts

By BONNIE MATHEWS

A familiar sight along Marin County highways and streets is the fleet of bright yellow, pint-sized school buses hustling along loaded with youthful passengers.

From a variety of homes throughout the county and in San Francisco, the miniature buses collect their charges and deposit them at Marin Country Day School on Paradise Drive about a mile east of the Corte Madera Wye.

The school is situated in a broad hollow with a rim of oak-covered hills rising gently behind it and a sweeping view of the bay with San Quentin on the far shore.

Except for the rural and picturesque surroundings, this private school in no way resembles the old "country school" of red frame construction and one classroom size.

Now beginning its fifth year, Marin Country Day School opened last month with a new director, a new science laboratory, a faculty of 24 teachers and a student body of 270 students.

WHEN IT OPENED for the first time in 1956 at the Bothin Youth Center in the hills west of Fairfax, there were five teachers, under the direction of Miss Isabel Chesnut, to greet 41 incoming students. Miss Chesnut is now dean of the lower school.

The new director is Costa J. Leodas who arrived in Marin County in August after a summer's teaching in the graduate school of education at Harvard University.

With his attractive, dark haired wife Elpiniki (Niki), and their two daughters, Avra, aged 10, and Tina, aged 7, they are making their home in Belvedere.

Before accepting the new position at Marin Country Day School, Leodas was principal of the Fieldston Lower School in New York City.

Enthusiastic about the school's basic program, Leodas has several well-formed concepts of his own about the direction and function of an independent school.

"Our task," he says, "is to build a community of feeling where each child is recognized as an individual with his or her own potential for growth and development; where we constantly seek positive human values while leading the child step by step to an understanding of the global world in which he lives and of which he must feel an important part."

ON THE PRACTICAL side of the theory, he believes "in giving children a thorough soaking in their study of the cultures and periods of history which form the background of Western civilization."

This "soaking" is not taught from textbooks alone, but consists of "painstaking searching out of original source material which bears the full flavor of a people, a period of history."

Leodas concedes that this approach makes rigorous demands upon the teacher, and requires serious scholarship in history, anthropology and geography, to name a few.

"However," he maintains, "it can result in meaningful integration when specialist teachers in art, music, dance work together to develop the main theme of study."

In addition to the broad, cultural studies, the school this year has a fully equipped science laboratory, thanks to a large grant from a private foundation.

Under the direction of the new full-time science teacher, John Boles, upper grade students will be taught biology, chemistry and physics in a program closely allied with mathematics.

The mathematics program is patterned upon the Maryland - Yale - Illinois studies which are supported by the National Science Foundation.

IN ADDITION to its academic goals, Marin Country Day School has a master plan which envisages a $100,000 building program next year and an ultimate capacity of 370 students.

Behind this energetic school is a five year history of enthusiasm and hard work on the part of Mrs. Ernest Mendenhall of Belvedere. Having served the school in many capacities, she is taking this year off to "just be a mother" of her three children—"Beanie" (Lee), aged 8, "Sis" (Barbara), aged 9, who are both students at Marin Country Day School, and 2-year-old Elizabeth.

Mrs. Mendenhall is the daughter of an educator. And

The New 'Powers Girl' May Be Your Next-Door Neighbor

By
M. ELIZABETH JOHNSTON

THE DIRECTOR of the John Robert Powers School in San Rafael is attractive Millie Cameron, herself one of the best advertisements for the training offered by her establishment. She is Canadian born and served as director of the Powers school in San Francisco before coming to San Rafael. (Photo by Ken Molino)

If when you hear the term "Powers Girl" you visualize an emaciated figure, exaggerated makeup, an aloof manner and a double-jointed pose, you will drop these impressions quickly when you cross the threshold of the John Robert Powers School at 1000 Fifth Avenue in San Rafael and meet Millie Cameron, director.

Millie exemplifies the very best you might expect a Powers Girl to be. She is her own best advertisement of the kind of product a Powers school can turn out.

Slim and poised, her makeup is carefully applied to give a natural, finished look to her face. Every movement of her body, head, hands, is relaxed, graceful and controlled. And instead of breathing out a cool, frosty air, Millie is friendly and charming in conversation.

Born in Canada, Millie graduated from Marvel Beauty Academy in Calgary. She worked at both accounting and free-lance modeling in Vancouver. In 1957 she came to San Francisco to join the Powers school where she taught and served as director until she moved to Marin to open her own school.

Millie has lectured to San Francisco high schools. She has taught men and women at the Light House for the Blind in San Francisco (using the same course—with a few minor changes—that would be taught to sighted persons). In Marin, she has also lectured to many groups: Women's clubs, high schools, business clubs. She has also kept busy commentating for and coordinating fashion shows.

An interview with Millie Cameron is the first order of business for a newly enrolled pupil at the Powers School. At this time an outline is made to shape her course to match her individual needs. Although some instruction in modeling techniques is given, the Powers School here is principally geared for self-improvement courses.

WHAT KIND of woman could benefit from a charm course? Any woman who is not now, and has not in the recent past, been enrolled, Miss Cameron claims. Powers Girls who are pupils in the San Rafael school include school girls, working girls, married women of varied ages, and grandmothers. Although a girl should be at least 10 years old to benefit from the course, there is no other limitation as to the age at which a woman is eligible to learn to be more charming and better groomed.

The Powers School is still fairly new to Marinites, since it opened on Jan. 16 of this year.

Pupils are classed in age groups and classes are small to provide plenty of individual instruction. Each pupil is given a personal analysis of her skin, figure, hair, posture, voice, personality, grooming. Every two weeks, each girl or woman has a private hour of free counseling. The school keeps a notebook for each pupil, including a "before" picture taken at enrollment; progress reports are continually added. Budget payments for a Powers course can be as low as $25 a month. An improvement course usually takes 60 hours. A course which includes the modeling bloc takes 96 hours.

Since the use of cosmetics is the first course you might expect at a charm school, let us start with the John Robert Power's method, which is called "make-down." In his book, "Secrets of Charm," which is the foundation for teaching in all the Powers schools, Powers explains "Make - Down" this way: "Quite simply, it is a use of cosmetics that, in eliminating a tasteless made-up look, doubles your natural loveliness."

When the make-down class begins, you will meet Beulah Shoemaker, a tall, slim redhead. While visiting her class one evening, I experienced a Powers facial, applied by the teacher, who soon had me purring under the gentle touch of her fingers as she applied smooth creams and lotions. The students are trained to give themselves this facial.

ONE OF MY favorite moments came when I was asked to lie down on a "Beauty Board, my feet a little above my head and snugly tucked under a white band of elastic fastened at the top of the board. Miss Shoemaker says 20 minutes at this beauty angle are equal to eight hours of sleep.

Beulah Shoemaker went to San Diego College and College of Marin. She has been a Powers model, an Elizabeth Arden Salon model, has done free-lance modeling in both San Francisco and Los Angeles, and is a member of the San Francisco Professional Models Assn. In San Rafael, she has been a teacher for the YWCA, instructing classes in charm and good grooming. She lectures and trains models for Marin County organizations and for San Francisco fashion shows.

Two basic ideas are taught in make-down: (1) Skin care and a lovely complexion; (2) Cosmetic use with a natural but finished look. Photographic makeup and modeling makeup for fashion work is included, as well as hair care and the latest techniques in applying cosmetics.

The wardrobe class learns theory of line, psychology of color, basic wardrobe, headline (hats), coordination of all elements, commentation for fashion shows, and the difference between classical fashion and "fads." Each pupil is analyzed for her best line and colors. Pupils keep a wardrobe notebook and do assignments for it outside of class.

After only a few lessons, Miss Shoemaker says, a new pupil's taste in clothes changes. She becomes fashion-conscious, and she becomes sharp about budgeting for the best styles.

"Color lessons are very important," Miss Shoemaker emphasizes. Pupils are taught their best color combinations and how to analyze colors so as to combine them successfully .

A hint of what a woman might accomplish at the Powers School is seen in a simple tip taken to heart by the writer. "Cream your feet, too," said Miss Shoemaker—and I did. I put a tube of handcream by the bed and creamed my feet every night for two weeks to see if it would do anything for a calloused condition that almost covered the soles of my feet. In this short time, the thick callous softened; another week showed an improvement of at least 90 per cent. My feet feel and look at least 10 years younger.

VISUAL POISE and figure control are the main subjects in another important class. Powers sums up visual poise on one of his brochures: "How to walk and move with grace, how to turn and stop with poise, how to 'conquer' stairs without looking, how to sit and rise without protruding at the wrong places (in a drawing room or in an Austin); these attributes of poise come easily with guidance. Beauty of bearing—in leaving a room, in removing wraps, in every situation where you might be awkward or ill at ease—you learn by doing under supervision."

In the figure control class, as you might expect, each pupil's measurements are taken; then teacher and pupil determine desirable measurements for the student's height and build. Pupils are then put on diets to lose or gain where needed, or to hold their line. Girls study posture exercises and balance, how to develop muscles for walking and turning, and exercises for circulation.

The instructor is dark-eyed Joanne Bernave from Walla Walla, Wash. A graduate of Washington State University, Miss Bernave started modeling in her teens. After working as a secretary for two years, she learned to be an instructor in modeling. She has been a Powers model and a free-lance bathing suit model.

Since coming to the Bay Area, she has advertised sport car shows, taken part in fashion shows in San Francisco. She has publicized Red Tag Days and the Miss Marin Contest in San Rafael. She has modeled free-lance for photographers, given lectures and commentated at fashion shows.

While I observed one evening, Miss Bernave had each pupil select a pose from a fashion magazine which the pupil was to imitate. Each girl walked up a small flight of stairs, struck her pose before the big mirror, walked down the middle of the stairs and out of the long room.

One girl couldn't resist a temptation to "clown" a little when she made a mistake. Miss Bernave used this as a good illustration of what not to do in modeling or in a social group—don't stop and call attention to an error, but go right on as naturally as possible and most people won't even know you have made a mistake. Each mistake or step well-done gave the instructor an opportunity to bring out a new point or to re-emphasize a basic one.

SEVERAL YEARS ago, John Robert Powers observed that a good model should not only express beauty, but also intelligence. Accordingly, Powers teaches that charm must be more than skin deep; it must shine from the inside out.

A pleasant voice is another attribute of a trained Powers Girl. At the Powers school, the third important class in self-improvement deals with voice, diction and personality. Pupils learn to improve their speaking voices, learn conversation and etiquette. In advanced classes they work toward professional drama.

Irene Pritzker, the instructor, is a graduate of the University of Michigan. In 1946 she came to Marin and studied drama at the San Francisco Municipal Theater. Many Marinites may recognize her name because she has been associated with little theater groups here for several years.

Mrs. Pritzker finds Californians have very little accent, as compared with other regions. The problem she most often faces is a nasaltone in girls' voices, which she helps them to overcome.

"Voice and personality work together," she says. "For instance, breathing right helps one to relax; this, in turn, helps the voice . . . Some pupils work from the inside out, some from the outside in."

Personality appraisals are made for new students to find out "who" they are. Each one learns to be happy to be herself, instead of striving to emulate another.

To get started, pupils learn the right things to say and do in certain circumstances. Each girl writes a diary during the course. Later, pupils work in one-act plays for both voice and personality development.

The Powers staff also includes a part-time teacher for the voice, diction and personality class. He is Donald A. Carr of Mill Valley. Carr graduated from Iowa State University. His television experience includes KPIX-TV, San Francisco; free lance writer for "Science In Action" and "Science Laboratory," KRON-TV; and TV writer-producer for the Health Education Council of the San Francisco Community Chest. His theater work includes Kendall Playhouse, Des Moines, Iowa; summer stock with the Mummers of Chicago; Drama Department, Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, Pa.; National Theater Conference Tryout Theater, Hunter College, New York City.

At Northwestern State College in Natchitoches, he was head of the speech division. He has also taught at San Francisco State College and in the San Francisco public schools as an adult division instructor. He is now teaching English, speech and drama at Novato High School.

WHEN I VISITED his class Carr was teaching the girls how to prepare for a speech each was to present the following week. The kind of speech recommended by Powers is the extempore speech, made from notes, not read or memorized. This type, he said, has spontaneity, naturalness, true communication. He summed up the essence of a good speech as—enthusiasm.

The standard raised by John Robert Powers is a high one. Check your own points with the following advice from an article by Powers:

"A word to the wise: You will find the following grooming hints important and useful in helping you to make the best possible impression on the people you meet, your instructors and your fellow students. Every Powers' student is expected to rate 100 per cent.

"Always be perfectly groomed at all times. This means clothing clean and neat; shoes well heeled, shined or brushed; stocking seams straight; hemlines even; nail polish carefully applied and unchipped; hair clean and neat; and cosmetics perfectly, but subtly applied.

"Your personality should include a gracious, friendly attitude at all times, a pleasant smile, and a helpful attitude. Remember that the most important thing you wear is the expression on your face."

While doing research for this article, I talked with friends who told me of women who wanted extra poise and self-confidence for their careers, inside or outside the home. Many are daughters of families who are politically and/or socially prominent. Some of these needed to out grow a lingering "tom boy" state so they might be better prepared to take part in social events. Some girls found a Powers course a stepping-stone to a better job., or to a new kind of work they would not have attempted before; some went into modeling or the theater. Many have found a wedding band during or shortly after their course.

One story that particularly caught my attention, however, concerns a young mother whose husband abruptly left her one day. This young woman took a good look at herself and saw a girl who had "let herself go" since her marriage, a girl who had grown careless about her appearance and had gained excess weight.

She dried her tears and enrolled at Powers. Only a few lessons began to bring improvement in her appearance. One day, the husband came to pay a visit to their children and was obviously surprised by the remarkable change in his wife. Even while she continued her course, he called her at the school and asked for a dinner date. The courting began all over again. Today they are reunited and the husband is a very devoted one while the wife will surely not forget the training she had at the Powers School and its wonderful results.

This is a graphic example of what an earnest effort at self-improvement (with expert help) can do. This is the new Powers Girl, not necessarily a magazine picture model but an attractive, alert, charming woman — Mrs. Next-Door Neighbor or Miss School Girl, or College Coed, or Office-Worker, or me — or you.

Roy Wendelken Is Marin's Leading Artist In Bonsai

By DON KEOWN

Eight years ago Roy H. Wendelken first became interested in bonsai.

Today he has more than 100 of the artistically-shaped dwarf trees in his yard at 1619 Novato Boulevard, Novato.

"I think I have the largest collection of any member of the Marin Bonsai Club," he says.

"You name it and I have it," he grins.

WENDELKEN, like most bonsai enthusiasts an avid gardener before he went in for the more difficult hobby of growing the tiny trees, first became interested in bonsai through a friend.

"She had sent off to a mail order firm for some seed," he says. "I thought the idea looked interesting when I saw her trees. And pretty soon I was growing them myself."

Wendelken says he has striven for a representative grouping of trees—"the majority of our bonsai people seem to do that instead of specializing in one kind of tree."

The little trees are grown outdoors in a pot, exposed to the sun and elements. Soil conditions, however, must be maintained at a close proximity to those in which the larger versions of the tree species thrive.

WHILE A feeling for the green thumb helps, he adds, "actually bonsai is in one way the direct opposite of gardening. In gardening you try to make things grow. In bonsai you try to hold them back."

Nor has he given up his regular gardening. The Wendelken yard remains nicely landscaped with plenty of growing plants.

Wendelken is the gardener of the family. His wife, Thelma, likes and appreciates plants. But she is not a "green thumber" or a bonsai enthusiast. Her hobbies are painting and sewing.

Wendelken has other interests including camping and fishing. But bonsai remains his No. 1 hobby and has priority on his time.

Wendelken is an active member of the Marin Bonsai Club. Last year he served as its vice president. And he will have from 15 to 20 of his best trees on display when the club stages its annual show at the Bank of America, Fifth and B, in San Rafael next Saturday.

THERE IS NO admission charge for the show, and between 150 and 200 trees will be on display.

This year the visiting public will ballot to pick the best tree in the show.

Wendelken and his fellow club members invite you to visit the show and view their prize plants. And if you like what you see and decide that you, too, would like to become a bonsai grower, well, then, the club meets the fourth Tuesday of each month in the workshop of landscape architect Bill Kapranos in San Anselmo.

But the real experts, Wendelken says, in bonsai are still to be found in the Orient where the movement was born centuries ago.

"The Japanese are still the real masters at bonsai," he says.

But if Americans are something of Johnny-come-latelys at bonsai, they have nevertheless become better than fair hands at the art. Just visit the show at the Bank of America a week from today and see for yourself.

Roy Wendelken Is Marin's Leading Artist In Bonsai

By DON KEOWN

Eight years ago Roy H. Wendelken first became interested in bonsai.

Today he has more than 100 of the artistically-shaped dwarf trees in his yard at 1619 Novato Boulevard, Novato.

"I think I have the largest collection of any member of the Marin Bonsai Club," he says.

And his collection includes just about every kind of tree, evergreen and deciduous, fruit and shade.

"You name it and I have it," he grins.

WENDELKEN, like most bonsai enthusiasts an avid gardener before he went in for the more difficult hobby of growing the tiny trees, first became interested in bonsai through a friend.

"She had sent off to a mail order firm for some seed," he says. "I thought the idea looked interesting when I saw her trees. And pretty soon I was growing them myself."

Wendelken says he has striven for a representative grouping of trees—"the majority of our bonsai people seem to do that instead of specializing in one kind of tree."

The little trees are grown outdoors in a pot, exposed to the sun and elements. Soil conditions, however, must be maintained at a close proximity to those in which the larger versions of the tree species thrive.

WHILE A feeling for the green thumb helps, he adds, "actually bonsai is in one way the direct opposite of gardening. In gardening you try to make things grow. In bonsai you try to hold them back."

Wendelken, retired, finds bonsai an absorbing hobby. Regularly he spends about an hour a day with his trees. At spring pruning and repotting periods he spends a great deal more at that work.

Nor has he given up his regular gardening. The Wendelken yard remains nicely landscaped with plenty of growing plants.

Wendelken is the gardener of the family. His wife, Thelma, likes and appreciates plants. But she is not a "green thumber" or a bonsai enthusiast. Her hobbies are painting and sewing.

Wendelken has other interests including camping and fishing. But bonsai remains his No. 1 hobby and has priority on his time.

Wendelken is an active member of the Marin Bonsai Club. Last year he served as its vice president. And he will have from 15 to 20 of his best trees on display when the club stages its annual show at the Bank of America, Fifth and B, in San Rafael next Saturday.

THERE IS NO admission charge for the show, and between 150 and 200 trees will be on display.

This year the visiting public will ballot to pick the best tree in the show.

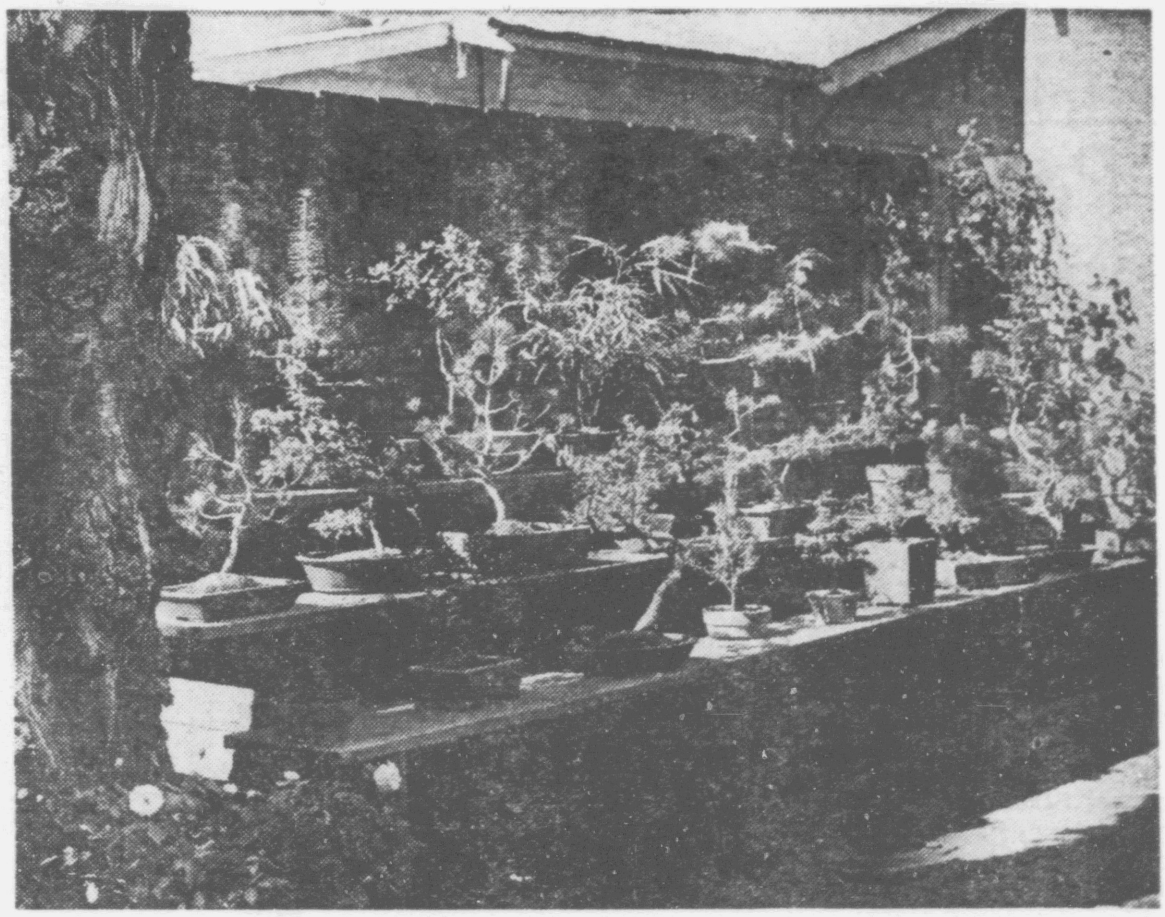

Wendelken and his fellow club members invite you to visit the show and view their prize plants. And if you like what you see and decide that you, too, would like to become a bonsai grower, well, then, the club meets the fourth Tuesday of each month in the workshop of landscape architect Bill Kapranos in San Anselmo.

But the real experts, Wendelken says, in bonsai are still to be found in the Orient where the movement was born centuries ago.

"The Japanese are still the real masters at bonsai," he says.

But if Americans are something of Johnny-come-latelys at bonsai, they have nevertheless become better than fair hands at the art. Just visit the show at the Bank of America a week from today and see for yourself.

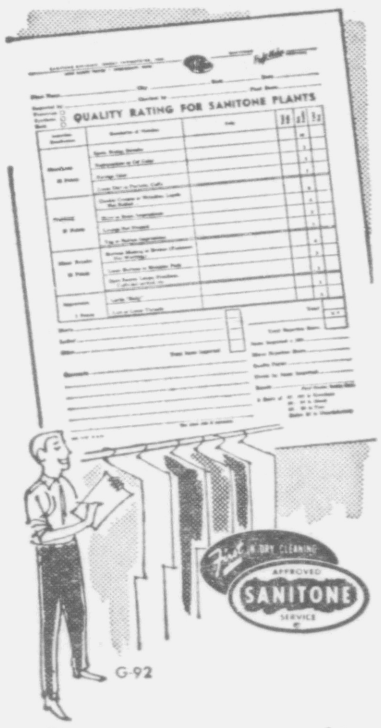

HERE IS JUST a small part of the "forest" of artistically-shaped bonsai trees which Roy Wendelken of Novato owns. Wendelken and other members of the Marin Bonsai Club will be displaying their prized possesions at the club's annual show at the Bank of America in San Rafael next Saturday. Admission is free.

Firemen Welcome Coming Of Fall

Autumn Rains To Mark The End Of A Long And Busy Grass Fire Season In Novato

No one is happier to see the end of summer and the arrival of the first fall rains than the fireman.

This is particularly true of the members of the Novato Fire Department whose responsibility it is to patrol and protect 75 square miles of territory in the Novato-Black Point-Ignacio areas.

With such an assignment, the firemen are kept on the run through the dry summer months answering alarms.

And annually about one third of the runs the red engines and their crews make are to fight grass fires started by "negligence"—the tossing away of a cigarette, children playing with matches, and just plain carelessness.

The worst grass fire season runs from June — after the moisture from the spring rains has disappeared—until September or the first few "good" showers of the fall.

Each year the Novato firemen are summoned to battle more than 100 grass fires.

Fourteen regulars and 25 volunteers operate out of the two fire stations, ready to race to the plume of smoke rising in the sky. A fire in the Stafford Lake watershed would strip ground cover from the area, leaving it open to widespread erosion, Cavallero points out. Thus an alert and fast-moving fire department is vital.

Firemen use three four-wheel drive trucks with 200 to 500 gallon water tanks for mobility. Their high pressure hoses push out water at 400 to 600 pounds pressure per square inch for a thin fog of water to smother fires, or a long stream to reach far inside their smouldering bounds.

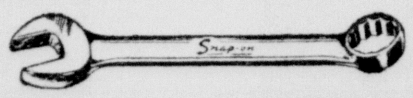

Augmenting the tankers are two Jeeps which can skitter up steep hills slippery with grass to move fire fighters, their axes, hoses and back tanks of water.

"There are no two fires alike," Cavallero says. "You remove the heat and fuel with water and hand tools. And luck has to be with you, too."

"WHY ARE SOME WHITES HARD TO KEEP WHITE?"

The world hasn't become more dirty; it just appears that way because there will be so many more white dresses, suits and coats this season.

You'll see dresses of white silk, crepe, linen and chiffon. However, keeping whites white depends upon the fiber content and the fabric construction as well as the manner in which the white color has been produced in the manufacture of the garment. Some of our glaring whites turn a disappointing yellow, gray or brown after long exposure to sunlight.

The high-styled faggoting or embroidery on white dresses may pick up soil or may be of a different material, dyed a different white by a different manufacturer and you could find yourself with a two-tone dress. Dresses decorated with rhinestones and beads, of which we will see much of this season, will need special care in cleaning.

White coats with sleeves which are wide cut and short, draped from the shoulder seams or flared are making the fashion news. Many coats are without collars and a few are felted. But keeping your whites white will remain a problem.

When you want your whites cleaned, consult your professional drycleaner. Let him use his skill in determining the best method to make your whites white based on his knowledge of fabrics, fiber content, color and ornamentation. It's worth it.

TO THE FIRE-FIGHTERS, snag fires such as this one are lumped with grass fires. They are all part of the summer's work. And a hot, dirty job, they are. Here the Novato firemen battle a fire raging in a brush pile five to 15 feet high. It is the kind of a fire that makes the fireman happy when summer has finally come to a close. YOUNGSTERS grab tanks of water and give the firemen a helping hand. But you can't get too close to the flames in those bare feet.

KIDS LOVE the fires and the engines they bring. And if they look closely, they'll find mice flushed out of the fields ahead of the heat and flames.

SOMETIMES IT IS just a small, backyard fire where you can smoke your cigar and still work, like Jack Slavin, left, is doing here. His partner in dousing this blaze is the Novato department's chief engineer, Louis Cavallero

HANDING THE HOSE from one fireman to another can be a tricky feat since the pressure of the water gives the hose quite a "kick" and a mind of its own. Here a couple of Novato firemen accomplish the trick with some difficulty.

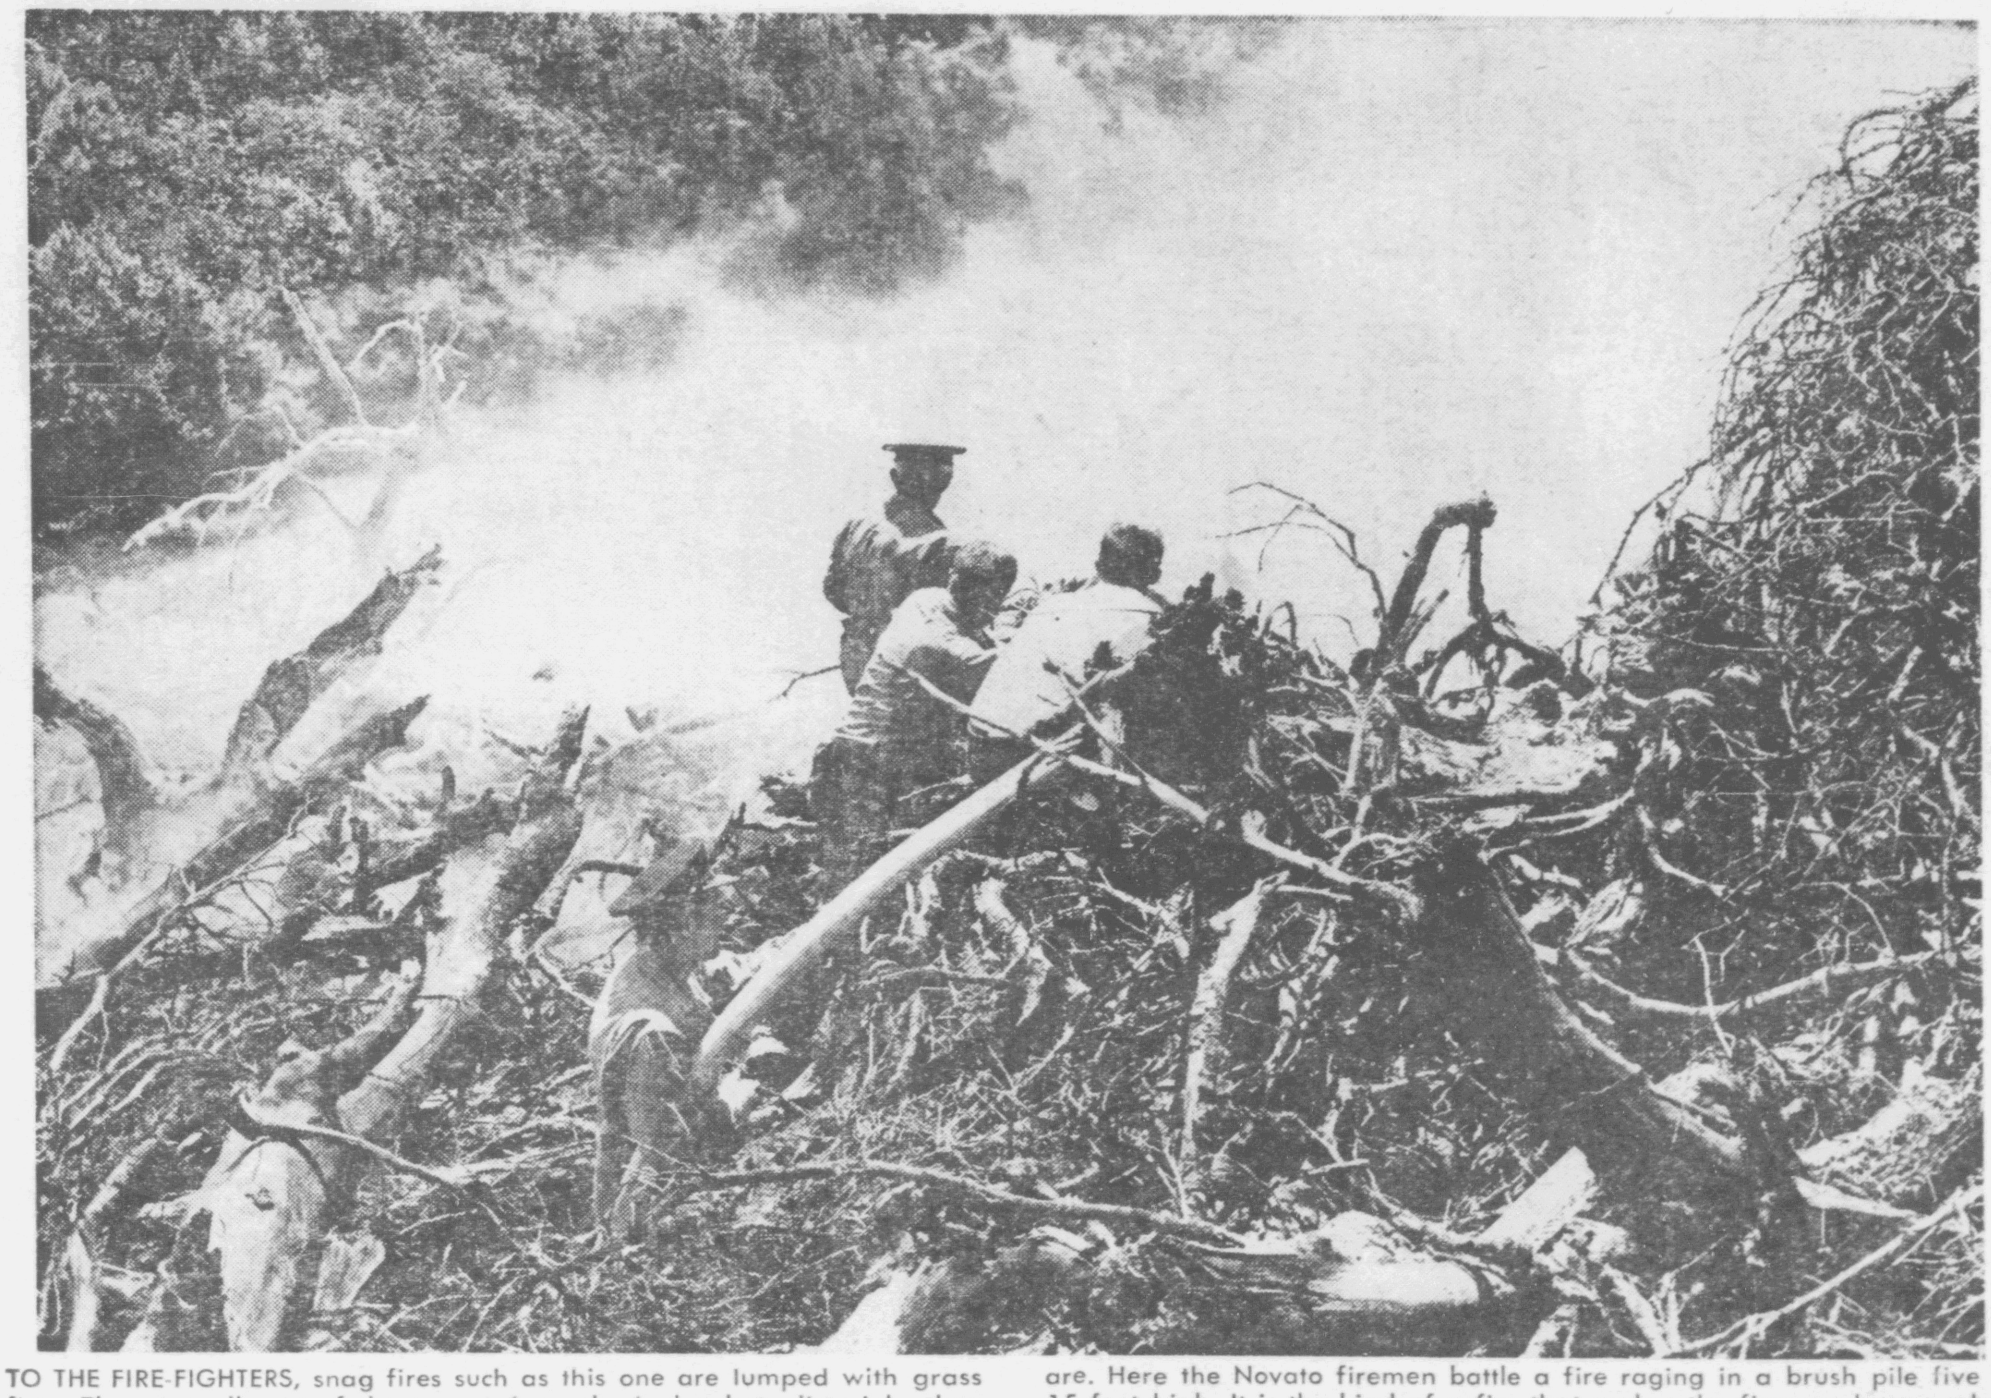

TALL GRASS, head-high and brittle dry, can be a serious menace to the fireman. Not only does it burn rapidly and unpredictably, but, as shown in the two photos above, it also makes it difficult for the "smoke-eater" to move his hoses into proper position for the fight.

HERE'S THE ALBUM cover for Fantasy's new Paul Miller LP, "Our Leader." It is the Marinite's fourth and he is accompanied again by the San Francisco Marching, Trotting and Walking Band.

Banjo Plucker Paul Miller Plays Some Old Favorites

Fantasy has just issued the fourth LP high fidelity record by Corte Madera's Paul Miller, "that multi-fingered plucker" as the album cover reads.

It's entitled "Our Leader." And it contains such favorites as "Swanee," "Take Your Girlie to the Movies," "Lucky Day Charleston," "Yes Sir, That's My Baby," "If you Knew Susie," and "Sheik of Araby."

As in his three previous successes with Fantasy, Miller plays with the San Francisco Marching, Trotting and Walking Band. And the "leader" of the title is, of course Miller.

Miller has played no small part in the current revival of interest in the banjo in the Bay Area. He is probably best known in this area for his work with George Cerutti on KGO-TV. He is still on the KGO staff. He has just completed playing for "Flower Drum Song" in San Francisco, where he not only picked the banjo, but also played the mandolin and guitar.

Now he is back to the banjo only, as he plays for the Civic Light Opera's "Showboat."

He has also helped provide music for such shows as "Redhead," "Oklahoma" and "Bells Are Ringing." On radio he has played for the Arthur Godfrey Show and Don McNeil's Breakfast Club. And he has played banjo with the San Francisco Symphony.

Miller plays a four-string tenor banjo which he tunes like a cello, as did the best of the old-time banjoists.

The new album contains a wide representation of some of the best music written for his instrument.

It ranges from "Under the Bamboo Tree" and "Bedelia" which go back to 1902 and 1903 respectively to some of Miller's own originals, "Goodbye Mr. Banjo," "Blues for Banjo," and "Pickin' for Paula." Paula is the musician's 4-year-old daughter.

The twenties, heyday of the banjo, are, of course, well represented by such as "Lucky Day" and "Varsity Drag."

The Marinite feels that his newest album is his best. The diversity of the tunes in styles and eras and the arrangements, for the most part by Walter Rudolph of San Francisco, have provided him with an excellent opportunity to display his versatility and feeling for his instrument. And "Our Leader" takes full advantage of the opportunity.

S.F. Museum Offers Prints Of Marinites

The San Francisco Museum of Art's Rental Gallery has announced a new service, effective next Thursday.

For the first time a collection of original works by Bay Area printmakers will be included in the Autumn Rental Gallery Exhibition to be offered for sale to members at prices from $10 to $50.

The collection will include examples of all print media ranging from small delicate engravings to large and colorful lithographs.

Artists represented will include four Marin printmakers. They are Kathan Brown of Mill Valley, John Ihle of Mill Valley, Doris Meyer of San Rafael and Jeryl Parker of Mill Valley.

The museum stresses that the prints are original works of art and are not to be confused with reproductions. They will be offered for sale —not rental.

Admission to the Autumn Rental Gallery Exhibition is free.

Water Color Show Slated

Next Wednesday and Thursday have been set by the Marin Society of Artists as receiving dates for paintings for the society's October Water Color Show.

The show will open Oct. 9 with a preview from 2 to 5 p.m., with a special painting to music demonstration at 4 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

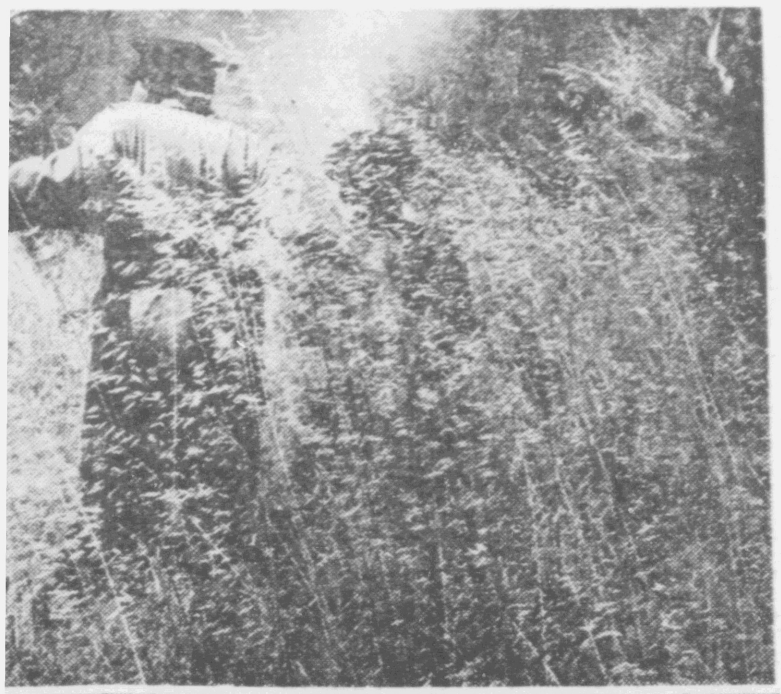

All paintings to be shown must be framed. Limit is two entries per painter. The fee is 50 cents per painting.

MARISA SAETTI, voted by her Tamalpais High School graduating class of 1956 as the "one most likely to succeed," is shown working at sculpture, which has brought her honors and the opportunity to study with great sculptors abroad.

AMONG THE PHOTOS of her work which Marisa Saetti has sent from Europe to the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley, which granted her two scholarships, is this picture of the head of a girl. While Marisa did not say so, it may well be the one which one of her European teachers, the great sculpter Emilio Grece, thought good enough to be cast in bronze.

Young Marin Sculptor Picked To Study Under Italian Master

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Marisa Houston Saetti, voted by her 1956 Tamalpais High School graduating class as the "one most likely to succeed," may some day be known widely as a famous Mill Valley artist.

The young sculptor and painter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrea Saetti, has just been chosen as one of three who will work three months this winter with the great sculptor Manzu in Rome, Italy.

Marisa has been studying with him during the summer in Salzburg, Austria, as a result of being one of 25 contestants from all over the world accepted by him as pupils.

News of her progress has been regularly reported through letters to Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club, which has granted her two scholarships.

She wrote early in June, "I am very happy to convey to all the news that I have been accepted as a pupil in Manzu's class in sculpture. This came as a delightful surprise, for I had hardly dared hope for it, and I know you will all rejoice with me. Twenty-five is a small number when pupils and teachers from all over the world send in applications."

Again, during this past month, she wrote, "I have just returned from Salzburg, where I won a prize and was chosen, together with three others, to go to work with Manzu in Rome for three months this winter.

"Thanks to your second scholarship I will be able to do this and return later to the academy in Munich."

Marisa received her first scholarship from the Outdoor Art Club in 1956 to help her continue her studies at the Art Academy in Munich after she had gone to Italy with her parents following her graduation.

In Munich she studied with Emilio Greco. She reported, "During the first term Greco felt that one of my heads was good enough to be cast in bronze, which has been done, and this gave me a thrill."

The young artist works in clay and stone and also does painting, often working on into the night and on holidays.

Marisa admits she sometimes gets homesick, and she is already looking forward to her first exhibit when she returns to Mill Valley.

"What a joy it will be to prepare for an art exhibit to be held when I finally do return, and to think it will be at the Outdoor Art Club, where until now I have only been to the grammar school dances.

"Little did I ever think such an event would take place, but it just shows how little one knows just what is around the corner."

PRIMARILY A sculptor, Marisa Saetti also paints. This is one of the examples of her work she sent recently to Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club. She is looking forward to having her first exhibit there when she returns to this country.

For the first time a collection of original works by Bay Area printmakers will be included in the Autumn Rental Gallery Exhibition to be offered for sale to members at prices from $10 to $50.

The collection will include examples of all print media ranging from small delicate engravings to large and colorful lithographs.

Artists represented will include four Marin printmakers. They are Kathan Brown of Mill Valley, John Ihle of Mill Valley, Doris Meyer of San Rafael and Jeryl Parker of Mill Valley.

The museum stresses that the prints are original works of art and are not to be confused with reproductions. They will be offered for sale —not rental.

Admission to the Autumn Rental Gallery Exhibition is free.

Water Color Show Slated

Next Wednesday and Thursday have been set by the Marin Society of Artists as receiving dates for paintings for the society's October Water Color Show.

The show will open Oct. 9 with a preview from 2 to 5 p.m., with a special painting to music demonstration at 4 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

All paintings to be shown must be framed. Limit is two entries per painter. The fee is 50 cents per painting.

Ex-Marinite Wendell Berry Leads Off Stanford Collection

STANFORD SHORT STORIES: 1960, edited by Wallace Stegner and Richard Scowcroft, Stanford University Press, 177 pages, $2.95. Reviews by Don Keown.

Once again Stanford publishes a collection of what it considers the best short stories written by products of its much respected Creative Writing Center. And once again, the book does the center proud.

As would be expected, there is some variation in the caliber of the writing. But the level is generally high. And it will be surprising if some of these young talents do not graduate into the ranks of our top writers.

Chances appear bright that ex-Marinite Wendell E. Berry may be among them.

He, you will remember, is the young Kentuckian who was living in Mill Valley last spring when his well received novel, "Nathan Coulter," was published by Houghton Mifflin. Now he is back on his father's tobacco farm in his beloved Kentucky, working in the fields and writing.

Berry has been chosen as "lead-off man" in the new Stanford collection. Actually, his contribution is not a short story. It is an exerpt from the book "Nathan Coulter." But it is among the most effective, the most "feeling" writing in the collection.

It is plain that Richard Scowcroft, co-director of the Creative Writing Center, is quite impressed with this young man.

In his preface to the book he says in part:

". . . I think of Wendell Berry revising that novel over and over again, refusing to release it to his publisher until it was right, I see Nancy Packer straining over those stories, her own severest critic; I remember Tillie Olsen pouring not months but years into an anguished and constant reshaping, reappraising of any story. These are different from the boy who doesn't know he has had a woman until he writes about her, or the girl whose personality fails to cohere until her first communion is captured in prose. Mr. Berry, Mrs. Packer and Mrs. Olsen are Egyptian slaves lashed into subjection to a concept; one wrong stone and they find themselves with a cube instead of a pyramid.

"However therapeutic for Berry the writing of 'Nathan Coulter' may have been, the fact is ultimately irrelevant to the novel. Berry created a world apart from himself with its own obligations, its own demands, and he would not be satisfied until he had met them."

That, it is plain Scowcroft feels, is the stuff of which real writers are made.

Author Buchwald is, of course, the well-known New York Herald Tribune overseas columnist who operates out of Paris.

The book represents a collection of articles showing off his brand of humor to best advantage. And it makes for delightful and refreshing reading.

Bay Area residents will note a marked similarity between the wit and writing style of Buchwald and Stanton Delaplaine, the S. F. columnist and Marin resident.

You won't get any deep thinking on international problems from Buchwald. But you will be thoroughly amused and entertained.

EXODUS REVISITED by Leon Uris with photographs by Dimitrios Harissiadis, Doubleday and Co., 284 pages, $5.95.

It is to Uris, author of "Battle Cry" and "Exodus," that the cover gives top billing. But the honor rightfully belongs to the Greek photographer with the unpronounceable name.

For this is a "picture book." Harissiadis has caught the people of Israel as they work, play, rest, study, worship and fight their foes. Uris' captions and brief commentary are effective. But it is in the Greek's photos that the hardships, the courage and the hope of the Israeli are mirrored. It is a superb collection of photographs about a superb people.

Drake Hero Of Book For Young Reader

THE GOLDEN HIND by Edith Thacher Hurd, Thomas Y. Crowell Co., 120 pages, $2.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

It is surprising how the very colorful Sir Francis Drake has been overlooked by writers as a subject and ready-made hero of books, both for old and young.

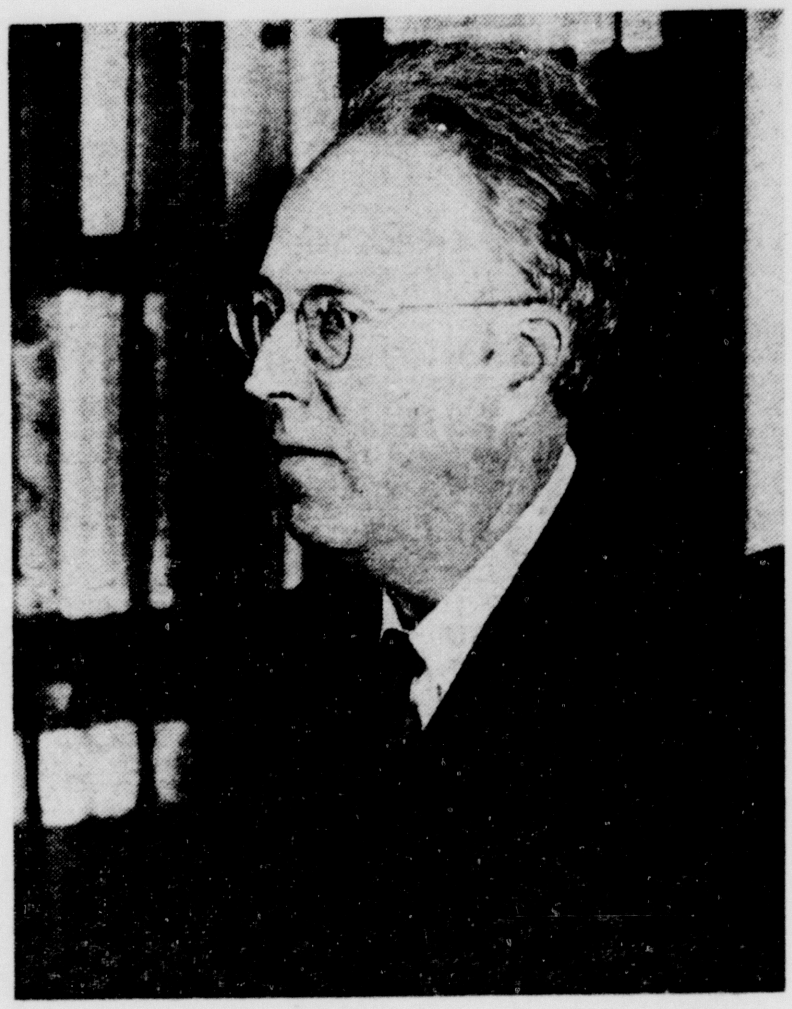

The oversight is particularly objectionable to Marinites who have come to regard Drake as one of their own.

Now Edith Thacher Hurd has remedied the omission, at least as far as the younger readers are concerned. In an easy to read style her book tells the story of the voyage which the young captain-general began with a small fleet in 1577 from Plymouth Harbor, England. That voyage was to take Drake's small fleet around the world including the stop at what is now Drake's Bay. There he nailed a plate of brass to a post claiming "this kingdom" for England. Miss Hurd tells graphically of the incident, and of Drake's friendly reception here by the Indians.

In an addendum to the book she also tells how in 1936 on a Marin hill Beryle Shinn found that same plate of brass which is now on exhibit in the Bancroft Library at the University of California.

The author's acknowledgements include one to Matthew P. Dillingham of Mill Valley for his assistance.

Every young reader in Marin should be interested in and will be entertained by the story of Drake's heroism. We found the book instructive and engrossing for an older reader, too.

Mill Valley Poet Laureate Writes 17th Book Of Verse

ATLANTIS by Stanton A. Coblentz, Wings Press, 119 pages, $2.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

It was with considerable sadness that the poetry world earlier this year received the news that Mill Valley's Stanton A. Coblentz was discontinuing his poetry quarterly, "Wings," after more than 27 years of continuous publication.

The lone consolation was the thought that the step would permit Coblentz to devote more of his time to his own poetry and other writing.

"Atlantis and other Poems," just out, represents Coblentz' 17th book of verse. He has also compiled five anthologies, authored five critical books about poetry and written innumerable magazine articles in addition to editing "Wings."

The title poem is a long narrative in which Coblentz not only re-creates the dying days of the fabled lost continent, but also draws a parallel with the present age that is pertinent and thought-provoking. It is plain that Mr. Coblentz is serving a serious warning upon present-day mankind.

The book also contains a number of shorter poems of varying moods.

MARISA SAETTI, voted by her Tamalpais High School graduating class of 1956 as the "one most likely to succeed," is shown working at sculpture, which has brought her honors and the opportunity to study with great sculptors abroad.

AMONG THE PHOTOS of her work which Marisa Saetti has sent from Europe to the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley, which granted her two scholarships, is this picture of the head of a girl. While Marisa did not say so, it may well be the one which one of her European teachers, the great sculpter Emilio Grece, thought good enough to be cast in bronze.

Young Marin Sculptor Picked To Study Under Italian Master

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Marisa Houston Saetti, voted by her 1956 Tamalpais High School graduating class as the "one most likely to succeed," may some day be known widely as a famous Mill Valley artist.

The young sculptor and painter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrea Saetti, has just been chosen as one of three who will work three months this winter with the great sculptor Manzu in Rome, Italy.

Marisa has been studying with him during the summer in Salzburg, Austria, as a result of being one of 25 contestants from all over the world accepted by him as pupils.

News of her progress has been regularly reported through letters to Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club, which has granted her two scholarships.

She wrote early in June, "I am very happy to convey to all the news that I have been accepted as a pupil in Manzu's class in sculpture. This came as a delightful surprise, for I had hardly dared hope for it, and I know you will all rejoice with me. Twenty-five is a small number when pupils and teachers from all over the world send in applications."

Again, during this past month, she wrote, "I have just returned from Salzburg, where I won a prize and was chosen, together with three others, to go to work with Manzu in Rome for three months this winter.

"Thanks to your second scholarship I will be able to do this and return later to the academy in Munich."

Marisa received her first scholarship from the Outdoor Art Club in 1956 to help her continue her studies at the Art Academy in Munich after she had gone to Italy with her parents following her graduation.

In Munich she studied with Emilio Greco. She reported, "During the first term Greco felt that one of my heads was good enough to be cast in bronze, which has been done, and this gave me a thrill."

The young artist works in clay and stone and also does painting, often working on into the night and on holidays.

Marisa admits she sometimes gets homesick, and she is already looking forward to her first exhibit when she returns to Mill Valley.

"What a joy it will be to prepare for an art exhibit to be held when I finally do return, and to think it will be at the Outdoor Art Club, where until now I have only been to the grammar school dances.

"Little did I ever think such an event would take place, but it just shows how little one knows just what is around the corner."

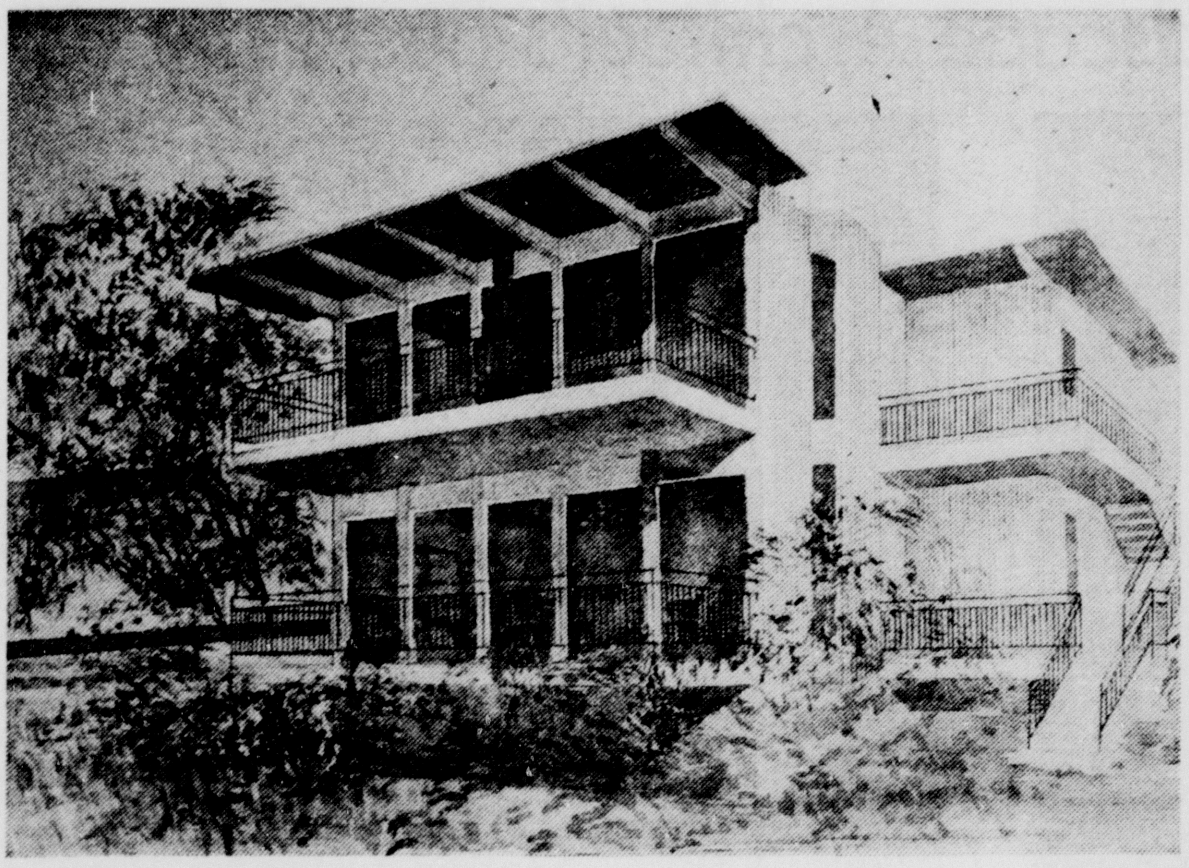

PRIMARILY A sculptor, Marisa Saetti also paints. This is one of the examples of her work she sent recently to Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club. She is looking forward to having her first exhibit there when she returns to this country.

Heavy equipment is currently at work constructing four new streets — William Court, Buchanan Court, Buchanan Drive and Lincoln Drive — all of which formerly existed only on the map.

They will be big wide streets with gutters and all underground utilities — seldom found in Sausalito.

And among these streets 38 deluxe homes and 19 ultra modern duplexes are going up. It's the Buena Vista Heights development of the Karp Development Co. with Pierce Realty of San Rafael as the agent.

Each one of the sites will have a water view.

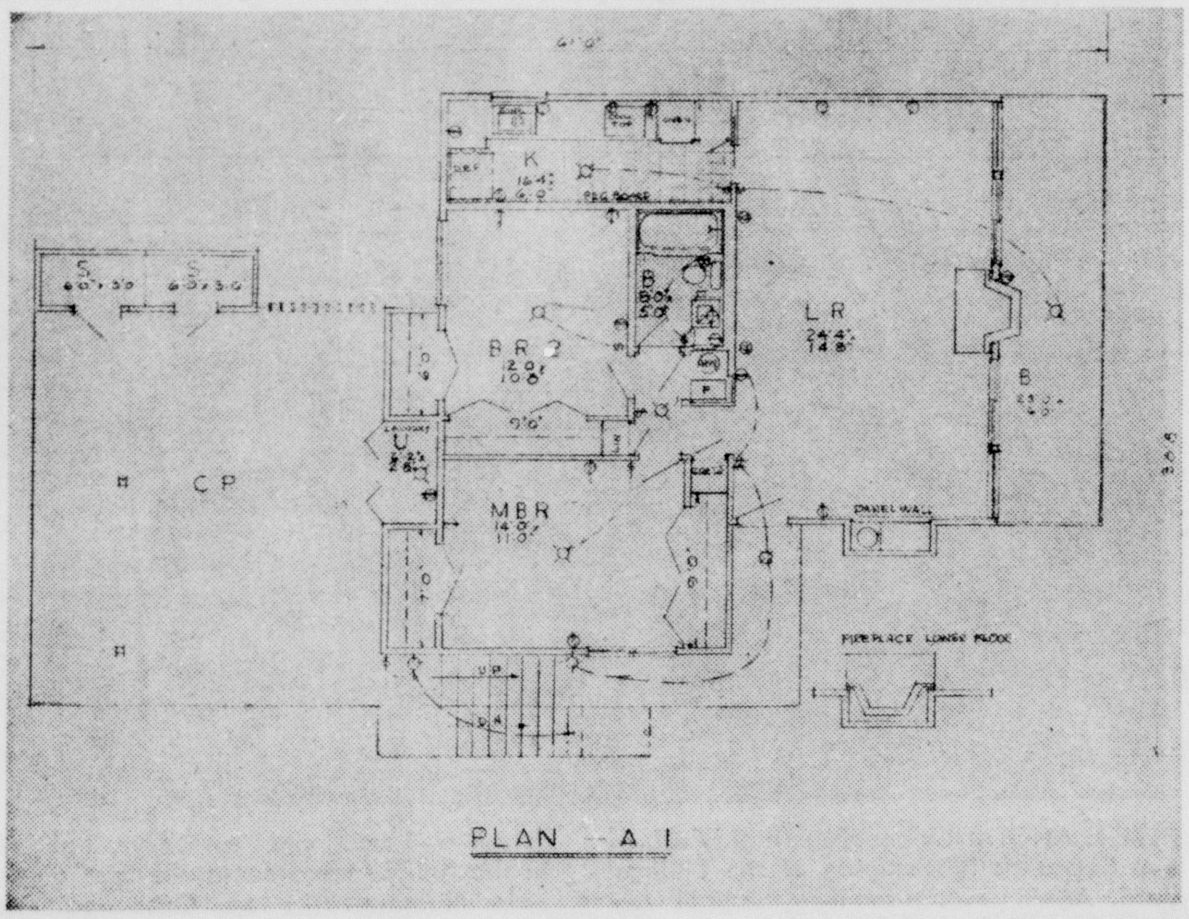

Approximately nine duplexes will be ready for occupancy by early November this year. These are the two-family dwellings.

They are architecturally designed and unique. One duplex has two stories on level lots, but no one has to walk up or down the flights of stairs. Only six easy steps to either floor. There are four floor plans to choose from, two have central hall entrances, and other two with gracious balcony entrances as illustrated.

Each apartment has 935 square feet of living area, plus laundry rooms. The living rooms are 25 feet long, with 25 foot glass walls and 25 feet of deck overlooking the water and sailboats. They all have hardwood floors, brick fireplaces, ceramic tiled baths, electric built-in oven, range, disposal and dishwasher. Each bedroom has two closets, plus a linen closet and coat closet.

On the outside you see a rare thing for income property, solid redwood siding, two car garages, big storage, and underneath all are even ratproofed. The schools are one block away and commuters have only two blocks to walk to the San Francisco bus. This part of Sausalito, the developers say, is less foggy than the rest.

With land running out fast in Sausalito, the duplexes started to sell the moment the foundations were poured. B-plans sell for $34,950 and the A-plan with balcony entrances and larger living rooms for $36,500.

Some Tips On Care Of Electric Range

Many a bride is thrown for a loss the first time up at the stove or range. An electric range or oven is likely to look just as complicated as the pilot board of an airplane. We've assembled a long list of favorite questions about these appliances, hoping the answers will prove useful to tyro cooks.

Here they are:

"Should aluminum foil be used in drip-bowls of surface units to catch spill-overs?"

It is not recommended by manufacturers of electric ranges, as use of such foil on surface units may interfere with the efficient diffusion of heat.

"Should the surface parts of the range be cleaned when it is cold or would it be more effective when hot?"

You can clean the range any time, but prompt cleaning after use is most desirable. Wipe all surfaces soon after use to eliminate a more time-consuming chore later on.

"WHAT IS the first step in cleaning the outside of an electric range?"

First remove all possible parts (such as chrome trim rings). Put them to soak (but not the heating elements). Clean the front of the range with a warm soapy cloth or sponge, the sides and backsplash. Rinse and allow it to air-dry. Clean, rinse and dry the removable parts and replace.

"How should hardened stains be removed?"

Use an old toothbrush or other small brush to remove food stains and to clean crevices. A mild cleanser may be used, but never use a knife or other sharp instrument to remove any stains.

"Is a special treatment necessary for chrome or stainless steel surfaces?"

"What's the best way to clean an oven after broiling or roasting?"

IT'S IMPORTANT to wipe up spills or splatters as soon as possible and to clean the oven after each use. Wait until it is cool. Go over the inside surfaces with a warm sudsy cloth. Stubborn stains should respond to this simple treatment: Mix ¼ cup of household ammonia and ½ cup of water in an enamel or glass container. Put it in the oven and close the oven door. Open the kitchen window. Leave the mixture in the oven over night. This will loosen stains and make cleaning much simpler.

After this treatment, racks and other removable parts should be soaked in soapy water while you clean the oven lining. Clean the oven "ceiling" first, then sides, the "floor" and finally the inside of the door; rinse and wipe dry. Rinse and dry parts you have removed and replace them.

"How does the oven light work? I notice mine goes off and on but I don't know why."

It goes off when the specified temperature is reached.

"ARE THERE any rules about baking for special results?"

Neutral Tones Lead Upholstery Popularity Parade

This autumn she'll probably use it as an accent in a scheme built around off-whites or the earth tones, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee predicts.

Textile sales to furniture manufacturers indicate that the beige-brown family still leads. Golds and copper tones are coming up. The off-whites are gaining popularity in high style interior decorating.

Fine Trees Are Landscape Architect's Best Friends

THE H. C. BILLINGS JR. home at 15 Rosebank Avenue, Kentfield, is located on part of what was once the old McAllister Estate. It offered landscape architect William Kapranos one tremendous advantage—some spectacular trees and shrubs already growing on the site when he went to work. Kapranos was careful to preserve those trees and shrubs, although some were moved to better locations. Here you see the curved concrete seat with two types of palms. The palm in the foreground was moved from another location.

In Small Garden Substitute Quality Plants For Quantity

It's an ironic fact of modern living that while we have more and more leisure time in which to garden, most of our gardens get smaller and smaller.

Seemingly, it might follow that garden problems are less than they once were; but in truth, it's just the opposite. Landscaping in a limited space is a real challenge.

The problem lies in trying not to do too much in too little space. Most of us tend to overplant even in large gardens. When we do this in small gardens, an inevitable mass of formless overgrowth results. In small spaces, gardening must be done on a modest scale.

We might begin by suggesting that uniformity — if that is the ultimate goal of all landscaping — is best achieved in small gardens with fewer varieties of plant material. He should not aim to try one of everything; but should substitute quality for quantity.

Both uniformity and variety are possible with the use of such shrubs as Camellias which look alike in foliage, but differ in bloom according to variety.

Liberal use of drawf conifers such as the spreading Junipers can be made to achieve uniformity and modesty. Dwarf Citrus and such compact shrubs as the India Hawthornes should also find their way into the permanent framework from which the the small garden evolves. There are many, many more.

We're inclined to rely more on annuals in small gardens than in large ones. Annuals are ever changing and ever being changed. They give the gardener more to do, and where space is at a premium, the gardener is always chafing at the bit. Also, since flowering shrubs are limited in variety, annuals give us a prime source of color. You might come up with other reasons, too; but these will do for us, thank you.

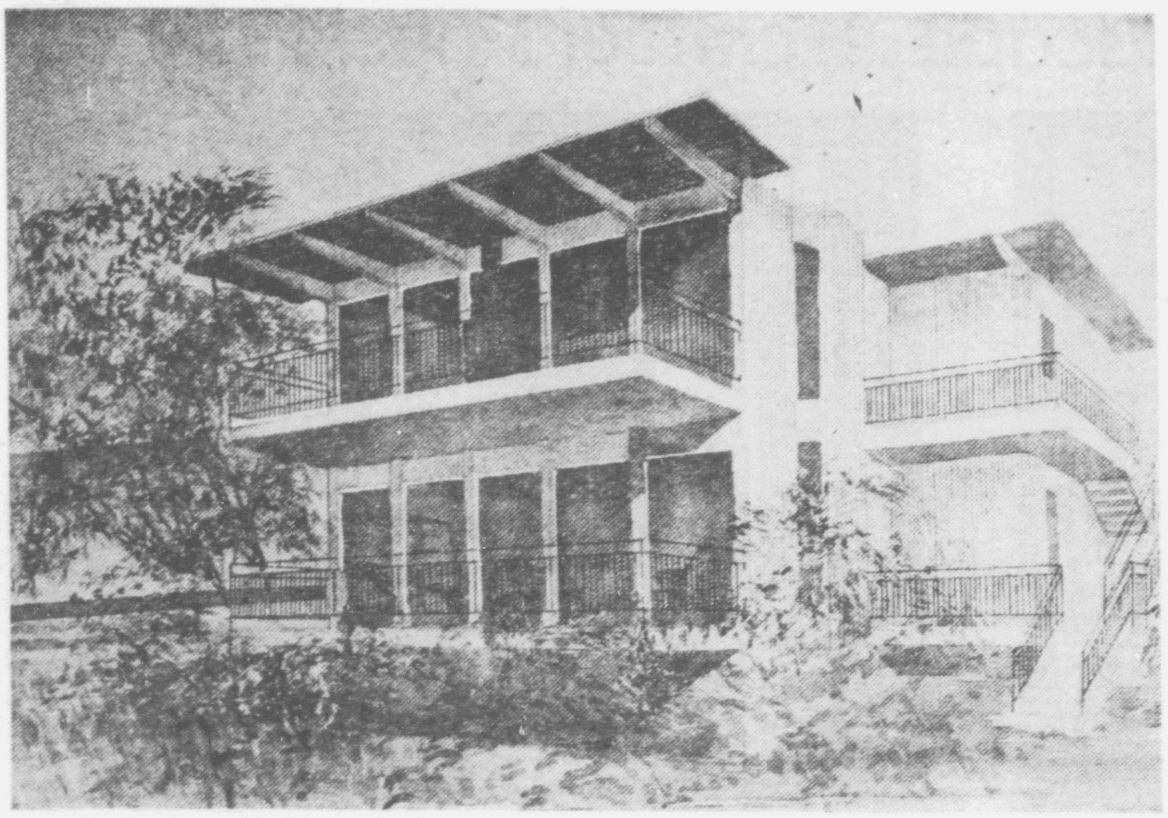

HERE IS ANOTHER view of the highly effective Kapranos landscaping of the Billings yard. Again you can see how the pool was built around the existing palm. The concrete seat serves to protect the tree from splash and accidents. An amber light set in the hollow concrete at the feet of the palm illuminates its top. Once again the unusually large juniper can be seen. Also note the river-washed colored rock around the small fountain. (Photos by Ken Molino)

There are four floor plans to choose from, two have central hall entrances, and other two with gracious balcony entrances as illustrated.

Each apartment has 935 square feet of living area, plus laundry rooms. The living rooms are 25 feet long, with 25 foot glass walls and 25 feet of deck overlooking the water and sailboats. They all have hardwood floors, brick fireplaces, ceramic tiled baths, electric built-in oven, range, disposal and dishwasher. Each bedroom has two closets, plus a linen closet and coat closet.

On the outside you see a rare thing for income property, solid redwood siding, two car garages, big storage, and underneath all are even ratproofed. The schools are one block away and commuters have only two blocks to walk to the San Francisco bus. This part of Sausalito, the developers say, is less foggy than the rest.

With land running out fast in Sausalito, the duplexes started to sell the moment the foundations were poured. B-plans sell for $34,950 and the A-plan with balcony entrances and larger living rooms for $36,500.

Some Tips On Care Of Electric Range

Many a bride is thrown for a loss the first time up at the stove or range. An electric range or oven is likely to look just as complicated as the pilot board of an airplane. We've assembled a long list of favorite questions about these appliances, hoping the answers will prove useful to tyro cooks.

Here they are:

"Should aluminum foil be used in drip-bowls of surface units to catch spill-overs?"

It is not recommended by manufacturers of electric ranges, as use of such foil on surface units may interfere with the efficient diffusion of heat.

"Should the surface parts of the range be cleaned when it is cold or would it be more effective when hot?"

You can clean the range any time, but prompt cleaning after use is most desirable. Wipe all surfaces soon after use to eliminate a more time-consuming chore later on.

"WHAT IS the first step in cleaning the outside of an electric range?"

First remove all possible parts (such as chrome trim rings). Put them to soak (but not the heating elements). Clean the front of the range with a warm soapy cloth or sponge, the sides and backsplash. Rinse and allow it to air-dry. Clean, rinse and dry the removable parts and replace.

"How should hardened stains be removed?"

Use an old toothbrush or other small brush to remove food stains and to clean crevices. A mild cleanser may be used, but never use a knife or other sharp instrument to remove any stains.

"Is a special treatment necessary for chrome or stainless steel surfaces?"

"What's the best way to clean an oven after broiling or roasting?"

IT'S IMPORTANT to wipe up spills or splatters as soon as possible and to clean the oven after each use. Wait until it is cool. Go over the inside surfaces with a warm sudsy cloth. Stubborn stains should respond to this simple treatment: Mix ¼ cup of household ammonia and ½ cup of water in an enamel or glass container. Put it in the oven and close the oven door. Open the kitchen window. Leave the mixture in the oven over night. This will loosen stains and make cleaning much simpler.

After this treatment, racks and other removable parts should be soaked in soapy water while you clean the oven lining. Clean the oven "ceiling" first, then sides, the "floor" and finally the inside of the door; rinse and wipe dry. Rinse and dry parts you have removed and replace them.

"How does the oven light work? I notice mine goes off and on but I don't know why."

It goes off when the specified temperature is reached.

"ARE THERE any rules about baking for special results?"

Neutral Tones Lead Upholstery Popularity Parade

Mrs. America falls in love with one brilliant color.

This autumn she'll probably use it as an accent in a scheme built around off-whites or the earth tones, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee predicts.

Textile sales to furniture manufacturers indicate that the beige-brown family still leads. Golds and copper tones are coming up. The off-whites are gaining popularity in high style interior decorating.

There's No Joy To Gardening If Your Soil Is Worn Out

Poor soil takes the joy out of gardening in a hurry. You plant a healthy young shrub and watch it go nowhere fast.

The error most commonly made by a novice gardener is to think that he can go on forever growing plants in the same soil. He fails to realize that most growing things reduce the richness of the soil by the amount of nutrients they need to grow.

Then there's the person who, while he knows the need of feeding, neglects the soil's need for humus. Despite added food, the soil produces less and less as it becomes more and more deficient in vegetable matter and therefore compact.

The California Assn. of Nurserymen tells us that the matter of humus should logically come first. Humus is a leavening agent that opens the soil to receive both food and water; and without it, feeding does little good. Manures are humus building materials, as are peat moss, leaf mold and sawdust, though the latter should be handled with care since it often robs the soil of nitrogen as it breaks down during decay. Peat and manure and what compost he can make himself are the gardener's best tools for building humus. Work these liberally into garden beds before you start fall feeding.

Fall feeding itself should be done with slow acting fertilizers. Too strong a shot in the arm will induce new growth at a time most plants should be getting ready for a winter nap.

Manures worked in as humus will provide a minor source of food for plants. An added mulch of steer manure over garden beds will add more. Bonemeal is one of the best fertilizers for fall. Worked in before the rains come, it will yield a slow but steady kick over several months.

There are other minor problems that a few simple steps will correct. Nurserymen are ready with the answers any time you are ready to inquire. Why wait?

GARDENER'S CHECKLIST FOR MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Bulbs top the planting list this month. Daffodils and Tulips are prolific color producers and should be used extensively.
- Lawns can still be planted. For maximum seed germination, be sure to keep moist.
- It's too early to prune berries and grapes. Give them another month at least before going at them with the shears.
- You find the early bird Sasanqua Camellias coming into bloom now. Plant them for a longer Camellia season.
- Annuals should go in without delay to get winter color. Check nurseries for those best for this area.
- Buy potted Chrysanthemums in bloom to take the place of those you forgot to plant last spring.

HERE'S AN ARMFUL! Large football-type mums for the garden have become a reality in the new series of "Harvest Giants." Once such giants were possible only under greenhouse conditions. Now they can be grown in your garden, or purchased as flowering plants from florists and nurserymen.

Try Giving Your Boxwood Chance To Grow Unclipped

Boxwoods, to most of us, are the epitome of formality.

We see them and think of them only as neatly sheared hedges, prim little edgings, or occasionally still, as clipped single specimens that stand alone in their formal severity. Nurserymen say we're still missing a bet by not giving the boxwood a chance to grow.

Left unclipped the many members of this family will billow out to new and pleasing forms which, while never completely informal, are no longer really formal either. You might try a couple or three boxwoods of this style in the shrub border or in a foundation planting.

We can't really argue against formality, when boxwoods are involved, for nothing can define a border with such precision as these shrubs. A tiny, trimmed Dwarf Boxwood can eliminate the rough edges of a foundation planting or flower border. The taller English and Japanese Boxwoods make low hedges that have no peers, and tubs of the latter pruned to globe or pyramid shape lend elegance to the entrance garden. Nurserymen often have boxwoods already trained to globes and pyramids in stock.

Boxwood's appeal, we're sure, stems as much from its delicate foliage as from its habit of growth and willingness to be sheared. And this appeal extends over to a number of boxwood imitators—unrelated shrubs that have similar leaf form.

Most common of these is probably the Boxleaf Hebe—or Veronica, if you prefer. It makes a rather full and rounded shrub, three or four feet high and equally wide. It stands shearing well and can be used in hedges.

Others are the African Box, an informal shrub that merits use in many borders where its reddish-green leaves stand out; and Boxleaf Azara, a loose, willowy box-like shrub ideal for espaliering against walls and fences.

Mums Can Do Double Duty For Grower

Chrysanthemums are one of the most durable, beautiful, colorful plants that bloom in the garden; and they perform double duty when their flowers are cut and brought indoors for artistic, long-lasting arrangements.

While mums are primarily considered the flower of autumn, there are many different varieties which will provide brilliant color from summer to winter. Nurserymen stress that there is no guesswork in buying chrysanthemums as those which are not in bud or bloom now are carefully labeled. This enables you to select the color and variety which will best enhance your summer, fall or winter landscape.

The size of the chrysanthemum family includes (to name a few) the petite, button pompom; daisy or single; cushion; anemone; and the giant-size exhibition types.

Slopes, Gentle Or Otherwise, Can Challenge The Gardener

Given the choice between sloping and level sites for a garden, most of us, no doubt, would choose the latter.

Trouble is, the choice is seldom available. We take what we can get at the price and location which fits our needs.

Those of us who end up with the sloping lots, however, have plenty of company — particularly here in Northern California. And there is solace to be found in the fact that countless gardeners actually prefer a change of contour. The reason: A sloping site can be much more interesting.

Slopes, gentle and otherwise, challenge the gardener. Like Mount Everest, they invite conquest and yield a high return of satisfaction to the man or woman who succeeds in conquering them.

The first area of attack on any plunging site is the area immediately surrounding the house. On a mild slope, there is no problem terracing a suitable area in both front and back for living in and moving about the yard. On a steep site, certain major changes are often called for.

A deck built out over the void will extend a narrow living area. The steep slope dropping down to house level should be retained as far back from the house as possible without making an uncomfortably high retaining wall necessary. A series of low retaining walls is much preferred over one tall one in most cases.

Multiple retaining walls offer unlimited opportunities for landscaping. The gardener can make lavish use of trailing material, both flowering and non-flowering. He can count on Ivy Geranium, Snow in Summer, Perennial Alyssum, Ground Morning Glory and others for color; Evergreen Grape, Ivy, some of the spreading Junipers for fine performance without bloom.

Once you get the hang of using such plants on a slope, you'll likely lose interest in any kind of level landscape.

Fine Trees Are Landscape Architect's Best Friends

THE H. C. BILLINGS JR. home at 15 Rosebank Avenue, Kentfield, is located on part of what was once the old McAllister Estate. It offered landscape architect William Kapranos one tremendous advantage—some spectacular trees and shrubs already growing on the site when he went to work. Kapranos was careful to preserve those trees and shrubs, although some were moved to better locations. Here you see the curved concrete seat with two types of palms. The palm in the foreground was moved from another location.

In Small Garden Substitute Quality Plants For Quantity

It's an ironic fact of modern living that while we have more and more leisure time in which to garden, most of our gardens get smaller and smaller.

Seemingly, it might follow that garden problems are less than they once were; but in truth, it's just the opposite. Landscaping in a limited space is a real challenge.

The problem lies in trying not to do too much in too little space. Most of us tend to overplant even in large gardens. When we do this in small gardens, an inevitable mass of formless overgrowth results. In small spaces, gardening must be done on a modest scale.

We might begin by suggesting that uniformity — if that is the ultimate goal of all landscaping — is best achieved in small gardens with fewer varieties of plant material. He should not aim to try one of everything; but should substitute quality for quantity.

Both uniformity and variety are possible with the use of such shrubs as Camellias which look alike in foliage, but differ in bloom according to variety.

Liberal use of drawf conifers such as the spreading Junipers can be made to achieve uniformity and modesty. Dwarf Citrus and such compact shrubs as the India Hawthornes should also find their way into the permanent framework from which the the small garden evolves. There are many, many more.

We're inclined to rely more on annuals in small gardens than in large ones. Annuals are ever changing and ever being changed. They give the gardener more to do, and where space is at a premium, the gardener is always chafing at the bit. Also, since flowering shrubs are limited in variety, annuals give us a prime source of color. You might come up with other reasons, too; but these will do for us, thank you.

HERE IS ANOTHER view of the highly effective Kapranos landscaping of the Billings yard. Again you can see how the pool was built around the existing palm. The concrete seat serves to protect the tree from splash and accidents. An amber light set in the hollow concrete at the feet of the palm illuminates its top. Once again the unusually large juniper can be seen. Also note the river-washed colored rock around the small fountain. (Photos by Ken Molino)

GARDENER'S CHECKLIST FOR MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Bulbs top the planting list this month. Daffodils and Tulips are prolific color producers and should be used extensively.
- Lawns can still be planted. For maximum seed germination, be sure to keep moist.
- It's too early to prune berries and grapes. Give them another month at least before going at them with the shears.
- You find the early bird Sasanqua Camellias coming into bloom now. Plant them for a longer Camellia season.
- Annuals should go in without delay to get winter color. Check nurseries for those best for this area.
- Buy potted Chrysanthemums in bloom to take the place of those you forgot to plant last spring.

Try Giving Your Boxwood Chance To Grow Unclipped

Boxwoods, to most of us, are the epitome of formality.

We see them and think of them only as neatly sheared hedges, prim little edgings, or occasionally still, as clipped single specimens that stand alone in their formal severity. Nurserymen say we're still missing a bet by not giving the boxwood a chance to grow.

Left unclipped the many members of this family will billow out to new and pleasing forms which, while never completely informal, are no longer really formal either. You might try a couple or three boxwoods of this style in the shrub border or in a foundation planting.

We can't really argue against formality, when boxwoods are involved, for nothing can define a border with such precision as these shrubs. A tiny, trimmed Dwarf Boxwood can eliminate the rough edges of a foundation planting or flower border. The taller English and Japanese Boxwoods make low hedges that have no peers, and tubs of the latter pruned to globe or pyramid shape lend elegance to the entrance garden. Nurserymen often have boxwoods already trained to globes and pyramids in stock.

Boxwood's appeal, we're sure, stems as much from its delicate foliage as from its habit of growth and willingness to be sheared. And this appeal extends over to a number of boxwood imitators—unrelated shrubs that have similar leaf form.

Most common of these is probably the Boxleaf Hebe—or Veronica, if you prefer. It makes a rather full and rounded shrub, three or four feet high and equally wide. It stands shearing well and can be used in hedges.

Others are the African Box, an informal shrub that merits use in many borders where its reddish-green leaves stand out; and Boxleaf Azara, a loose, willowy box-like shrub ideal for espaliering against walls and fences.

Mums Can Do Double Duty For Grower

Chrysanthemums are one of the most durable, beautiful, colorful plants that bloom in the garden; and they perform double duty when their flowers are cut and brought indoors for artistic, long-lasting arrangements.

While mums are primarily considered the flower of autumn, there are many different varieties which will provide brilliant color from summer to winter. Nurserymen stress that there is no guesswork in buying chrysanthemums as those which are not in bud or bloom now are carefully labeled. This enables you to select the color and variety which will best enhance your summer, fall or winter landscape.

The size of the chrysanthemum family includes (to name a few) the petite, button pompom; daisy or single; cushion; anemone; and the giant-size exhibition types.

Slopes, Gentle Or Otherwise, Can Challenge The Gardener

Given the choice between sloping and level sites for a garden, most of us, no doubt, would choose the latter.

Trouble is, the choice is seldom available. We take what we can get at the price and location which fits our needs.

Those of us who end up with the sloping lots, however, have plenty of company — particularly here in Northern California. And there is solace to be found in the fact that countless gardeners actually prefer a change of contour. The reason: A sloping site can be much more interesting.

Slopes, gentle and otherwise, challenge the gardener. Like Mount Everest, they invite conquest and yield a high return of satisfaction to the man or woman who succeeds in conquering them.

The first area of attack on any plunging site is the area immediately surrounding the house. On a mild slope, there is no problem terracing a suitable area in both front and back for living in and moving about the yard. On a steep site, certain major changes are often called for.

A deck built out over the void will extend a narrow living area. The steep slope dropping down to house level should be retained as far back from the house as possible without making an uncomfortably high retaining wall necessary. A series of low retaining walls is much preferred over one tall one in most cases.

Multiple retaining walls offer unlimited opportunities for landscaping. The gardener can make lavish use of trailing material, both flowering and non-flowering. He can count on Ivy Geranium, Snow in Summer, Perennial Alyssum, Ground Morning Glory and others for color; Evergreen Grape, Ivy, some of the spreading Junipers for fine performance without bloom.

Once you get the hang of using such plants on a slope, you'll likely lose interest in any kind of level landscape.

TREES NEED "WINTERIZING", TOO

Winter preparation is as important for trees as for cars. Experienced tree experts can determine if, and where, cabling or bracing is necessary. Frequently, special equipment is needed to properly install supporting devices.

Sohner Tree Service — serving Marin since 1931 — has the experience and the equipment. Call soon for free inspection and estimate.

Here's New Television Program With A Really Fresh Concept

New programs, instead of striking out into new fields, are much more likely to be imitations of existing shows that have proven to be commercially successful.

It is, therefore, especially heartening when one notes the arrival of a new program which is, indeed, fresh and unique. Such a series is KGO-TV's new "Expedition - California" which bows in this coming Tuesday on Channel 7 at 7 p. m. and will be seen henceforth every third Tuesday.

"Expedition - California" promises to provide us with a look at the sights and sounds of California's early years with special emphasis upon the colorful Bay Area history.

The premiere show, entitled "Iron Horses to California," will deal with the coming of railroads to this area. Television editors were notified a week ago of a preview showing of "Iron Horses to California" over Channel 7 this past Thursday before the station's regular viewing hours. No general public announcement was made, so only those who by unlikely chance happened to dial Channel 7 at 7:30 a. m. saw it, except for the forewarned TV editors.

"Iron Horses to California" traced the development of the wagon trails and wooden-wheel vehicles into the rail routes and Diesel engines of today. And the show was an impressive one. Rail buffs and students of California and Western history will get a particular kick out of it. But it was also designed for general viewing interest. And we particularly recommend it for the youngsters who may be studying this very point in history in their school classrooms.

Future programs in the series will deal with the Bay Area bridges, including "our" Golden Gate and Richmond-San Rafael spans, the great world fairs held in S. F., maritime transportation on the bay, the bonanza years, etc.

After the programs have been aired, they will be made available to Bay Area schools for showing in classrooms and assembly halls.

Gordon Waldear is the writer and producer. He is making extensive use of still pictures of historic interest, and employing techniques designed to animate scenes and create an illusion of motion. And he is working in close cooperation with a committee of school administrators headed by Dr. Harold Spears, superintendent of the San Francisco school district.

KGO-TV has done itself and television credit by originating the series. It marks a growing recognition by some in the industry that educational shows can also be entertaining, and vice versa.

THERE WILL be other programs of varying degrees of promise bowing in this coming week.

In fact, the new fall season will be under way in full swing. Along with a number of premieres of new series, there will be the start of new seasons for some old favorites. And a rush of spectaculars. This week's Fred Astaire special served as a "kickoff" for the new season of spectaculars.

This coming week's specials include a big one in the sports world and another in the political world. The World Series telecasts will begin Wednesday on KRON-TV (Channel 4) from Pittsburgh. Games from there Wednesday and Thursday will begin at 8:45 a.m. our time. Friday will be an off day. And then the series will resume from New York on Saturday at 8:45 a.m.

The second in the series of debates by presidential aspirants John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon will be carried by all three networks Friday at 7:30.

One of the big spectaculars of the season is also slated for Friday evening. The tribute to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and the cancer research foundation which bears her name won critical acclaim last year, an achievement seldom accomplished by this type of show. A stellar lineup of entertainment stars along with presidential candidates Nixon and Kennedy join emcee Bob Hope, the best in the business, in the second "edition" this coming Friday on Channel 4 at 9 p.m.

Other specials this coming week: Victor Borge on Thursday, Bing Crosby on Wednesday, Bob Hope on Monday and a World Series preview, scheduled Tuesday evening. All will be seen on KGO-TV (Channel 7). KPIX-TV will present Art Carney on Sunday.

My Sister Eileen, Wednesday, KPIX-TV, situation comedy; Rivak the Barbarian, Tuesday, KGO-TV, with Jack Palance starring in ancient Rome setting; Stagecoach West, Tuesday, KGO-TV, a western; Andy Griffith Show, Monday, KPIX-TV, situation comedy; Surfside 6, Monday, KGO-TV, another offshoot of 77 Sunset Strip; Candid Camera, Sunday, KPIX-TV; The Islanders, Sunday, KGO-TV (apparently inspired by Adventures in Paradise); Johnny Midnight, tonight, KPIX-TV, a private eye series with Edmond O'Brien; Angel, Thursday, KPIX-TV, situation comedy; Route 66, Friday, KPIX-TV, adventure yarns; Mr. Garlund, Fridays, KPIX-TV, more of same; The Law and Mr. Jones, Friday, KGO-TV, lawyer drama; and Walter Winchell's "newscasts," Sunday, KGO-TV.

A new local show will bow in on KGO-TV Sunday at 11. Entitled "Baghdad by the Bay," it will feature columnist Herb Caen and TV commentator William Winter (a Marinite) interviewing personalities, both residents of and visitors to the Bay Area.

And the returning "oldtimers" starting the new season will be many. Included will be "Father Knows Best," "Chevy Show," and Perry Como.

CHECKING the CHANNELS

With HAL CASE

Here's New Television Program With A Really Fresh Concept

New programs, instead of striking out into new fields, are much more likely to be imitations of existing shows that have proven to be commercially successful.

It is, therefore, especially heartening when one notes the arrival of a new program which is, indeed, fresh and unique. Such a series is KGO-TV's new "Expedition - California" which bows in this coming Tuesday on Channel 7 at 7 p. m. and will be seen henceforth every third Tuesday.

"Expedition - California" promises to provide us with a look at the sights and sounds of California's early years with special emphasis upon the colorful Bay Area history.

The premiere show, entitled "Iron Horses to California," will deal with the coming of railroads to this area. Television editors were notified a week ago of a preview showing of "Iron Horses to California" over Channel 7 this past Thursday before the station's regular viewing hours. No general public announcement was made, so only those who by unlikely chance happened to dial Channel 7 at 7:30 a. m. saw it, except for the forewarned TV editors.

"Iron Horses to California" traced the development of the wagon trails and wooden-wheel vehicles into the rail routes and Diesel engines of today. And the show was an impressive one. Rail buffs and students of California and Western history will get a particular kick out of it. But it was also designed for general viewing interest. And we particularly recommend it for the youngsters who may be studying this very point in history in their school classrooms.

Future programs in the series will deal with the Bay Area bridges, including "our" Golden Gate and Richmond-San Rafael spans, the great world fairs held in S. F., maritime transportation on the bay, the bonanza years, etc.

After the programs have been aired, they will be made available to Bay Area schools for showing in classrooms and assembly halls.

Gordon Waldear is the writer and producer. He is making extensive use of still pictures of historic interest, and employing techniques designed to animate scenes and create an illusion of motion. And he is working in close cooperation with a committee of school administrators headed by Dr. Harold Spears, superintendent of the San Francisco school district.

KGO-TV has done itself and television credit by originating the series. It marks a growing recognition by some in the industry that educational shows can also be entertaining, and vice versa.

THERE WILL be other programs of varying degrees of promise bowing in this coming week.

In fact, the new fall season will be under way in full swing. Along with a number of premieres of new series, there will be the start of new seasons for some old favorites. And a rush of spectaculars. This week's Fred Astaire special served as a "kickoff" for the new season of spectaculars.

This coming week's specials include a big one in the sports world and another in the political world. The World Series telecasts will begin Wednesday on KRON-TV (Channel 4) from Pittsburgh. Games from there Wednesday and Thursday will begin at 8:45 a.m. our time. Friday will be an off day. And then the series will resume from New York on Saturday at 8:45 a.m.

The second in the series of debates by presidential aspirants John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon will be carried by all three networks Friday at 7:30.

One of the big spectaculars of the season is also slated for Friday evening. The tribute to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and the cancer research foundation which bears her name won critical acclaim last year, an achievement seldom accomplished by this type of show. A stellar lineup of entertainment stars along with presidential candidates Nixon and Kennedy join emcee Bob Hope, the best in the business, in the second "edition" this coming Friday on Channel 4 at 9 p.m.

Other specials this coming week: Victor Borge on Thursday, Bing Crosby on Wednesday, Bob Hope on Monday and a World Series preview, scheduled Tuesday evening. All will be seen on KGO-TV (Channel 7). KPIX-TV will present Art Carney on Sunday.

My Sister Eileen, Wednesday, KPIX-TV, situation comedy; Rivak the Barbarian, Tuesday, KGO-TV, with Jack Palance starring in ancient Rome setting; Stagecoach West, Tuesday, KGO-TV, a western; Andy Griffith Show, Monday, KPIX-TV, situation comedy; Surfside 6, Monday, KGO-TV, another offshoot of 77 Sunset Strip; Candid Camera, Sunday, KPIX-TV; The Islanders, Sunday, KGO-TV (apparently inspired by Adventures in Paradise); Johnny Midnight, tonight, KPIX-TV, a private eye series with Edmond O'Brien; Angel, Thursday, KPIX-TV, situation comedy; Route 66, Friday, KPIX-TV, adventure yarns; Mr. Garlund, Fridays, KPIX-TV, more of same; The Law and Mr. Jones, Friday, KGO-TV, lawyer drama; and Walter Winchell's "newscasts," Sunday, KGO-TV.

A new local show will bow in on KGO-TV Sunday at 11. Entitled "Baghdad by the Bay," it will feature columnist Herb Caen and TV commentator William Winter (a Marinite) interviewing personalities, both residents of and visitors to the Bay Area.

And the returning "oldtimers" starting the new season will be many. Included will be "Father Knows Best," "Chevy Show," and Perry Como.
